MAYOR PROPOSES $100,000,000 PLAN FOR CITY HOUSING

Calls Conference of Real Estate and Labor Men to Push Home Building.

CAPITAL READY TO INVEST

Waiting on Assurances That There Will Be No Gouging in Wages or Material.

TENANTS GET TOGETHER

Forest Hills Meeting Lays Plans to Fight Increased Rent—Others May Join.

In an effort to solve the rent problem in this city Mayor Hylan yesterday sent out a call for a conference of real estate men, building contractors, dealers in building material, labor leaders and men and firms associated with the building industry to be held in the City Hall at 10 o'clock Monday morning.

In announcing the call the Mayor said he had been assured by Edward P. Doyle, an official of the Real Estate Board, that realty men in this city are prepared to invest between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000 in new building if they are assured that building companies, dealers in building materials and labor will not make advances in prices within a stated period.

Mayor Hylan said:

"My plan is to bring together all the labor leaders and builders and others who are vitally concerned in the building program. I will ask them to come to some agreement concerning a big building plan. No matter how serious and numerous the difficulties, there must be some solution of this problem. People must be housed.

$50,000,000 of Capital Ready.

"I am told by Mr. Doyle of the Real Estate Board that real estate financiers are willing to put up from $50,000,000 to $100,000,000 to carry out an enormous building program provided they obtain certain promises and assurances from both the labor people and the building materials people.

"It is too early to go into a detailed analysis of what assurances they ask. But I understand that one is that laboring men engaged in the building trades shall agree to a fixed wage for a stated period—say one year or eighteen months—and that in that period they will agree to do 100 per cent. work. I haven't the slightest doubt that the labor men will do everything to relieve the housing congestion by going to work with a will. Their loyalty to a good cause is never found wanting. Aside from that they will be helping themselves. The more buildings next Summer, Fall and Winter the less aggravating will become the rent profiteering evil.

"It strikes me that the men who are to be called together Monday should enter the conference with a fixed determination to emerge from it with a program either definitely decided upon or at least tentatively arrived at. Great emergencies demand quick action. It would be futile to have any more protracted hearings on this housing question. The men best qualified to supply the remedy are to face each other. We will look to them for help."

Builders Want Assurances.

Mr. Doyle said the real estate financiers were holding back their money from building operations simply because they haven't any assurance either from labor or the material men that prices would remain stable.

"If the real estate investors can obtain the assurance of both the labor and materials people that agreed-upon prices will remain fixed for a stated period, New York City will witness the greatest building boom in its history," said Mr. Doyle. "I can state with authority that between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000 will be available. Apartment houses will spring up everywhere, and within a year or so the great tension will be appreciably relieved.

"New York City needs under present conditions 40,000 new apartments every year. At the present time the shortage is several times that number. The war and the desertion of the farms were the two big factors. Soldiers from rural districts who had never seen Fifth Avenue or Broadway until the war shunted them there stayed here vowing they would never look upon green fields again."

Financial Aid Pledged.

Real estate and financial interests have pledged the Mayor their co-operation, and at the conference on Monday there will be discussed, it was said, plans for the loaning companies to advance moneys for building purposes. Another thing that will be taken up will be plans for the raising of funds, and it is possible that some appeal may be made to the public spirited men of wealth. The Real Estate Board was reported to be in favor of the plan.

Among those who are expected to be present at the conferences are Clarence H. Kelsey, President of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company; Louis V. Bright of the Lawyers Title and Trust Company, Richard M. Hurd of the Lawyers Mortgage Company, C. H. Burdette of the New York Title and Mortgage Company, J. E. Parsons of the United States Mortgage and Trust Company, C. R. Jones of the Home Title and Mortgage Company, Walter Stabler, Controller of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company; S. W. Straus of S. Plan Now for State to Raise a $30,000,000 Soldier Bonus

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 12.—Legislative leaders are considering imposing a direct State tax to provide a bonus for World War veterans and the $5,000,000 estimated as necessary to pay Mexican border veterans the difference between State Guard and Federal pay for the time of service after Federalization. The tax, if imposed, will call for approximately $30,000,000.

The State's financial managers say that there are only two ways to raise the money for the bonus, one to increase the tax on personal incomes, the other a direct levy on property. The latter is favored by Speaker Sweet, it is said. The money cannot be raised by bond issue because of constitutional prohibitions.

Legislative leaders have practically assured ex-service men that some sort of a bonus will be given to them.

HYLAN BADGERING ENDS FARE HEARING

Applications Withdrawn from Estimate Board at Judge Mayer's Direction.

OFFICIALS RESENT "JEERS"

Stoppage of Service Intimated Unless Legislature Provides Relief.

By direction of Federal Judge Mayer the applications filed with the Board of Estimate by representatives of the various railroad companies in the city for permission to charge an 8-cent fare for six months, and on which the pending inquiry by the board into the financial condition of the companies was based, were withdrawn yesterday. This action takes from the board any immediate reason for pursuing the inquiry, although it may decide to carry it to an end on its own initiative.

No person directly connected with the inquiry would allow his name to be used in connection with reasons for the withdrawal of the applications, but a consensus disclosed the fact that it was predicated on the conviction that the prayer for an increased fare would not be granted, and so it was deemed useless to continue the inquiry. It also was said by an official:

"About two and a half months have now elapsed since Judge Mayer directed the companies in bankruptcy to apply to the board for an increased fare. After receiving the applications the board arranged for public hearings, a number of which have been held without any result. Representatives of the court, their employes, counsel for the companies and others connected with the companies in financial distress have been bullied, insulted, jeered at and generally humiliated.

"It was supposed that the board would permit the applicants to present reasons for appearing in favor of a temporary increase in the fare, and to submit facts showing the precise condition of the companies, but the inquiry did not follow this line. Therefore the applications have been withdrawn and the situation resumes its former position."

Future Course Not Revealed.

No representative of any one of the companies would state what course would be permitted to gain an increased fare, but it was intimated that if the Legislature failed to take action to relieve the situation the companies would operate as long as they could and then quit. The fact that the Board of Estimate yesterday appropriated money to purchase 200 buses to take the place of any surface lines that suspend, is looked upon as fair evidence that the city expects that a number of lines soon will stop operating cars.

The notices of withdrawal of the applications were signed by Henry L. Stimson, counsel for Job E. Hedges, receiver of the New York Railways Company; James R. Sheffield, trustee of the Interborough Consolidated Corporation, the holding concern of the Interborough Rapid Transit and the New York Railways Company, and Lindley M. Garrison, receiver of the surface, elevated and subway lines of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company. No notice was served by the Interborough Company, because the inquiry into its affairs by the board is ended, and because it is not bankrupt. It was stated that if the board reopened its inquiry into this company's that it also would notify the board that it was not seeking any financial help from the board.

Notices Are Brief.

All of the notices, addressed to Mayor Hylan, follow the same line, and are brief to the point of being abrupt. The one from Mr. Stimson reads:

"By direction of Judge Mayer of the United States District Court I beg to

BROADWAY CROWDS THRILLED BY TWO JEWEL ROBBERIES

Thousands See Thieves Break Schwartz Store Window—Hold Up Feldman's.

TWO CAUGHT, THREE ESCAPE

Throngs See Crook Beat Off Engraver and Flee—Two Mauled by Pursuers.

THEFT FROM DEAD CHARGED

Police Trial Over Widow's Story That $2,700 Disappeared from Husband's Pockets.

Thousands on their way to theatres in the Times Square district last night saw thieves rob two jewelry stores less than a quarter of a mile apart in Broadway.

The first depredation took place in the store of Schwartz Brothers, on the southeast corner of Broadway and Thirty-seventh Street, at about 7:30 o'clock, when two men hurled a concrete block through a plate glass display window after placing an iron bar in the handle of the front door. One escaped by plunging into the emergency subway exit leading to the sidewalk in Broadway between Thirty-seventh and Thirty-eighth Streets. It is believed he took several pieces of jewelry. His companion escaped by mixing with the crowd.

The second robbery took place three-quarters of an hour later in the store of Marcus Feldman, brother-in-law of one of the partners in the Schwartz Brothers' store, on the west side of Broadway, between Forty-fifth and Forty-sixth Streets. Two young men were arrested after a chase of two blocks. A third, whom the police said they would arrest, escaped by running across Broadway in the direction of the K. of C. hut, opposite the jewelry store, and boarding a north-bound Broadway surface car.

One of the robbers is said to have fired a revolver at Phillip Cohen, an engraver employed by Schwartz Brothers, who was about to enter the store when the cement block was hurled through the window. Cohen grabbed the thief after he had stuck his hand into the hole in the window and had taken a handful of jewels from a tray. Cohen's wrist was sprained by a blow from the revolver, which the thief took from his coat pocket. Cohen was attended later by an ambulance surgeon from New York Hospital.

Youths Aroused Suspicion.

Schwartz Brothers occupy the double store at 1,368-1,370 Broadway, within a few feet of another jewelry store which was robbed in a similar manner about a year and a half ago. The entrance to the store is between two display windows, each about ten feet high and eight feet wide. The north window is joined on the Thirty-seventh Street side by two large plates of glass, which run back toward Sixth Avenue about fifteen feet.

At about 7:30 o'clock one of the clerks noticed two shabbily dressed youths peering through the glass door. He called the attention of several other salesmen to the strange actions of the men. One of the salesmen started for the front of the store when one of the men outside hurried into the vestibule between the store windows and placed an iron bar about eight inches long through the looped handle of the door.

The salesman shouted to his associates, and all rushed to the door. They found the bar was so firmly wedged in the handle they could not open it. The next instant there was a crash of glass, and as several of the salesmen ran to the window to save the two dozen trays of jewels in semi-upright positions in rows in the window, they saw Cohen, the engraver, grapple with the man who had broken the glass.

Bitter Fight in Vestibule.

The salesmen shouted to Cohen to beware of the second bandit who, they said, was standing a few feet away with a revolver, but Cohen either didn't hear them, or was too busily engaged to heed them. Cohen managed to keep his opponent from again crashing the concrete block into the window. The block was attached by wire to a hooked door handle, giving it the appearance of an andiron.

Cohen drove the robber against the jagged edge of the broken window and knocked the block out of his hand. Both of them fell to the floor of the vestibule between the show windows. The bandit, with the twist of an expert wrestler, got on top of Cohen. By that time about 2,000 men and women on their way to theatres were watching the

Obregon Agrees Not to Start a Revolution If He Is Beaten for Mexican Presidency

WASHINGTON, March 12.—General Alvaro Obregon, long a popular military figure in Mexico, has made a campaign promise not to start a revolution if he is defeated in his candidacy for the Presidency. Since the announcement of his candidacy and that of General Pablo Gonzalez, another officer prominent in Carranza's army, reports have been circulated widely that the defeated candidate would resort to arms, and some information has indicated the gathering of arms and ammunition on the west coast by followers of Obregon.

Obregon's declaration made at Saltillo, Mexico, reached the State Department today. He said there was a time when he might have gained the rulership of Mexico by armed force, "but," he added, "I know what another revolution would cost me."

"I am a friend of the United States," Obregon said in the statement, "and I shall always try to be on friendly relations with that country because I realize that any Mexican policy that does not include friendly understanding with our neighbors will be doomed to failure."

He also promised that in the event of his election Mexican political exiles would be permitted to return.

Lenin Sends Four Emissaries to Germany by Airplane

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Co.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, March 12.—A dispatch from Kovno, Lithuania, reports that a Russian airplane was forced down by gunfire near that city yesterday.

It had three men and one woman on board, besides a large quantity of courier mail coming from Smolensk intended for the German Government.

The passengers were found to be in possession of documents signed by Lenin empowering them to conclude important trade agreements with Germany.

RAILWAY EXPRESS TURNS TO AIRPLANE

Company Will Inaugurate Service with New York to Chicago Line.

AIRCRAFT SHOW GETS NEWS

Success Will Mean Extension of New Medium of Transportation Throughout Country.

The American Railway Express Company will inaugurate an air express service between New York and Chicago as soon as an operating corporation can be formed, R. E. M. Cowie, Vice President of the company, declared yesterday afternoon in an address at the National Aircraft Show in the 71st Regiment Armory. The program of adapting the airplane commercially to the needs of the company contemplates the extension of service to other cities throughout the country, he said.

"To the aircraft manufacturers of the United States I say, 'Bring on your airplanes, with a properly organized service company, and the express company will exploit the service, contract for cargo space, advertise the rates, pick up the shipments at point of origin and deliver them at destination almost as quickly as you can say "Jack Robinson,"' Mr. Cowie said.

"The airplane in express service is a fascinating subject," he continued, "because it presents, and will presently afford, a new medium of carriage, and no one can accurately measure the reasonable possibilities of this innovation in transportation.

"It is my opinion that there is an unmistakable place for the airplane in connection with express service, the very essence of which is speed.

"Today the express service, under a unified management, extends over every railroad in the United States, 285,000 miles, with 28,000 offices, with 135,000 people upon its payrolls, utilizing in its daily operations 3,500 motor trucks and 17,500 horse-drawn vehicles, transacting a business of more than $300,000,000 a year.

"This immense traffic consists mainly of the valuable merchandise of the country, and is made up of approximately 1,000,000 shipments a day. Many of these packages are of extreme urgency in their nature, and it is the respectively lightweight, non-bulky packages of an unusually urgent character that will naturally seek the expedited service that is now made possible by the airplane. I am satisfied there are many such, but no man in advance can tell what the volume may ultimately be. Suffice it to say that it would be passing strange if out of more than a million packages a day a small percentage of them were not of sufficient urgency to justify the cost that would be necessary to transport them by the quickest means of transportation that may be available, and, as will readily be seen, an almost infinitesimal proportion of the volume of express traffic moving would form a substantial cargo for airplane transport. My belief is that such a service would very quickly create a patronage peculiar to itself.

"The American people are very ingenious and enterprising in their commercial practices, and I confidently expect that such an improved service would very rapidly create a substantial demand for its uses. Other countries have already made a big start in this direction, and it is to be hoped that the first commercial airplane operating company in this country, which is the birthplace of the flying machine itself, will be able to utilize American-made 'planes, of American design, with American pilots to fly them."

Mr. Cowie spoke of the need of a unified regulation of air traffic, and argued that the interstate character of aerial flight made the Interstate Commerce Commission the logical body to have jurisdiction of the air. Conflicting authority among States and municipalities would handicap the commercial development of aircraft, he said, and steps should be taken to eliminate this disadvantage.

NITTI'S COLLEAGUES GIVE UP PORTFOLIOS

Following Resignations of Some, the Rest Put Themselves at Premier's Disposal.

ROME, March 12.—It is semi-officially stated that Premier Nitti at a Cabinet Council this morning announced the resignation of some of the Cabinet members.

All the Ministers thereupon placed their portfolios at the Premier's disposal, in view of the political and Parliamentary situation.

The Messagero says that members of the Catholic Party have decided not to participate in the new Nitti Cabinet. This, it asserts, may lead to the resignation of the entire Ministry, in which case, Signor Nitti will be entrusted with the formation of a new Administration, but will be more free in the selection of its members.

HOW WASHINGTON WOULD MEET CALL FOR SOVIET TRADE

A New Plan to be Suggested to Supreme Council and Likely to Win Favor.

TO END ALL TRADE PERMITS

Commerce to All Territory to be Free, but Trading with Soviet at Trader's Risk.

NO PROTECTION GIVEN THERE

Having No Relations with the Soviet, We Lack the Means to Guard Commercial Interests.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The State Department has under serious consideration, with a favorable decision probable, proposing to the Supreme Council at Paris the withdrawal of wartime restrictions on trading between the United States and allied countries, Soviet Russian territory included. Such a policy will enable American exporters to undertake trade relations with whom they please in Soviet Russia, even with the Soviet Government itself. But they must do so at their own risk. They must expect no help from their Government should they have difficulty in collecting what is due them or encounter other complications growing out of the uncertainties affecting relations with that part of the world.

It is not contemplated that licenses to trade with Soviet Russia or enemy countries shall be issued by this Government. Suggestions to that effect have been advanced but have been definitely discarded. This Government does not intend to place itself in a position that might give color to the claim that it had recognized Soviet Russia, with which it maintains no relations, and, it is reiterated, has no intention of entering into any.

That the contemplated proposal will be received with gratification in the Supreme Council, assuming that it is formally placed before that body, is taken for granted. France may interpose some objection based on a disinclination to permit anybody to have dealings with the Soviets, but this would be counteracted, it is believed, by the very general disposition existing in allied Europe to establish trade relations with Russia with the least possible delay.

That is the British view which has been made known frankly in London. The war-worn countries need Russia's resources to relieve the rather desperate conditions that exist in Europe, and this hard fact has served to overcome considerations purely political, and the natural unwillingness to have anything to do with those who have been endeavoring to impose their ultra-radicalism upon the rest of the world.

As far as the United States is concerned it is doubtful if the lifting of restrictions will benefit either this country or Russia. The exchange situation, with the depreciated value of the ruble, will be a deterrent to Russian purchases in the United States and there is little that this country requires from Russia in normal times.

With Europe, however, the situation is different. The British pound, the French franc and the Italian lire have depreciated along with the currency of Germany and Russia, and the United Kingdom, France and Italy are able to trade with Russia on a nearer approach to equality of currency values than will the United States.

With the expected notice that the United States Government will not interpose objections to American citizens trading with any part of Russia, the Government, however, it is contemplated, may make known in some form, setting forth the reasons why this is the case, a warning that those Americans who engage in this trade must do so at their own risk. The United States Government has no diplomatic representative accredited to Soviet Russia, nor does it maintain in Soviet territory Consular officers whose services and attestations would be essential to the full protection of American commercial interests. Should the Soviet Government or persons within its jurisdiction seize goods shipped to that territory by an American citizen, or should a consignee refuse to pay for them when received or otherwise embarrass the American shipper, he need expect no help from Washington. After such a warning the American who undertakes to trade in Soviet territory would have only himself to blame if he encountered loss on his venture.

One interesting suggestion heard here points to a situation which might confront the American exporter who is willing to take such a risk. Should he endeavor to eliminate the risk by exacting advance payment in gold, he might even encounter legal proceedings taken by some allied Government or citizen for an injunction to prevent his use of this gold, on the ground that it was stolen. A large part of the Bolshevist gold supply, it is known, was seized from a store sent to Russia for safekeeping by Rumania.

No doubt remains that the proposal for permitting citizens of allied countries to trade with the Russian co-operative societies in Soviet Russia has been definitely abandoned. The Soviet Government declines to be ignored in the matter. Evidence to that effect was received at the State Department a day or two ago in a cable message from Riga,

Poincare Criticises Vacillation Over Turkey; Favors Settlement by Diplomatic Negotiations

PARIS, March 12.—Ex-President Poincaré, who on retiring from office accepted the post of chief political writer of the Revue des Deux Mondes, contributes his first article in the current number.

After referring to the rumor that is in circulation to the effect that if the Treaty of Versailles is executed it will mean the ruin of Germany, M. Poincaré suggests that "it would be better if France, before weeping over the fate of Germany, thought of her own devastated regions."

He hits rather hard at the men who drew up the treaty and at their methods of working, speaking of "the multitude of questions which have been the object of haphazard and contradictory solutions."

Of this "ever-changing attitude of the Allies on many problems, notably the questions of the East, the Adriatic and the Soviets," he gives as an example that of the disposition of Constantinople, which has kept the Quai d'Orsay and Downing Street "busy playing at cross-purposes."

M. Poincaré says that Stephen Pichon, while he was still in the Foreign Office, drew up a remarkable memorandum in favor of the maintenance of the Sultan in Constantinople.

"During his last visit to London," he says, "M. Clemenceau strongly supported M. Pichon's view, but he found Lloyd George rather in favor of the expulsion of the Sultan, and by way of conciliation M. Clemenceau soon accepted the point of view of his subtle and ardent English colleague. A few days later M. Clemenceau, back in Paris, returned to his original opinion, while Mr. Lloyd George also modified his opinion and found brilliant arguments to support the view which M. Clemenceau had already sacrificed."

M. Poincaré concludes by saying that the best plan would be for the heads of the allied Governments to intrust the negotiations to diplomats under the direction of their respective Governments—a plan which would enable the various Premiers to carry on their ordinary duties and do away with frequent cross-Channel journeys.

M. Poincaré thinks that nobody in France would be very much grieved if the Supreme Council were to enter upon its last long sleep.

Venizelos Told Council Greece Would Undertake the Work for the Allies.

FEARS OF MOSLEM UNREST

British Observers Watch Syrian Congress—Constantinople Unmoved by Display.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Saturday, March 13.—The Daily Telegraph's diplomatic correspondent states definitely that Premier Venizelos has offered Greek troops for the purpose of crushing Mustapha Kemal and the Turkish Nationalists. The correspondent says that in the course of the discussions of the Supreme Council the Greek Premier offered the services of at least six infantry divisions and one cavalry—a round total, with corps and army troops, of over 100,000 men.

M. Venizelos said he was convinced that if it had a free hand this Greek Army alone could eradicate the Young Turk peril, although he fully recognized the fact that the employment of an interallied force would in every respect, but more especially from a moral and political point of view, be preferable to action by any single power.

Growing Anxiety Over Near East.

LONDON, March 12 (Associated Press)—Earl Curzon's speech on the Turkish problem, made in the House of Lords yesterday, and other official and unofficial statements on the subject are generally regarded as showing that the Near East tangle is serious and is causing the authorities some anxiety—an anxiety increased by complications threatened in connection with Syria and Mesopotamia. The shadow of Indian and Moslem opinion darkens the problem and, it is believed, influences the councils of the Allies more than is always immediately apparent.

The suggestion that the employment of force against the Turks might excite general hospitality in the Mussulman world is regarded as one that cannot safely be ignored. In some quarters the feeling prevails that there is danger that if the Turks are pressed they may immediately be joined by the Arabs. The Italian view that it would be dangerous to employ against the Turks British Moslem and other Moslem troops in the service of the Allies is evidently based on these fears.

Careful watch is being kept here on the outcome of the Syrian Congress at Damascus, and it is understood that any decision or proposal by the Peace Conference regarding Syria must be purely tentative.

Among the day's reports was one that France had received a mandate over Cilicia, but this was unconfirmed. It is argued in some quarters that France's hands are too full to undertake this responsibility. Great Britain is similarly regarded as ruled out as a mandatary for the same reason, and the League of Nations is looked to as the only hope for the protection of Turkey's non-Moslem subjects.

Earl Curzon's statement attributing the cause of the Turkish trouble to the Allies awaiting action by the United States is not commented on by some editorial writers, but others point out that if a settlement had been made a year ago,

MAY AID GERMANY TO BUILD MARINE

Allies Expected to Mitigate the Treaty Terms Relative to Tonnage to be Provided.

ENGLAND FAVORS PROPOSAL

Project Regarded as Necessary to Enable Germans to Pay Their Reparations Bill.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 12.—It is understood that by mitigating the application of the terms of the Treaty of Versailles the Allies will help Germany rebuild her merchant marine, at least up to a certain size. A majority of the Reparation Commission is in favor of this step, and it probably will be taken in the near future and will form the first fulfillment of the European economic manifesto issued by the allied Premiers in London.

This aid to Germany, intended to enable her to pay her war debts to the Allies, will be given, as stated, by easing up on enforcement of that part of Annex 3 of the reparation section of the treaty providing for building in German ports of merchant tonnage to be handed over to the Allies. This annex says that for five years Germany must build for allied account ships not to exceed a total of 200,000 tons a year. Within three months after the coming into effect of the treaty the Reparation Commission is instructed to notify Germany how many tons must be laid down in the next two years, and before the end of those two years shall specify what tonnage is to be laid down for allied account in the succeeding three years. The treaty also provides that delivery of these ships shall be controlled by the Reparation Commission.

It is understood that the Allies will permit Germany to use all or part of these ships for her own commerce. She probably will be called upon to pay their value in some other way later, or they may be called allied vessels and be leased to Germany. Those details are under consideration.

The important point is that the Allies recognize that Germany cannot under present conditions, or those apt to obtain in the near future, fulfill this provision if strictly enforced and at the same time build ships enough to meet her own essential needs for shipping tonnage, if she is to work with any appreciable speed to that point of economic relievement where she can pay her reparation bill. Therefore, they will let her use some of the ships she is called upon to build for allied account. The proposition thus becomes a sort of business investment by the Allies.

It is reported that England, which has the largest interest in German shipbuilding for allied account, is entirely favorable to the project.

SENATE SNARL OVER TREATY

Irreconcilables, Surprised by New Draft, Ridicule It.

SIMMONS REFUSES PLEDGE

Lodge Declares That the Principle of His Reservation Is Unchanged.

POLLS INDICATE DEADLOCK

Failure of Ratification After Adoption of the Substitute Is Forecast.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Political lines in the Senate were further blurred today, while at the same time politics was brought more predominantly into the treaty situation, following the presentation by Senator Lodge of a substitute reservation on Article X.

Mr. Lodge's action was disturbing to all the various factions in the treaty fight, and they had not entirely regained their poise by the time the Senate took a recess for the day. The presentation of the reservation was a distinct surprise, as it was understood that Mr. Lodge last night assured Republican irreconcilables that he would not offer it.

Offer it he did, however, and the immediate result was a bitter cry of "Surrender" from the irreconcilables on both sides of the chamber. In the ensuing debate, a most acrimonious spirit developed, and it threatens to develop a period of much plain speaking, in which motives will not be safe from embarrassing scrutiny.

Apparently the presentation of the substitute reservation had no effect so far as the ultimate fate of the treaty was concerned. The treaty still is dead, so far as any one acquainted with the situation could discover tonight. But, as Mr. Lodge's action broke down carefully constructed lines, there was a disposition on the part of many hitherto ready Senatorial prophets tonight to fall back upon the adage "You never can tell."

Text of Lodge Substitute.

Mr. Lodge, having determined to take the plunge with his new reservation, wasted no time about it. Immediately after calling up the treaty he offered the reservation, which reads:

The United States assumes no obligation to preserve the territorial integrity or political independence of any other country by the employment of its military or naval forces, its resources, or any form of economic discrimination, or to interfere in controversies between nations, whether members of the League or not, under the provisions of Article X., or to employ the military or naval forces of the United States under any article of the treaty for any purpose, unless in any particular case the Congress, which, under the Constitution, has the sole power to declare war or authorize the employment of the military or naval forces of the United States, shall, in the exercise of full liberty of action, by act or joint resolution so provide.

Mr. Lodge made a brief statement to the effect that he offered the reservation "in consonance with what I have stated on the floor many times, that I did not feel that I could be justified in insisting on the defeat of the treaty on the simple question of phraseology employed in any reservation. If I thought what I offer affected in any way the principle or substance of the reservation as it stands, I not only would not offer it, but I should vote against the treaty which contained it."

Scarcely had Mr. Lodge taken his seat when Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey was assailing the proposed substitute. Mr. Frelinghuysen, one of the Lodge group of Senators, recently served notice on his party leader, in common with some others, that he would not support any modification of the Lodge reservations.

Senator Frelinghuysen said that the original Lodge reservation was a plain statement, well understood by the Senate and the country. Why, then, he asked, should a substitute be offered for it? He declared that the Lodge substitute implied a moral obligation; that nobody could draw a reservation which would "prevent assuming an obligation and assume it at the same time."

Frelinghuysen Proposes a Change.

Mr. Frelinghuysen then offered a substitute for the Lodge substitute in this language:

"The United States assumes no obligation to preserve the territorial integrity or political independence of any other country. The United States assumes no obligation to interfere in controversies between nations or to employ its military or its naval forces for any purpose under any article of the treaty."

Senator McCormick of Illinois called the Lodge substitute the "Republican terms of surrender." He said it now "remains only to be seen whether the surrender will be accepted by the Administration."

"You charge Senator Lodge and me with having surrendered," said Senator Lenroot of Wisconsin, one of the strong supporters of the substitute. "That charge requires a bill of particulars. In what particular have we surrendered?"

"The debate," replied Senator McCormick, "will develop whether this is a surrender or not."

"What is there about this new reservation that is so attractive if it does not make some substantial change in the original reservation?" asked Senator Wadsworth.

"I do not know," replied Senator Lenroot.

"You yielded on form and the other side on substance?" asked Senator Borah.

"Yes," said Mr. Lenroot.

"A good trade," commented Mr. Borah.

There was some discussion as to what the President would do if the reservation were submitted to him as part of a resolution of ratification.

Senator Knox sharply objected to being characterized (as he said Mr. Lenroot had characterized Senators) as being unable to consider the Lodge proposal fairly.

Brandegee Ridicules Plan.

Senator Brandegee said he was "sick of this tippy-toeing around. "I don't see why we don't have the courage either to ratify this treaty or to decline to ratify it.

"This proposal for a reservation on Article X stating what means we will not use in fulfilling an obligation is just the same as though I asked Senator Knox to indorse my note for $100 and he wrote on the back of it that the note was perfectly good, but that in indorsing it he wanted it understood he would not pay it, if he had to pay it, in gold coin or silver dollars or any obligation of the United States, but that with those reservations he would cheerfully and cordially and sincerely indorse it.

"I wonder how a Frenchman would interpret these weasel words we are trying to write in here"

Senator McKellar, a Democrat, who has hitherto been regarded as likely to support almost any compromise offer, announced his opposition to the Lodge proposal. He said it destroyed the obligation under Article X.

Senator Reed of Missouri said that the reservation reminded him of the boy fishing for suckers who was advised to change his bait and who thereupon reversed the position of the worm upon his hook. When it was pointed out that he had not really changed the bait, the boy replied: "Oh, these are just fish I'm after; they don't know much."

Simmons Refuses Pledge.

While the debate swirled and eddied and foamed, efforts were being made on the Democratic side to see what chances the new reservation had there. Senator Simmons stated at the outset that though he had offered thirty Democratic votes for the Simmons-Watson reservation, he would not pledge any votes for the Lodge proposal. He had not made up his own mind about it, he said, and did not know how his colleagues felt, although some of them seemed to think that the new reservation ran afoul of the President's objections as voiced in his letter to Senator Hitchcock.

As the day wore on, and the Democrats began to voice themselves on the reservation, this lineup developed, according to Senators who made painstaking inquiries:

Twelve Democratic Senators at the very lowest estimate would oppose the Lodge proposal.

Five Democrats must now be counted as irreconcilables, who will oppose the whole treaty. They are Gore, Shields, Thomas, Reed and Walsh of Massachusetts. They also will oppose the Lodge substitute, it was assumed.

This would give a total of seventeen Democratic votes against a resolution of ratification containing the Lodge substitute, Senators said.

On the Republican side the fourteen irreconcilables, plus Senators Frelinghuysen, Wadsworth, Sutherland and Penrose, are counted as against ratification with the Lodge substitute. That would give a total of eighteen Republican votes, or a grand total of thirty-five votes against ratification. Thirty-three votes would reject the treaty.

These estimates were stated to be extremely conservative, especially as regards the Democrats. One Democratic Senator said that a poll he made showed forty votes against ratification, nineteen being Republicans and twenty-one Democrats.

Senators Swanson, Hitchcock and Underwood were reported to be doing everything in their power to defeat the Lodge substitute. Mr. Swanson was said to have taken it to the White House today and to have returned with word from the President, received via Joseph P. Tumulty, the President's secretary, that it would not be acceptable. Mr. Swanson said this report was unfounded, as he went to the White House on other matters. The report persisted among Democratic Senators.

Hitchcock Expects Move to Fail.

Senator Hitchcock was confident that there would be enough Democrats holding out against the Lodge substitute to prevent ratification, with the votes of the Republican irreconcilables. Late today all factions were carefully taking stock of their strength.

There seemed to be little doubt that on the vote on substituting the new reservation for the original Lodge reservation the new one would get the support of a majority of the Senate, which is 49 votes.

Whatever the purpose, the effect has been to make more Senators careless of political affiliations, in their desire to get the treaty out of the way before the campaign. Some Democrats were declared on good authority to have stated that they would vote for the reservation and for ratification of the treaty, though President Wilson in person should beseech them not to do so. Some Republicans told Mr. Lodge either directly or indirectly that they would not hesitate to split the Republican Party "wide open" if they found on careful examination of the reservation that he had yielded on the question of obligation.

The vote on the new reservation is likely to come early next week. Voting on the resolution of ratification may begin late in the week. Difficulty in arranging pairs for some absent irreconcilables, including Senators LaFollette, Penrose and Fall, is being found, and these Senators may not be able to return. Senators Poindexter and Johnson, of California, are expected back in time for the final vote.

Thomas Tells of Newspaper Appeal.

WASHINGTON, March 12 (Associated Press).—In the debate on the Treaty today Senator Thomas, Democrat of Colorado, read a telegram received by him from the Louisville Courier-Journal, urging ratification "on the best terms possible." It said that the League of Nations could not be made a "clean cut campaign issue," as it would be obscured by domestic issues, and that ratification should be voted for party reasons, and to perpetuate the name of President Wilson.

"I construe this telegram to be an appeal to me to conform my vote to party purposes and party ends," Senator Thomas said. "This treaty can not, and should not, become a party question.

"President Wilson's name, in my judgment, is absolutely secure from the corroding influences of time, no matter what the fate of the treaty is. He has written his name high on the scrolls of immortality."

Senator Thomas declared that if the treaty become a campaign issue it would cleave both of the great parties "at right angles."

Senator Reed paid his respects to The Louisville Courier-Journal, The New York World and other newspapers advocating ratification, and said he doubted whether there were fifty editors in the country "who could get a rating of 15 per cent. on an examination on the League of Nations."

As it finally stood, the Lodge substitute for Article X. represented the result of long consideration by the Republican leaders, in which Senators Lodge and Watson are understood to have had the advice of Elihu Root.

ASQUITH DEPLORES AMERICA'S ABSENCE

But Says It Is Inconceivable That We Should Stay Outside the League.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 12.—H. H. Asquith, speaking at the dinner of the League of Nations Union tonight, said that one feature of the international situation which was not wholly satisfactory was the fact that the United States was not a constituent member of the League. He said that to his eyes, and he supposed to the eyes of most others, so long as America was not a participating member of the counsels of the League it must continue to bear a fragmentary and, indeed, almost lopsided aspect.

So far as he could judge, he said, the vast majority of the people of the United States were in sympathy with the purpose and spirit of the League. He could never forget that at perhaps, the most critical moment in the fortunes of the greatest struggle that had ever been waged it was the United States that threw the whole of its resources into the scale on the side of humanity and freedom. Now that right and justice had won the war, he said, it is inconceivable that America would leave the rest of the world in jeopardy, for that would be too great a calamity.

CONFERENCE GRANTS HUNGARY EASIER TERMS

Treaty Newly Agreed Upon Makes Economic but No Territorial Concessions.

LONDON, March 12.—A new Hungarian Peace Treaty has been definitely agreed upon by the Peace Conference and placed in the hands of a Drafting Committee, which has gone to Paris. It is expected that the treaty will be completed within a week.

The territorial terms against which Hungary protested so vigorously remain unchanged, but various economic concessions have been granted.

It is stated that in re-framing the economic clauses, particularly regarding the reparations to be demanded, the Conference took a much more lenient attitude than prevailed in Paris. The Conference is represented as being influenced by the recent trend of events, which prompted its economic conclusions and caused it to deal with the treaty from a changed point of view.

The completion of the Hungarian document leaves the Conference at liberty to deal exclusively with the perplexing Turkish Treaty, which was discussed today at a two-hour session. Various suggestions for a settlement of the Cilician and Armenian problems were considered without a decision being reached, as far as was announced.

GERMANS FRAME BILLS FOR NAMING PRESIDENT

One Provides for Election by Direct Vote and Requires an Absolute Majority.

LONDON, Saturday, March 13.—The London Times correspondent in Berlin says it is understood that the draft of the bill for the new Presidential election, which will reach the National Assembly in a few days, provides for the election of the President by direct vote. An absolute majority, according to the bill, would be necessary for election. Failing this, the five highest candidates would be submitted for a second ballot, and the candidate thus securing the most votes would be elected.

There is still strong opposition to election by direct vote, the correspondent adds, and the Social Democrats are reintroducing their bill to amend the Constitution so that the President shall be elected by the Reichstag and that a two-thirds majority shall be necessary to amend the Constitution. Such a change, it is pointed out, would have a decided effect on the chances of von Hindenburg's election, and the Presidency would become an electioneering object at the Autumn elections for the Reichstag.

KERENSKY REVEALS CZAR'S POLISH PLAN

Says France and England Agreed to Annexation of Austrian and Prussian Lands.

HE RECEIVED THE REPLY

Declares for Continued War on the Soviet, but Wants Only Russians in the Struggle.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 12.—Sensational revelations were made by Kerensky at a lecture yesterday on "Russia and the Allies." As he spoke Russian the French press appears to have missed the salient features. Anyway nothing thrilling was published today in the newspapers.

Kerensky declared that in the last days of the Czarist régime there was a conference of the Czar, Lord Milner for England, and M. Doumer for France.

Discussing the peace terms the Frenchman said France wanted the Sarre Valley in absolute ownership and an indefinite military occupation of the left bank of the Rhine. The others agreed. Then the Czar said Russia wanted all of Poland, including the Austrian and Prussian sections, despite his promise to accord autonomy. Milner agreed, but the Frenchman said he must consult his Government.

Before the French answer reached Russia the Czar fell, but when it did come to Kerensky, as head of the Russian Revolutionary Government, it was affirmative.

The announcement is said to have created a tremendous sensation among Polish journalists present, who at once cabled verbatim reports. It is no secret that Kerensky is very dissatisfied with the Allies for their unwillingness to agree to his idea for settling the Russian problem, and this revelation seems a gratuitous attempt to embarrass the French and British by way of revenge.

Kerensky places much of the blame for the present situation in Russia on allied policy in the past, which was based on a misunderstanding of the Russian people. All that the foreign powers did, he says, was to unite the Russians, who preferred even the Bolshevist regime to foreign interference. Only the Russian people themselves could or ever will overthrow the government of Lenin and Trotzky, he adds.

"Recognition of the Soviets," Kerensky declared, "whether implicit or avowed, will never be considered by other Russians as legalizing their position. We will continue to fight against their dictatorship in order to make a free democracy, just as we fought against Czarism with all the means in our power. But they will be Russian means. Even among the non-Bolshevist Russians there is profound irritation against any foreign interference and a policy which would reduce Russia to the limits of before the reign of Peter the Great. The only help the Allies can give is by raising the blockade and, though it has been done almost too late, giving to the country the means of reconstituting its life."

Kerensky denies that the political doctrine of Bolshevism has any hold on the Russian people.

"It was born of misery and will disappear in misery," he declares.

"It is the result of the momentary paralysis of all the vital resources of the country, shut off from the rest of the world."

He admits that all the economic organizations and the co-operatives are now under control of the Soviets, but he says that if means of transport can be re-established important stocks for revictualing the Russian cities and the rest of Europe will be found. When once that is done he has complete confidence that the Russian people will be able themselves to shake off the Bolshevist yoke.

NEW WAGE DEMANDS EMBARRASS AUSTRIA

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, March 11.—The giddy whirl of inflated currency, increased wages and higher prices goes on, and it is likely to receive added impetus. Negotiations are now proceeding between the Austrian Government and organizations representing civil servants and other State employes regarding the claims made by the latter for increased salaries. These organizations demand for the lowest grade official a minimum salary of 24,000 kronen yearly. That would be nearly $4,800 in normal times. Now $140 in gold would buy so much Austrian paper money.

The Government, while wishing to retain the present nominal salaries, is prepared to double the existing allowance for the increased cost of living and make an allowance in respect of children and is also willing to grant a yearly increase of 1,000 kronen for each employe who has a wife. These allowances, it is estimated, would bring the lowest grade salaries to 18,000 kronen yearly and would involve the State in an added expenditure of 1,000,000,000 kronen—and this on top of the fact that at the end of February it was officially estimated that the deficit on the currency budget amounted then to practically 9,000,000,000 kronen.

The State employes are no doubt justified in their demands, inasmuch as the cost of living is steadily increasing, but the whole matter throws light upon the course affairs are taking here. Whatever the result of the negotiations may be, it is certain that the Government's expenditure must be increased by 1,000,000,000 kronen on a budget already heavily in arrears of income.

To cover the increased expenditure the Government proposes increased charges for all State services, and also for tobacco, which is a Government monopoly; but the ultimate resource is more likely to be found in a fresh issue of notes from the printing press, with resultant increased depreciation of currency.

And what is this civil service on which this increased expenditure is to be made? It is a body of some 220,000 officials employed by the State, the total number of officials of all sorts in Austria being roundly estimated at 500,000. No official figures of the number employed are available, but every department says it is under-staffed. Nevertheless, the figure of 500,000 represents roughly one-twelfth of the total population of the new and reduced Austria. With the State employes' wives and dependents counted, it is probable that one-sixth of the population has to live out of State wages and salaries.

What wonder, then, that the Government bargains for an increase in working hours from six to eight a day? What wonder that Austria is regarded as the craziest State in existence?

WOULD CANCEL WAR DEBTS.

Lord Fisher, Former British Sea Head, Calls Them Price of Blood.

LONDON, Saturday, March 13.—Baron Fisher, former First Sea Lord, writes to The London Times advocating the wiping out of international debts. He says:

"This last portentous war, probably altering the whole face of the earth—and certainly establishing a new community of nations on a basis only conceivable by apostolic Socialists—was waged against a military tyranny that would have stamped out freedom and established war as the only god to worship.

"All nations spent their best blood, and only by God's providence—and not by their own arm—did they win. When each country demands of another repayment in cash for what was spent in the common cause it has the aspect of the price of blood and looks as if we are setting a valuation on those millions of young souls who sacrificed their lives for freedom and not for cash.

"Cannot all these international debts be wiped out? England will lose most. Let her lead, and, like that great similitude written for our example, say to all, moved by compassion, 'I forgive thee all thy debts.'"

FRIENDLY INQUIRY ON WILSON CHARGE

French Representations as to "Militarism" Reference Are in This Form, It Is Said.

TAKEN UP BY JUSSERAND

Foch Denies He Opposes League of Nations—London Paper Defends France.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Officials and diplomats in a position to know the facts were silent again today when asked regarding the representations made to the State Department by the French Government through Ambassador Jusserand regarding President Wilson's declaration in his recent letter to Senator Hitchcock that a militaristic party which, throughout the sessions of the Peace Conference at Paris "was seeking to gain ascendency in the counsels of France," although defeated then, is "in control now."

Ambassador Jusserand refused to comment on the dispatches from Paris telling of the instructions sent to him by the French Foreign Office. Acting Secretary of State Polk also refused to discuss the matter. At the White House Private Secretary Tumulty was equally silent.

It is learned, however, that the matter has been taken up by the French Government with the Washington Government through Ambassador Jusserand. An intimation was obtained today that the representations took the form of a "friendly inquiry" rather than that of a "protest."

French diplomatic officials would not say what, if any, steps had been taken under the instructions received. It could not be learned whether the inquiries made by the French Government have been submitted to the State Department in the form of a written communication or have been the subject of oral conversations between Ambassador Jusserand and Acting Secretary Polk.

The French Embassy today gave out a denial by Marshal Foch of special cablegrams from Paris published in the United States, saying that the Marshal was opposed to the League of Nations.

Tardieu Declares Big Army Needed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 11.—André Tardieu, in the Petit Parisien, writes:

"We have no business mixing in American internal affairs, but when as an incident of that battle judgment is uttered against French policy we have the right to be heard."

Then M. Tardieu devotes himself to arguing that the fact that France keeps a big army does not mean that she is militaristic or imperialistic. He says:

"Certain Americans, perhaps, find French imperialism in the assertion that the French effectives under the flag are more numerous today than before the war. Our effectives are not more numerous, but about the same as before the war. With 1,400,000 killed, 740,000 mutilated and 3,000,000 wounded, 57 per cent. of our men between 19 and 34 year of age slaughtered, who more than France would like to reduce its army?

But disarmament supposes certain conditions. Clemenceau and Bourgeois proposed to the Peace Conference to give the League of Nations an efficious means of maintaining peace. If these recommendations were three times repulsed, it is not our fault. Article X. of the treaty of Versailles and the treaty of military guarantee were offered us in place of the securities we asked.

"The affairs of American internal politics have put everything in question. President Wilson is not responsible for that and every one knows he wants the treaty ratified, but the delay of six months and all this uncertainty are not the fault of France.

"A campaign of revision which recalls the worst days of the Peace Conference ten months ago attacks our guarantees. True, we have many men under arms, but, heavy as the burden may be, we shall bear it without weakening until the engagements of Versailles are in the way of execution."

London Paper Criticises Wilson.

LONDON, March 12.—President Wilson's charge of imperialism against France, contained in his letter to Senator Hitchcock early this week, has moved The Morning Post to take up the cudgels in favor of France.

The newspaper cites Mr. Wilson's present criticisms and his appeal to Italians over the head of Premier Orlando last summer as showing that, "under the impulse of his lofty ideals, the American President is almost as impatient of the constitutional governments of modern European democracies as he is impatient of his own Senate."

"Mr. Wilson's slight to France," the newspaper continues, "is particularly disturbing when one remembers the moving passages in which he recorded America's appreciation of what France suffered in the cause of human freedom. Americans and Englishmen will understand the amazement of France that the same voice which described her as the sentinel of liberty should now accuse her of being saddled with the same kind of chauvinistic government to overthrow which she sacrificed a million of her sons."

Contending that there are many indications of the spirit of aggression and revenge rising in Germany, and dismissing the League of Nations as being "almost as effective a barrier against German aggression as the International Postal Union," the newspaper says:

"The American nation, a chivalrous comrade in arms and an old friend, will realize that France, which in Mr. Wilson's admirable phrase formed the dividing line between democracy and tyranny, cannot afford to take risks."

GERMAN NOTE ASKS AN END OF ARRESTS

Demands That Germans Still Held for War Offenses Be Surrendered by Allies.

BERLIN, March 11.—The German Chargé d'Affaires in London has handed to Premier Lloyd George a note regarding the Entente extradition list, it was announced today.

After asserting that the Imperial Court will be guided only by considerations of justice and will conduct an impartial inquiry, the note demands that the arrest of Germans in the occupied territories on charges similar to those enumerated in the extradition list shall cease, and that those arrested shall be delivered to German courts.

The release of Germans who for similar reasons have been detained in war prison camps also is asked for. The note finally demands that the Allies abandon the reservation regarding their right to try for crimes committed during the war any Germans not mentioned in the list if encountered on allied territory, saying that incidents arising out of the war should be consigned to oblivion with the advent of peace.

Otherwise, the note says, a restoration of normal relations between the different nationalities is hardly conceivable and that the German Government, on its part, will be obliged to take measures with a view to the expiation of punishable acts committed during the war against Germans by allied subjects.

The note says the extradition lists have been submitted to the Supreme State's Attorney at the Imperial Court in Leipsic, so that the requisite measures may be taken in accordance with the law for the prosecution of war offenses. It explains the terms of the bill passed to supplement this law, and says the prescriptions in it give every conceivable guarantee for an exhaustive, impartial inquiry. It is added that the German Government's attitude toward all the Allies' reservations therefore is manifest.

GERMANY PROTESTS PLEBISCITE ORDERS

BERLIN, March 12.—The Government has made an emphatic protest to the Peace Conference and to the Interallied Commission for the plebiscite territories in Upper Silesia, West Prussia and East Prussia against a series of decrees issued by the commission, which Germany contends will interfere largely with the judicial organization and procedure in the districts concerned.

It also is contended that the decrees contravene the stipulations of the Peace Treaty.

COPENHAGEN, March 12.—The first shipload of voters from Denmark was enthusiastically received at Flensburg, Slesvig, on Thursday, where excitement is increasing with the approach of Sunday, the polling day in the plebiscite which is to determine whether Slesvig is to remain German or become Danish. Three more shiploads of voters left Copenhagen today for Flensburg.

The German technical advisers in Flensburg have withdrawn their resignations in consequence of the International Commission's having rescinded its prohibition against the display of German or Danish flags on private houses.

NOSKE NIPS PLOT FOR A REVOLUTION

Army Captain and the Head of Fatherland Party Arrested as Principals.

TRIED TO CORRUPT TROOPS

Apparent Plan to Use Prince Joachim Incident to Cause Rising.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, March 12.—Two important arrests were ordered last night by War Minister Noske, those of Captain Pabst Vonohain and Dr. Wolgang Kapp. It is stated they were arrested on suspicion of attempting a reactionary revolution, having tried to gain the co-operation of military bodies and persons for their plans.

These plans were far-reaching, aiming at nothing less than the overthrow of the Government by force.

The prospective trial and probable imprisonment of a Hohenzollern Prince for insulting French officers at the Hotel Adlon was regarded a splendid opportunity for opening hostilities against the republic. Captain Pabst Vonohain is said to have approached several of Noske's officers whose monarchist sympathies he took for granted and outlined a plan by which Prince Joachim was to be liberated and the Government surprised and compelled to fly or even surrender.

Vonohain doubtless found some influential officers willing to co-operate immediately or after the first success gained, and this may also be true, to a lesser extent, regarding the rank and file. But the "Republican League of Officers" happened to hear of the conspiracy and informed Noske, who declares that it will be suppressed without regard to past services. This threat is intelligible when it is remembered that Captain Pabst Vonohain was the organizer of the Sharpshooters' Division of Cavalry Guards, which in January, 1919, defended Berlin and the Government against the Spartacides and anarchy.

Later, when Vonohain found that there was no chance for him and his monarchist friends to return to rule, he is supposed to have negotiated with the Spartacide leaders for organizing a Red army which he may have hoped could ultimately be used for monarchist schemes. When Noske heard of this Vonohain pretended that he had only entered into negotiations to learn the Spartacide plans, but he was sufficiently compromised so that he was dropped from the army.

Dr. Kapp is a veteran reactionary leader. He held important offices under the old régime and was a member of the Reichstag. He helped to found and has been President of the Fatherland Party.

Vorwärts published yesterday a long list of monarchist intrigues and demonstrations against the republic which had occurred within two weeks. It is thought the reactionaries regarded Prince Joachim's trial as the psychological moment for an outbreak and counter-revolution.

BERLIN, March 12 (Associated Press).—The German Government has discovered a revolutionary plot organized by a reactionary clique, which also has been endeavoring to corrupt the troops.

The public security forces and the Reichswehr have been confined to barracks in readiness for an emergency.

Die Freiheit asserts that General von Luettwitz, commander of the first Reichswehr group, is implicated in the plot.

ENTENTE MISSION DRIVEN FROM BREMEN

Members Attacked by Crowd as They Leave City After Unsuccessful Visit.

PARIS, March 12.—The Entente Military Mission, which went recently to Bremen on official business and was attacked by a crowd when leaving the barracks after preliminary negotiations with the German officers there, was ultimately obliged to leave the city without having accomplished the purposes of its visit, according to advices from Berlin.

The Entente officers were the object of a fresh demonstration on their departure, the reports state, a crowd gathering before their hotel, breaking the glass in the windows of the automobiles conveying the party and displaying so much hostility that the German authorities were compelled to send a strong escort to accompany the mission to the railway station.

The Council of Ambassadors will hold a session tomorrow under the Presidency of Premier Millerand. A report on the situation, created by the recent attempts on the persons of the Allied Commissioners in Germany, will be examined.

WASHINGTON PLAN FOR SOVIET TRADE

which quoted M. Krassin, Russian Soviet Commissioner of Ways and Communication, as saying:

"It is nonsense to talk of trading with Russian co-operatives or people, when the Government is ignored. The popular idea in England that trade with co-operatives is possible is based upon a misapprehension as to the relation of the co-operatives and the State. The co-operatives are part of the Government's economic organization, and are the most important instrument of distribution."

According to the same dispatch M. Goukoffsky, chief of the Soviet commercial mission at Reval, stated that he was at present the sole authority outside of Russia empowered to sign contracts with co-operatives or Soviets.

A Bolshevist mission which includes M. Krassin and M. Litvinoff is to represent the co-operatives in Europe. According to a recent report, M. Litvinoff is now chief delegate of the Russian co-operative societies.

CHARGES LLOYD GEORGE DICKERS WITH REDS

Pertinax Says Premier's Agent Is Talking Peace Terms with Litvinoff.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 12.—The Echo de Paris will publish the following article by Pertinax tomorrow morning:

"The League of Nations will meet Saturday morning to name a commission of inquiry to tell us what we ought to believe and ought not to believe about the Bolsheviki. The principle of this inquiry has been admitted by the Supreme Council in London. Premier Lloyd George has recommended such a measure in order to lead the Allies little by little to reopen not only commercial but also political relations with the Soviets. He is now trying to hurry on this evolution.

"In the original text of the economic memorandum there were phrases stipulating that the revolutionary Government at Moscow should be recognized immediately in the interest of economic reconstruction of Europe. As Premier Millerand had the good sense to suppress this clause, his colleague in London is anxious to re-establish his position with the Labor Party and without doubt is going to get back on to the same road.

"He set to work without waiting for the return of the Krassine mission, which was already on its way to London. Under the circumstances it is difficult to imagine that Mr. O'Grady, who is at present at Palo, near Vitburg, is talking to Litvinoff only about repatriation of prisoners. In reality a treaty of peace between Great Britain and the Moscow Soviet is being discussed. The British Labor Member of Parliament has handed to Litvinoff a memorandum setting forth the wishes of his Government. He has asked him to what extent the disarmament of Russia and abstinence from Bolshevist propaganda in allied countries will be carried out and has obtained only unsatisfactory replies.

"The people's commissaires are unwilling to demobilize their army except in proportion to the demobilization in allied countries. They state that they are willing to abstain from interfering in the affairs of other countries, but they urge as a fundamental principle of their agreement free communication with the workers of other countries.

"Among other questions pressed has been the cession to Great Britain of a complete monopoly in platinum. But in all the dealings commercial matters have occupied second place, though later they may be of the most importance.

"In order to bring matters further to completion the British Prime Minister has completed his work of pushing the small neighboring States into the arms of the Soviets, some of the representatives of these countries have received from him advice which strongly resembles instructions. His success is complete. Before the Soviets a sauve qui peut has set in.

"We pray that Lloyd George will study the treaty which Esthonia has just made with Russia and find, as he must, in its secret clauses the creation of a telegraphic centre which will allow Moscow to exchange messages with foreign countries. Without doubt he will conclude from his examination that Red Russia is preparing to recover and perhaps extend the former domains of the Czar and that thus far our concessions have only added to their power."

Tokio Favors Trading with Russia.

TOKIO, March 6.—It is understood that the Advisory Council yesterday recommended delay in replying to the Russian Soviet Government's overtures for peace, but gave approval to the plan for reopening of trade with the Russian co-operative societies and for the evacuation of Siberia.

POLES CONSIDERING PEACE WITH SOVIET

President, Premier and Foreign Minister Issue Statement, but Public Is Divided.

WARSAW, March 7 (Associated Press).—Poland is going ahead with serious consideration of a reasonable peace with Soviet Russia, notwithstanding reports to the contrary, says a statement just issued, signed by President Pilsudski, Premier Skulski and Stanislas Patek, Minister of Foreign Affairs.

The conference opening here Monday is the first organized effort among the newly created free States to get together and answer the latest peace note of the Russian Soviets. Peace advocates contend that Poland should meet the Bolsheviki at least half way in steps leading toward peace negotiations. Many diplomatists say Poland cannot afford to ignore the Supreme Council's advice, while, on the other hand, there are those who contend that Poland is being driven to make peace against her will.

Chief among the anti-peace arguments is a statement that should peace be concluded Poland would be flooded with Bolshevist propaganda, and the price of everything would increase. Esthonia is cited as an example, it being said that after a peace agreement had been made there the prices of essentials increased, in some cases as much as 600 per cent. This, it is said, was due to the sale of clothing and certain foods of which Russia was in great need. Another argument is that Poland would be deluged with rubles, further depreciating Polish currency.

Observers here believe that Poland will take a firm stand in demanding recognition of the frontier of 1772, with independence for nations which belonged to the former Russian Empire.

OFFERED 100,000 MEN TO COERCE TURKS

when Turkey was militarily humbled, the present crisis would not have arisen.

Reports are current that Bolshevist activities, directed against the Allies, have cropped out in co-operation with the Turkish nationalists and in nearer India. It is said that specially trained Bolshevist propagandists have installed printing presses in Afghanistan, where pamphlets, written in the vernacular, with a view to undermining British authority in India and stirring up troubles on the Afghan border, are being produced.

Commenting on Earl Curson's statement The Yorkshire Post says:

"In the Near East a religious controversy means bloodshed. We cannot but regret that a number of distinguished Americans should have chosen this dangerous moment for issuing a manifesto favoring a 'bag and baggage' policy.

"It is, of course, no business of Europe's whether America decides to take part in Near Eastern affairs, but the course of pressing a particular settlement on Europe and refusing to help give effect thereto are surely unfair to Europe, and it is impossible not to accept the responsibilities involved in its pursuit."

In an editorial on the same subject The Liverpool Post says:

"It is no use for Earl Curson obliquely to blame America. The Peace Congress was still effective. Though President Wilson had gone home, America was still represented on it. If there is any fault it indisputably lies at the door of the Peace Congress, whose dilatoriness, indecision and internal rivalry have given the Turk his inevitable opportunity. But that is past, and it is now for the Peace Congress to show the Turk that it intends to be master of the situation."

Turks Unmoved by Demonstrations.

CONSTANTINOPLE, March 11 (Associated Press).—Numerous dispatches from London and Paris announcing that the Supreme Council has decided to take drastic action at Constantinople to prevent the killing of Christians and enforce peace terms more radical than were contemplated before the trouble at Marash have been received with apparent indifference by the Turks, the only effect being the designation of a slightly changed Cabinet.

Turkish officials are watching without any evidences of concern the movement in London to force them out of Europe, and the printing of a dispatch reporting that President Wilson would insist that the Sultan must leave Constantinople caused scarcely a ripple.

The allied naval displays in the Bosporus and the British and French naval parades in the streets of Constantinople are watched indifferently by the public. The Black, Marmora and Aegean Seas are alive with allied warships ready to co-operate with land forces in the defense of the Straits and enforcement of a blockade should such action be taken. The British have four battleships of the Iron Duke class, four cruisers of the Cardiff class, six destroyers of the Steadfast class, two destroyers of the Tomahawk class and five superdreadnoughts of the Revenge class within easy reach of the Straits, with several other warships convenient to the Golden Horn or the Bosporus.

The Italians have two battleships, one cruiser and two destroyers in the vicinity. The French have two modern battleships, two destroyers, two cruisers, two sloops and one transport; the Greeks the battleship Kilkis (formerly the U. S. S. Idaho) and two destroyers, and the Americans six destroyers, the cruiser Galveston and several small craft.

Senate Resolution Against Turks.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Senator Sherman, Republican of Illinois, introduced a resolution today recommending that the Peace Conference abolish Turkish rule "at Constantinople and over Christians everywhere." The resolution also recommended that Northern Epirus, the Dodecanesus and the western coast of Asia Minor from the Gulf of Adramyti to the Bay of Macri, be turned over to Greece. It was referred to the Foreign Relations Committee.

FEISAL DISTURBING FACTOR.

London Sees New Complications in His Ambition to Reign in Syria.

LONDON, March 12.—A fresh complication has been added to the Eastern situation by the news that Prince Feisal, son of the King of the Hedjaz, has been proclaimed King of Syria. Prince Feisal has displayed a strong inclination to play his own hand ever since the British Government made a treaty with him. He has also shown himself strong for self-determination for his people. The recent Pan-Syrian Congress proclaimed as one of the principal planks of its platform that Syria be an independent State, with Prince Feisal on the throne. Hitherto that movement had not been taken seriously here.

An invitation was sent a short time ago to the Prince to pay another visit to Europe and confer with the Supreme Council. He was urged to take no action until the Supreme Council had passed upon his case. The upshot of the matter, it is generally conceded, appears to be that the Syrian people plan to run their own affairs and are bent upon self-determination.

The next move, apparently, is for the British and French Governments, or for the Supreme Council, to decide what shall be the attitude toward the new nominal kingdom and its King.

HELFFERICH GUILTY, ERZBERGER REBUKED

Berlin Court Fines Ex-Treasury Chief 300 Marks and Costs of Libel Suit.

FAILS TO PROVE ONE POINT

But Is Upheld on Four Others—Erzberger Used Office for Gain, Says Court.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, March 12.—Dr. Karl Helfferich was fined 300 marks and costs yesterday because he failed to prove one point in his allegations against Mathias Erzberger, namely, the latter's intention to denounce Helfferich to the Entente. All of the other allegations the presiding Judge, Baumbach, after seven weeks' trial, considers proved.

Announcing this sentence yesterday the Judge epitomized these allegations as follows: First, mixing politics with business; second, untruthfulness; third, impropriety; fourth, political activity to Germany's disadvantage.

The cases of the Thyssen and Berger interests, which firms Erzberger took care of in Parliament while at the same time accepting his salary as member of the Board of Directors, come under first and third points. Erzberger's transaction in Hamburg-Amerika Line shares, which he bought at a low rate before it was decided that the company would be compensated for the ships delivered to the Entente, and Erzberger's speculation in a certain invention afterwards sold to Sweden, according to the Judge, justify the fourth point.

Untruthfulness he states to be almost a habit with Erzberger, who, in the Judge's opinion, should have informed Dr. Bethmann Hollweg of his intention to overthrow him instead of leading him to believe he was his friend. The Judge also regards it as proof of habitual untruthfulness if Erzberger suddenly, without warning, sprung his attack on the unrestricted U-boat war and kept Dr. Bethmann Hollweg in darkness regarding the details of the peace resolution of 1917.

Of course this result of the trial, though no other was expected in view of the outspoken reactionary attitude of the Judge and the Public Prosecutor, will finish, it is said, Erzberger's career as a member of the Government for the present. But though he has been no angel and has surely committed many acts incompatible with the highest ethics, he will most likely be returned again to Parliament by his Suabian constituency, for if he sinned he did so mostly unconsciously and under the old régime where his sins had precedents in the highest circles.

The Centrist Party will meet March 18 to discuss Erzberger's political future, and its astute leaders will hardly be influenced by the opinion of reactionary bureaucrats like Judge Baumbach, whose manner from the beginning of the trial, it is felt here, only too clearly showed partiality for Helfferich.

The reactionary press openly declares Helfferich's victory a monarchist triumph over the republic. They promise many more and seek to identify Erzberger's alleged corruption with the new system. Some predict that Erzberger's removal from the Government will have the effect of increasing the world's confidence in Germany's solvency. "Down goes Erzberger, up goes the mark," they say.

BERLIN, March 12 (Asociated Press).—Although judgment was given by the court against Dr. Helfferich, the verdict was liberally tinctured with condemnation of Erzberger, which charged that the defendant had not only proved the former Vice Chancellor untrustworthy, but guilty of using his official Parliamentary position for furtherance of his private gain, notably with respect to the purchase of Hamburg-American Steamship Company shares.

The court, in its opinion, held that while Dr. Helfferich ostensibly was guided by patriotic motives in his fight against Herr Erzberger, he nevertheless permitted himself to be influenced by hatred of him.

George Cohan's Daughter Arrives.

Among the theatrical folk arriving from England yesterday on the White Star liner Adriatic was Miss Georgette Cohan, who was met by her father, George M. Cohan. Miss Cohan said she had played "Peter Pan" in London, and that Sir James M. Barrie had spoken well of her performance. Maude Odell, who first came to this country in 1909 as England's perfect young woman, arrived on the same steamer on her way to Los Angeles to work in moving pictures. Another passenger was Thomas C. Dagnall, manager of the Criterion Theatre in London, who was accompanied by his wife and Sydney Blow, the playwright.

GOMPERS ATTACKS U. S. SUPREME COURT

Declares Dividend Decision Means That $100,000,000 Burden Falls on the People.

Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer and the United States Supreme Court were attacked by Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, in his address at Carnegie Hall last night at the meeting held to welcome Benjamin Schlesinger, President of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, on his return from a study of industrial and economic conditions in Europe.

Mr. Gompers attacked Mr. Palmer for his use of the injunction in the coal strike and the Supreme Court for the decisions on stock dividends and on the United States Steel Corporation.

"One right that ought to be inalienable," he said, "is the right of workers to stop work for any purpose at any time they wish or think they ought to stop. That right is an inherent constitutional right. For the Government to deny it is the beginning of the disintegration of democracy and of the representative form of government. Whether this action is taken by the Attorney General or by the so-called Railroad bill matters little. In either case it is the beginning of the end of the representative form of government.

"To require a worker by law to work when he does not want to work is to put the Government in the position of supporting a slave owner. The distinction between a slave and a free man is that a slave must work when his owner says so and a free man may quit when he wishes. The free man owns himself. He has the right to suffer if he refuses to work."

Speaking of recent decisions of the Supreme Court, he said:

"One of these decisions gives the blessing of sanctity to the Steel Trust and the other makes it necessary for $100,000,000 additional to be paid by the people because the stock dividends are not taxable, but that is another story, the story of the invasion of the people's rights by the judicial tribunals of this country."

Mr. Gompers said that the hope of the world's freedom and democracy was in the labor movement. He said that the progress of labor was not revolutionary, but was designed to make each day one of improved conditions for labor. He made a plea for unity in the labor movement, saying:

"Big as this country is, it is not big enough for rivalry and antagonism. We need unity of purpose and unity of action.

"We cannot pass a law for the benefit of the unions and of labor unless that law is better for all the people. Our fight is for all the people and for all labor, whether that labor is union or non-union."

Telling of his visit to European countries, including Germany, Austria and Poland, Mr. Schlesinger declared that all nations ought to recognize the present Russian Soviet Government and open trade relations so that Russian supplies might be used for the relief of the destitute in the mid-European regions. Unless this recognition were forthcoming from the present European Governments, he said, "the people would have to revolt and establish governments that would recognize the Soviets." Answering questions after the meeting, Schlesinger said he referred to the governments in Austria and Germany.

Remarking that his audience of 5,000 was for the most part Jewish and that the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union was entirely Jewish in membership, Mr. Schlesinger said he had found that the reports of pogroms and suffering among the Jews in Poland were not exaggerated. He suggested that a fund be made up here before the Jewish holidays for relief in Poland until Summer.

LOWDEN MEN ATTACK WOOD.

Say He Is Presented as "Doctor" in the West and "General" in the East.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The managers for Governor Lowden launched another attack upon General Wood tonight. A statement issued through Representative Frank L. Smith, manager of the Lowden headquarters here, said:

"The managers of General Wood's campaign have recently complained that certain Republicans who are unfriendly to the General's candidacy have said that the General's interests are suffering because he must necessarily make his campaign in the uniform of the army. They graciously absolve Governor Lowden of any personal responsibility for these reports, but seek to intimate that some of the Governor's supporters are the responsible parties. Let me say emphatically that this is a type of politics to which the Lowden managers have not resorted.

"If such a regrettable statement has been made by any one, it can only be attributed to the confusing fact that the managers of General Wood's campaign in the West speak of him only as Doctor Wood, and display only those photographs which show him in civilian attire, while in the East he is designated always as General Wood, and his military photographs are used to the exclusion of all others. It is possible that General Wood, far from being handicapped by his uniform, which is honored by every one, is suffering from the inconsistencies of his own managers."

TIE UP WATCHMAN AND STEAL $421,150

11 ROBBERIES IN CHICAGO

Cafe "Shot Up" in Wild Western Fashion—Theatre Manager Killed While Counting Receipts.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 12.—Stocks and bonds, which the owners say are negotiable and worth $421,150, were stolen shortly after 1 o'clock this morning, when three masked safe crackers bound and gagged the night watchman in the Baker Building, at 1,520 Chestnut Street, and then made their way by the roof route to the Weightman Building, next door, where they drilled two safes in investment offices on the seventh and eighth floors.

The victims of the robbery, declared to be the most daring in the history of the Police Department, are the Hydro-Electric Finance Corporation, with offices at 812-814 Weightman Building, and the Ocean City Electric Company, with offices in the Baker Building.

The safe in the office of the Hydro corporation was drilled and the bar holding the lock bars was knocked out, but the safe in the other office was neatly drilled, and then a small charge of nitro-glycerine, just sufficient to shatter the combination, was used. Both jobs were the work of expert, old-time cracksmen, according to Detective Captain Alfred I. Souder, who visited the scenes today.

Some of the strangest features in connection with the robbery were the shutting down of the lighting system in the Weightman Building and the apparent knowledge that the yeggmen must have had before hand that such a thing was to be done; and a daring leap on a rope between the two buildings.

The changing of a fuse and repairs in the Central Power House of the Philadelphia Electric Company, which supplies power to the building, put all the lights out and shut down the elevator.

Because of this the negro watchman in the building remained on the first floor all night instead of making his hourly visits to each floor, and the thieves were apparently aware of the fact.

The watchman, who was bound and chloroformed, was C. W. Neill, 60 years old. He has worked for a year as watchman in the Baker Building.

Holdups in Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 12.—Some Chicagoans are approximately $40,000 poorer as the result of eleven robberies by as many gangs of bandits during the last twenty-four hours.

One of the raids involved the "shooting up" of a café in wild Western fashion and the wounding of a bystander.

Apart from this series of robberies, William Mills, manager of the Crawford Theatre, at West Madison Street and Crawford Avenue, was shot and instantly killed late last night while counting the evening's receipts in the box office, but whether this was an act of revenge or was inspired by an intent to rob has not been determined. The murder was perpetrated by one of two men, both of whom escaped.

The robbery victims were: Weinberg Brothers, wholesale tailors, 9,094 Commercial Avenue, robbed of woolens and clothing worth $26,000. This place was cleaned out of everything except the fixtures.

Burroak Inn, 119th and Wood Streets, raided by gunmen, who shot at the patrons and stole $500.

Joseph Hincker, grocer at 603 North Kedzie Avenue, locked in an icebox by thieves, who stole $250.

B. Perlmutter, movie theatre owner, living at 1,515 North Irving Avenue, robbed of $2,500 in money and jewels by holdup men.

Mrs. W. T. Stewart, 5,046 Winchester Avenue, who lost $800 in jewelry to burglars.

V. J. Markych, 748 North Robey Street, who lost jewelry worth $1,800.

Harry Bernstein, 930 Taylor Street, robbed of clothing worth $400.

Sloman & Hochstadter, jewelers, at 9,030 Commercial Avenue, robbed of $1,200 in bonds and jewels.

M. L. Shinn, 157 West Twenty-second Street, who lost $4,800 in clothing.

Emil Long, 1,256 Clyburn Avenue, who lost sweaters worth $1,200.

George R. Wood, 862 Lakeside Place, Secretary and Treasurer of the MacLean Drug Company, who was gagged and robbed in garage. Three robbers took a check for $200, $150 worth of stamps and $75. Then they got away in his auto.

Five bandits in the customary large black limousine raided the most notorious oasis of the south side, the Burr Oak Inn, early this morning. After forcing ten patrons of the place to line up, the robbers made "Dutch" Heitler, brother of the proprietor of the roadhouse, open the cash drawer and escaped from the place after shooting one of the patrons in the hand. The robbers took $500.

Perlmutter was held up in front of his home and robbed of a satchel containing $500, several checks, his watch, valued at $75, and his diamond ring, valued at $2,000.

FRANCE PLANS TO TAX BACHELORS 10 PER CENT.

PARIS, March 11.—Proposals that a supplementary tax of 10 per cent. be levied upon the incomes of bachelors have been approved by the Finance Committee of the Chamber of Deputies, which is framing the new tax legislation.

Under the provisions of the bill a maximum of 40 per cent. may be levied against incomes of more than 1,000,000 francs, this rate being decreased for lower incomes. Wage earners would be required to pay 6 per cent., certain deductions being allowed.

ENJOINS LIBEL ON COUNTESS

English Court Restrains American from Defaming Swedish Singer.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 12.—An injunction restraining Mrs. Sadie Mary Murray of Massachusetts from publishing defamatory statements regarding Christine Nilsson, Dowager Countess Casa de Miranda, operatic singer, once known as the second Swedish nightingale, was granted by Justice Avery today.

Counsel for the Countess said that the defendant, whose maiden name was believed to have been Nelson, had been libelling the Countess by alleging that she was the Countess's illegitimate daughter.

The libels began in 1908, when an American lawyer who represented Mrs. Murray was told the facts and abandoned the case. The next serious attack was in January, 1913, when a letter was written to the Countess's solicitors by another American lawyer.

In November, 1918, said counsel, Mrs. Murray had given a most amazing interview to an American paper. Counsel stated that Mrs. Murray's allegations were entirely false and there was evidence that the Countess never had a child.

BRITISH STUDENTS COMING.

Imperial College Will Send Six to American Universities.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 12.—Six graduates in sciences of British universities will be sent this year to American universities for research work by the Imperial College of Science and Technology. They will hold scholarships partly provided by funds of the Imperial College and partly by private donors, and it is hoped a corresponding number of advanced students from American universities will come over to the Imperial College.

Lord Grey of Fallodon, writing of these scholarships, said:

"It is most desirable that young men of the rising generation who will do much of the public work here and in America in coming years should get to know each others' universities. It will help both countries to realize how much the British and American peoples have in common, not merely in language but in thought and in political views and aspirations."

WOMEN IN BUTLER LEAGUE.

Launch National Organization to Boost President of Columbia.

The "For President Nicholas Murray Butler Women's League" was organized yesterday at a meeting at the Butler headquarters in the Hotel Commodore. It is intended to use this as a nucleus for a woman's organization throughout the country in the campaign to make Dr. Butler the Republican nominee. Officers were elected, as follows:

Executive Chairman—Mrs. John S. Sheppard; Vice Chairmen—Mrs. Charles S. Whitman, Mrs. Everett Hamilton and Mrs. Thomas R. Proctor; Recording Secretary—Mrs. Charles D. Hazen; Corresponding Secretary—Mrs. Gardner Gayler; Treasurer—Mrs. M. V. Hoffman.

WOOD DECRIES ALL RADICAL CHANGES

Declares "Steady!" Should Be the Country's Watchword Following the War.

FOR FIRM FOREIGN POLICY

General Receives Warm Greeting as He Speaks at Five Meetings in Indianapolis.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 12.—Indianapolis gave General Leonard Wood, candidate for the Republican nomination for the Presidency, an enthusiastic welcome today. The day marked the beginning of General Wood's personal campaign for Indiana's thirty delegates to the Republican Convention, and if the reception accorded him is any indication, he has every reason to be pleased with the outlook. He was assured this afternoon by more than seventy-five of his State and county managers that he is gaining strength daily and that there is every reason for the statement that the primaries of May 4 will prove him the choice of Republicans of the Hoosier State.

General Wood made five speeches today, in every instance to audiences that packed the meeting places. He addressed the members of the Marion and Columbia Clubs, both leading Republican organizations; then the State and county managers of his campaign organization in Indiana, next a mass meeting of men and women in the ballroom of the Hotel Claypool. Tonight he spoke in the Masonic Temple before the Past Masters' organization of the State.

In his speeches today, all without notes, General Wood advocated a firm foreign policy that would guarantee American lives and property in Mexico and all other parts of the world.

"The two fundamental qualities in administration," said General Wood, "are, first, to select the ablest men and not be afraid to use them, and, secondly, to be able to co-ordinate their efforts toward a harmonious end. Their work and their success must be yours. There is an old English saying that it is well to remember, 'If you have a watch dog, don't bark yourself,' at least don't bark all the time."

General Wood at the principal meeting, which was in the Masonic Temple, said:

"So far as fighting goes, our part in the World War seems to be over, but we still have the great problems of readjustment which follow all great wars. We are, I am certain, all anxious to have the nation return to a peace basis, and to have our affairs swing back into normal channels. There is considerable to be done, but we can do it easily if we only devote ourselves to the work immediately at hand.

"Steady" the Watchword.

"These are not days for radical changes. If there ever was a time in our national history when the watchword should be 'Steady,' that time is today. Standing with your feet square on the ground, your ideals high and your eyes on God, stand steadfast for these things that are right, for the policies and traditions which we have tested and know to be sound. We want to progress, but we do not want to progress like a whirling dervish. Motion does not necessarily mean progress. It must be motion in the right direction. We want no wild leap in the dark. We went to knew where our feet are planted, whether we are bound, and then go ahead steadily, step by step, like a cautious man on dangerous ground. We cannot afford to slip.

"We want to hold things tight here, we want to build up our business. We cannot do that unless we establish conditions of confidence, and how are we to do that? We must have a Government under the Constitution absolutely, with each department functioning closely within its own limits. We do not want one department of the Government trying to override and drive the others. We want to build up respect for law and order, because that makes for confidence, and confidence helps business, and good business gives you occupied and contented labor, and all these in combination will give you what the world is calling for today, as it never called before—increased production. That is what we want here as the remedy for the high cost of living. We want those plain, homely, substantial principles enunciated and lived up to.

Following a reference to the kind of an army needed by the United States—one, in his opinion, not to exceed at the most 225,000 men—General Wood took up the question of the tariff.

Want a Tariff for Defense.

"We want," he said, "a tariff as a weapon of defense. Some time we may need it as a weapon of offense, but when production all over the world is almost at a standstill the tariff must be fitted to existing conditions. We want a tariff to protect industries which are essential to America and which need protection, not a tariff to protect industries which are artificial and whose protection means adding to the living cost of our people.

"We also we want, and we want it very badly, a budget system. We want an executive budget, and what is that? An executive budget is one prepared by the Chief Executive. Of course, he does not do it by himself. No man's life would be long enough to do that. It is a budget which is presented to the President by the heads of departments, and he, through able assistants, coordinates that budget and presents it in the form of a general estimate, fixing the character of the nation's expenses, and with it gives a statement of the reasons underlying it, a statement of the prospective revenues.

"Congress then takes it, as a body, and proceeds to its proper and orderly consideration.

"Such a budget will kill the tyranny of committees. You know how things are handled today. The Chairman of a committee, for instance, represents the dominant party in Congress. He influences and largely controls his colleagues on that committee, and the result is that the Chairman largely dominates the policy of a great department like that of war, or the navy, or agriculture. With this system of presenting to Congress a concrete budget, you will have an opportunity to get the views of Congress as a whole, and not the views of few committee members, as is the case today."

General Wood argued that members of the Cabinet should be given the right to appear on the floors of Congress for interpolation regarding their administration of their departments, as well as for the purpose of defending their policies.

"We want a strong, self-respecting foreign policy," the General continued, "tolerant, seeking peace, but staunch and true, the protection of our rights and interests. We do not wish to be trouble makers, but we must establish a policy which will insure our standing among nations. We must build up not only a definite foreign policy, but a well defined foreign commercial policy.

"We must protect Americans wherever they live, whether it be in Mexico or China; protect them against any oppression when they maintain themselves within the law of the land in which they reside. The world must understand that it cannot injure American citizens with impunity. To permit it injures the standing of our Government at home and abroad and gives the impression of timidity. A firm and dignified policy will prevent any actions which may lead to serious difficulty.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 12 (Associated Press).—In his speech before Republican leaders at a luncheon at the Columbia Club, General Wood declared fostering of domestic business and world commerce was one of the paramount obligations of the American people and Government.

General Wood advocated careful training of consular officers for all foreign countries, to the offices of which would be attached trained commercial agents. He mentioned particularly the South and Central American and Far Eastern countries, in which he declared the United States had never had such an opportunity to advance its trade relations.

The sale or lease of American shipping built during the war to American firms only, in order that the merchant marine built up might be kept under the American flag, also was urged by the speaker.

General Wood reiterated that he favored adoption of the treaty of peace and the League of Nations covenant with reservations "which absolutely Americanize it" and a "strong, courteous foreign policy" which would include a trade policy.

Hitchcock Is Optimistic.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, March 12.—"I am well satisfied with the situation," said Frank H. Hitchcock, manager of General Wood's Presidential campaign, when leaving for New York today after five days in Chicago smoothing out some of the wrinkles in the original plans. As a result of the various conferences held by Mr. Hitchcock, Wood forces in several Western States have been shifted around with a view to greater efficiency.

Mr. Hitchcock has been in communication by telephone with party leaders who have been his associates in other pre-convention battles, and has much of his old organization working with him.

CALLS NOMINATING PETITIONS ILLEGAL

Senator W. M. Bennett Files Protests in the 11th, 19th and 21st City Districts.

HOOVER CLUB OPENS HERE

Woods Men Get Roseate Reports from Pennsylvania,, Massachusetts and Indiana.

Former Senator William M. Bennett, who is opposing the Republican organization's candidates for delegates-at-large in the interest of Senator Hiram W. Johnson's campaign for the Republican Presidential nomination, yesterday filed protests against the nominating petitions of the regular organization candidates in the Eleventh, Nineteenth and Twenty-first New York City Districts. He maintains that the petitions were illegally prepared.

If in the proceedings before the Board of Elections which are expected to follow the filing of the protests, Bennett succeeds in proving his contention, the names of Chauncey M. Depew, George Cromwell, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Charles D. Hilles, Edward M. Morgan and John J. Lyons may be left off the primary election ballot, leaving only Johnson candidates in these districts.

The protest against the petition in the Eleventh District is based upon the contention that four different petitions were filed, none of which contained the necessary number of signatures required by law. In the aggregate they bear a sufficient number of names, but the protest is on the legality of their individual form.

Protests in 19th and 21st.

Bennett contends that the petitions in the Nineteenth and Twenty-first districts should be declared invalid because many of the signatures are not authenticated and because many groups of names on them were apparently written by the same person. He raises a technical point on the petition in the Nineteenth district by declaring that one part of it is stamped as having been filed at 11:20 P. M. and another part at 11:24 P. M. He maintains that these two parts, filed at different times, constitute two different petitions, and should have been so considered.

Regarding the claim of the Wood managers that they elected the entire eight Wood delegates at the New Hampshire primaries on Tuesday, Angus McSween, campaign manager of Senator Johnson said:

"As far as we know, there had never been any question as to General Wood's getting a solid New Hampshire delegation. That is his own native State. For our part we had not even written a letter to anyone in New Hampshire asking for an opinion regarding the situation there. Senator Johnson will carry California without any question, and will go to the Convention with the twenty-six delegates prepared to support him from beginning to end."

This statement was issued yesterday at the Wood headquarters:

"The 'Wood for President' movement is now under a full head of steam throughout the length and breadth of Pennsylvania, following the organization of a big Leonard Wood League in Philadelphia today. The membership of the Philadelphia organization includes men and women in all walks of life. A strong Leonard Wood League has been crystallizing Wood sentiment in the western part of Pennsylvania for some months. Among the members of the league is Mary Roberts Rinehart, the authoress. The Western Pennsylvania Leonard Wood League is co-operating closely with the Central Pennsylvania League, and it is the purpose of the Philadelphia League to enter into a close working union with all the Wood organizations in the eastern part of the State."

Wood as Second Choice.

The Wood managers are conducting their Pennsylvania campaign on the theory that Governor William C. Sproul should be the unanimous first choice of the delegates, but that General Wood should receive second consideration.

Encouraging reports were received at the Wood headquarters from Indiana. The number of signers to the petitions filing notice of General Wood's candidacy in the Indiana primaries was as follows: Wood, 22,907; Lowden, 1,484; Harding, 1,250, and Johnson, 848.

Governor Allen of Kansas, who has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the Republican nomination, sent this telegram to National Manager Procter yesterday: "Sentiment in New York, New Jersey and Massachusetts is strong for Leonard Wood. I have made a tour of these States and know this to be an outstanding fact."

It was explained yesterday that General Wood at first accepted the invitation to address the Government Club, of which Mrs. George Owens is President, at the Hotel Astor on April 5, but subsequently had to decline because his army duties would prevent his coming East until after April 20.

The "Make Hoover President" Republican Club, which will act as the Eastern national headquarters for the Hoover campaign, established itself yesterday in the Pennsylvania Hotel. The organization is being formed at the request of the California committee which started the Hoover Presidential boom. Ralph Arnold of Los Angeles, Chairman of the National Committee, is temporary Chairman of the New York headquarters, with F. W. Doying in charge. Mr. Doying announced that the organization would immediately become very active throughout the East. Other headquarters will be established throughout the country.

HYLAN'S BADGERING ENDS FARE HEARING

inform you that I shall not participate in any further hearings of your board upon the subject of the affairs of the New York Railways Company. By the same direction the petition filed with your board on Jan. 7, 1920, by Mr. Hedges as receiver of that company is hereby withdrawn. Such further investigation into the affairs of that property as your board may desire to make will not be attended by counsel for the receiver."

The notices of both Mr. Sheffield and of Mr. Garrison merely stated the fact of their withdrawal from the inquiry.

It was the intention of the board to take up the affairs of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company next. The company had gathered data it thought would support its claim for an increased fare.

Mayor Hylan made this comment on the changed situation:

"Corporation Counsel Burr made a request of the New York Railways Company for some very important information never made public before. They promised to produce this next Wednesday. I don't know whether that had anything to do with the withdrawals of the petitions."

Controller Craig said:

"I suppose they are grieved at the suggestion of Borough President Curran of Manhattan that the fare be made 3 or 4 cents, and for that reason decided to withdraw."

President La Guardia of the Board of Aldermen said:

"I am sorry. It may be an unpleasant task, but it is essential that we all should work out a solution of the traction problem."

Curran Takes Fling at Mayor.

Borough President Curran of Manhattan said:

"I don't know why Colonel Stimson has withdrawn, but I don't see why any one should submit to the discourtesies and intentional insults of the Mayor and Controller unless he is compelled to. It is very difficult to be associated with either of them and retain one's self-respect."

No comment was made by Mr. Burr. He is ill with a severe cold.

The intimation in the comment of the Mayor that the New York Railways Company would not take any further interest in the inquiry of the board was because Mr. Stimson had been asked for some important information referred to an incident at the last meeting of the board on Wednesday. Mr. Burr, backed by the insistence of the Mayor and Controller, demanded information relating to the reorganization of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company, the issuance and retirement of the securities of that company and much detail concerning the plan of reorganizing that company into the New York Railways Company.

Mr. Stimson displayed eagerness to furnish the information, but he explained that in gathering some data demanded the services of an expert accountant would be required, that he was without money to employ such services and that the information asked for could be obtained from the records of the Public Service Commission or from the records of the several investigations made in the last twelve years. He referred especially to the Ivins investigation, which lasted nine months, in 1907 and 1908. He said that much of the data could be found in that record.

It was said yesterday that much of the time of the board was wasted in idle talk.

Forest Hills Tenants Meet.

The tenants of the Gardens Apartments at Forest Hills, L. I., who have engaged legal help to fight a 200 per cent. advance in rent, met last night and raised money for the expenses of resisting the landlord. The Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering and other tenant bodies will watch with interest the action that will be brought on Monday in the Supreme Court by Harold G. Aron, a real estate lawyer, of 50 Pine Street. The tenants at their meeting appointed a committee headed by Albert Rohrback to call upon the Mayor within a few days and discuss with him the situation.

Guyon W. Bruce, one of the tenants of the Gardens, said after the meeting that he was hopeful that out of the fight they are making will grow up a co-operative society of tenants all over this city—a body that can make an united defense against extortion and act together to meet situations as they arise in different parts of the city. Already a number of tenant committees in other apartments have communicated with the Forest Hills committee.

The Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering yesterday decided to hold a mass meeting for the discussion of the housing situation. Charles D. Hillys, Chairman, announced that the meeting would be held on the evening of Thursday, March 18, at the Central Opera House, Third Avenue and Sixty-seventh Street. The committee, Mr. Hillys said, had decided to support the Boylan-Donohue bill, advocated by the Central Federation of Labor, which would delegate to the courts the right to determine whether or not rent increases are reasonable.

Wants City to Build Houses.

The Boylan-Donohue Rent Control bill, indorsed by Mayor Hylan, will at best afford only a temporary relief, in the opinion of Alderman Alexander Braunstein of the Bronx.

"The only sane, practical way to bring down rents is to supply more houses," said Alderman Braunstein. "Private enterprise finds it unprofitable to do so. The City of New York will find it unprofitable not to do so. It is up to the City of New York to take over, just as large European cities have done, the business of housing its population."

Alderman Braunstein with his Socialist colleagues in the Board of Alderman introduced a munçipal housing ordinance on Feb. 17 which is now in the Committee of General Welfare waiting further disposition.

ROBBERIES THRILL BROADWAY CROWD

fight, and, although the salesmen in the jewelry store frantically motioned to them to seize the thief, the latter, at a signal from the man who held the onlookers at bay with his revolver, freed himself from Cohen's grasp and, jumping to his feet, ran north on the east side of Broadway to the subway emergency exit in front of Gertner's restaurant, between Thirty-seventh and Thirty-eighth Streets.

The street entrance to the steel stairway leading to the subway level is covered by a sheet of iron about six feet wide and eight feet long. The only way it can be opened is with a hook, which must be attached to a knob below the sidewalk level.

Watched Salesmen Freed.

The second thief evidently changed his mind as to using the subway as a means of escape when he saw about 500 men go in pursuit of his confederate. He mixed in with the crowd and, according to two chauffeurs who had witnessed the robbery, watched two policemen free the imprisoned salesmen in the jewelry store and then casually walked across Broadway and through Thirty-seventh Street in the direction of Seventh Avenue.

Detectives went into the subway in search of the first thief while reserves from the West Thirtieth Street station formed a cordon from the subway exit south to Thirty-sixth Street, a block below the jewelry store. The detectives found a small satchel at the bottom of the steel stairs of the subway exit.

In it were a pair of green goggles and overalls. It is believed the thief expected to use those articles as a disguise, but the excited crowd which followed him caused him to change his mind and hasten along the subway tracks to the Times Square station, where he disappeared in the crowd.

Asked to See $575 Ring.

The jewelry store which was the scene of the second robbery is situated between the Gaiety and Astor Theatres. Albert Anusewitz, manager of the jewelry store, was standing at the end of the row of show cases when a nattily dressed man, who later told the police he was Beryolla Scola, 25 years old, of 133 Alexander Avenue, the Bronx, entered and asked to be shown a diamond ring on display in the store window and which was valued at $575.

Anusewitz got the ring out of the window. Scola was examining it when he said he would like to examine a solitaire diamond ring valued at $2,450, which also was in the window. Just then another young man, who later said he was Vincent De Marco, 20 years old, of 503 East Fifteenth Street, entered the store, and walking to the rear of the row of show cases until he confronted Anusewitz, suddenly threw a handful of pepper into the manager's eyes.

Anusewitz made an outcry as he started from behind the counter, and the robbers ran out the door into Broadway. Anusewitz managed to get to the street door and shout: "Thieves! Robbers! I've been robbed! Catch those men!"

Both Men Captured.

About forty men immediately went in pursuit of Scola and De Marco, who by that time were well across Times Square. Scola headed for West Forty-sixth Street and ran east to Sixth Avenue, where he was captured by William E. Coyle, a business man of 31 West Twenty-fifth Street, and Roswell Utter, Superintendent of the Public School at 120 West Forty-sixth Street. Another group followed De Marco to Forty-seventh Street and Seventh Avenue, where Policeman Nevin of the traffic squad caught him.

When Scola was captured by Coyle and Utter he put up a fight, but was so badly beaten by the crowd that the policeman called Dr. Craig from Bellevue Hospital.

A third man, who, the police say, acted as a "lookout" outside the store, escaped on an uptown car while the crowd was pursuing the other two. The prisoners were taken to the West Forty-seventh Street Station. Frank Schwartz said neither of them was concerned in the robbery of his store. The prisoners were locked up on a charge of robbery and felonious assault, and will be arraigned in the West Side Court this morning.

POLICE TRIAL BARES ROBBERY OF CORPSE

Widow Missed $2,700 After Officers Forbade Search of Husband's Pockets.

When Lieutenant Louis Vetter of the Clinton Street Station was placed on trial before Deputy Police Commissioner Leach at Police Headquarters yesterday it became known that on the evening of Jan. 6 last somebody stole $2,700 from the clothing of Abraham Cohen of 67 Willett Street within an hour after he dropped dead while walking with his wife on an east side street. Mrs. Lena Cohen, widow of the man, appeared at Police Headquarters yesterday with her five children. She told the Deputy Police Commissioner that she wanted to search her husband's body soon after his death, as she knew he had the money hidden in his inside vest pocket, but that policemen refused to permit her to do so.

About an hour later, she said, the body was removed to the Clinton Street Station, where several policemen carried it into the rear yard. It was not until some time later, she said, that the body was searched at the direction of Lieutenant Vetter, when it was discovered that the money had disappeared, although $700 worth of Liberty bonds were found in the same pocket. Lieutenant Vetter was charged with violating the police rules in not having the body searched immediately on its arrival at the station. The Lieutenant and several policemen denied Mrs. Cohen said anything about the money when she came to the station.

"Slush Fund" Inquiry Starts.

Assistant District Attorney Smith, following the receipt of an anonymous letter from a man who declared he formerly was a plain clothes policeman, yesterday started an investigation of an alleged "slush fund" which the writer declared a Police Inspector had set aside to bribe detectives under him not to reveal the facts about grafting on gambling houses and vice resorts in the Inspector's district in the last two years.

The Assistant District Attorney made public copies of the letter after he had deleted the name of the accused Inspector as well as that of a detective on the staff of the Inspector whose name frequently has been mentioned in connection with the investigation now being conducted before the Grand Jury into graft charges against certain detectives of the upper Tenderloin district by three women. Smith said the writer explained in his letter that he had for some time been connected with the staff of the Inspector mentioned, but was now doing uniform duty.

The letter further alleges that the detective mentioned already has been offered $10,000 by the Inspector as a reward for refusing to betray his superior. The latter, the writer also declares, has received $100,000 in graft from resorts in his district since he was placed in command two years ago. The one-time plainclothes policeman also asserts that the Inspector is prepared to give the detective $20,000 to prevent him from telling all he knows about conditions in the inspection district, which also is mentioned in the letter.

Assistant District Attorney Smith declared the letter was only one of many he has received since he started his investigation into alleged vice conditions in the city. He said he considered the letter of importance, because it corroborated in a way many stories he had heard about the efforts of several high police officials to prevent certain detectives from revealing what they know about vice conditions to the Grand Jury.

Mother Complains of Evil in Flats.

The Assistant District Attorney also revealed extracts of another letter received Thursday night at his home from a woman who is the mother of several daughters. The letter contained the addresses of twelve apartment houses in the upper Tenderloin district which the writer declared "are honeycombed with disorderly flats."

The letter read, in part, as follows:

"I think you are modest in your statement that there are but 2,000 apartments in this city occupied by social outcasts. I have lived in this vicinity for the last seven years, and I have had to change my abode more than ten times because of the brazen and shameful actions of the tenants of some of these buildings and in order to protect the morals of my daughters. Many other families have had to do likewise when repeated complaints to the owners of the buildings were of no avail."

The woman also declared that one man owned most of the apartment houses on the upper west side in which disreputable women conduct flats.

Crime Society Corroborates Smith.

It became known yesterday that Samuel Marcus, counsel for the Society for the Prevention of Crime, several days ago sent a letter to Police Commissioner Enright indorsing Assistant District Attorney Smith's assertion that vice is rampant in certain sections of the city. The letter was in reply to one sent to the society by the Police Commissioner the day following Smith's statement on the vice situation, and in which the Police Commissioner not alone asked for a list of "more than 500" resorts occupied by disreputable women, but also asked the officers of the society to join the Police Department in suppressing such places. It was also learned that Commissioner Enright sent a second letter on receipt of the communication from the Vice Society's lawyer. Police Commissioner Enright and the officers of the society refused to make public any of the correspondence.

The Grand Jury did not hold a session yesterday, but it is understood that when they resume their inquiry next Monday the Assistant District Attorney will present some of the evidence obtained by agents of the Vice Society.

Assistant District Attorney Smith yesterday obtained the testimony in the case of John R. Crowley, who, on Sept. 14 last, was arraigned before Magistrate Corrigan in the West Side Court on a charge of attempting to extort $15 from a woman. Crowley was discharged by the Magistrate after he had told a story of having been taxed $5 for a package of cigarettes and $10 for a chicken sandwich in the woman's apartment in the upper Tenderloin district.

According to the minutes of the trial before the Magistrate, Crowley accompanied the woman in a taxicab to her home, where, after he gave the woman the money, she ordered him to leave. He refused to go at first, Crowley testified, and while he was demanding the return of $15 a man appeared from an adjoining room, and, displaying a police shield, ordered Crowley to leave the apartment. Crowley started to argue with the alleged detective, he testified, when the latter pulled a pistol from his hip pocket and played the muzzle up and down Crowley's ribs several times and frightened him off. Crowley ran to the nearest police station and brought a policeman back to the woman's apartment. She offered to return his $15, he said, and when he refused to take it he was arrested on a charge of attempted extortion.

DRY AGENT HELD ON MURDER CHARGE

Stewart McMullin, Who Killed Chauffeur, Locked Up Under $10,000 Bail.

SELF-DEFENSE TALE DENIED

Witnesses Say Victim Was Shot While Holding Hands Up—Bullet in Back of Head.

Stewart N. McMullin, the Internal Revenue agent who shot and killed Henry Carlton, a chauffeur, Thursday night, will have to face criminal prosecution in the State courts, despite the plea of his superiors that he had acted in self-defense in the performance of his duty and their request that he be released in the custody of Prohibition Enforcement Agent James Shevlin.

McMullin was held in $10,000 bail in Yorkville Court by Magistrate Harris for examination on Monday, after Mr. Shevlin had offered to be responsible for his appearance. Mr. Shevlin immediately notified the authorities at Washington, and bail for McMullin is expected to be arranged today.

Assistant District Attorney John F. Joyce, head of the Homicide Bureau, stated that he had desired to have McMullin held without bail and said that the testimony of the witnesses to the shooting, Carlo Carini, in whose apartment it took place; Mrs. Carini and their daughter, Malvina, was at variance with that of McMullin's, and indicated that the killing of Carlton had been unwarranted.

Another Version of Shooting.

According to Mr. Joyce, these witnesses said that, instead of attacking McMullin, Carlton was shot while he held his hands above his head. At no time, the witnesses said, did McMullin or his associates, William D. Yaselli and H. Arnstein, say that they were Government agents, so that, when McMullin attempted to get back the $736 paid for the wine and whisky after the latter had been carried to the street and placed in a taxicab, Carlton and the Carinis believed that they were the victims of crooks who sought to get possession of both the money and the liquor.

Much importance is attached to the knife, with which McMullin said Carlton attacked him. Mr. Joyce said that no knife had been found in the Carini apartment. The two women, who were the only eyewitnesses of the shooting, denied that Carlton drew a knife or that he made any sort of an attack upon McMullin.

Where the Stories Differ.

There was little difference in the stories told by McMullin and the two women up to the point when he chased them to the fire escape, Mr. Joyce said.

"I am told that when the revenue men went into the Carini apartment they first paid $25 and that a case of wine was taken downstairs and placed in the taxicab," Mr. Joyce said. "There was then a dispute as to payment of the rest of the money and Yaselli finally placed $736 on top of a washtub.

"Immediately afterward, the witnesses informed me, McMullin and Yaselli drew revolvers and threatened Carlton and Carini and ordered them to throw up their hands. Carini ran out and into the janitor's apartment next door, he said. Carlton, the witnesses said, threw up his hands.

"Malvina Carini stated that she grabbed the money and ran out on the fire escape with her mother. They were followed by McMullin, she said, who pointed his revolver at her and ordered her to give him the money, which, she said, she did.

"Malvina said that Carlton, still holding his hands above his head, walked toward the window and that McMullin, turning his revolver from her to Carlton, shot once and Carlton fell."

Shot in Back of Head.

Mr. Joyce stated that examination of the bullet wound showed that Carlton had been shot in the back of the head on the left side and at a very short distance. The wound was immediately fatal.

Mr. Joyce said that Malvini Carini said that McMullin ran from the room immediately after he had shot Carlton, and she believed he had run downstairs. Mr. Joyce stated that he had been told that one revolver shot had been fired in the street before McMullin fired. He explained this by stating that he believed a policeman of the East Sixty-first Street Station had heard the screams of the women on the fire escape and had fired one shot in the air to bring other policemen to his assistance before going into the building.

Mr. Joyce said he had been unable to get any corroboration of the story, said to have been told at the time by McMullin, that he had been fired at ten or twelve times from the street as he stood on the fire escape, or of Yaselli's story that four or five shots had been fired at him in the hall.

William E. Joyce, Assistant United States District Attorney, advised McMullin not to reply to the questions of William F. Joyce, Assistant District Attorney for New York County, and refused to permit McMullin to make any statement. Yaselli told the head of the homicide bureau how he had arranged with Carlton for the purchase of the liquor. He stated that the liquor, represented to be of the best quality, was only cologne spirits with burnt sugar and flavoring added.

No Knife Found.

Yaselli said he had had a struggle with Carini, who broke away from him and ran into the hallway, where he said two shots were fired at him. He overtook Carini, he said, and turned him over to Policeman Reynolds and went back into the Carini apartment after he had heard two shots fired there. He said he found Carlton dead and McMullin on the fire escape and that the latter had told him that there were two men with guns on the fire escape who had tried to shoot him. Yaselli said he could not find the two men nor was he able to find the knife with which McMullin said Carlton attacked him.

Mr. Joyce said it was the intention of the District Attorney to proceed in the prosecution of the case in the usual manner without regard to the fact that the defendant is a Federal agent. He stated that the stories of the two women and Carini were corroborated in part by Benjamin Golofsky, 19 years old, who was in the taxicab in front of the house and who saw the women and McMullin on the fire escape and heard the shot which killed Carlton fired.

Mr. Shevlin said he intended to support McMullin to the limit.

"The man resisted arrest, and the officer defended himself," he said. "I think the District Attorney did a very wrong thing in holding him in $10,000 bail. I have never heard of a case in which a Federal officer was not paroled in the custody of his chief."

Shevlin Defends Prisoner.

Mr. Shevlin said that McMullin had been performing an important duty in prohibition enforcement inasmuch as he was seeking to cut off the supply of liquor by arresting those who were selling it.

"Our agents have been struck and slapped repeatedly," he said, "while enforcing the law. They have accepted blows, but where a law breaker attacks an officer with a knife, placing his life in danger, the officer has a right to defend himself."

Carlo Carini and Benjamin Golofsky were held in $5,000 bail each by United States Commissioner Hitchcock on a charge of conspiracy to violate the Volstead law. A hearing was set for next Tuesday.

J. J. Quigley, assistant prohibition enforcement agent, denied that McMullin had formerly been engaged in breaking up gangs of makers of "moonshine" whiskey in the Kentucky mountains. He said that McMullin was a native of New York and had been in the Prohibition Enforcement Bureau since its organization. Assistant District Attorney Joyce tried to find out from McMullin how he came to be living at the Hotel Claridge, which he gave as his residence at the time of the shooting, but received no explanation, as McMullin was instructed not to answer any questions.

TO BRING 50,000 DEAD BACK FROM FRANCE

Twenty to Thirty Thousand American War Victims Will Be Left, Baker Informs Wadsworth.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The bodies of about 50,000 of the American dead in France will be returned to the United States, while between 20,000 and 25,000 will remain permanently interred overseas, Secretary Baker today informed Chairman Wadsworth of the Senate Military Committee.

The Secretary, who wrote in response to a Senate resolution, estimated the cost of returning the dead and concentrating the bodies remaining in cemeteries overseas at $30,000 000.

Congestion of the French transportation systems and shortage of materials used in the manufacture of coffins are handicapping the work, Mr. Baker said.

While 111 bodies of American dead have been returned from Archangel, Secretary Baker said that the same number still remained in Northern Russia and that it was improbable that anything could be done toward their removal for a year.

Evacuation of bodies in England is progressing, he added, while in Italy all bodies have been concentrated ready for return to this country.

FREIGHTER AGROUND IN FOG

Lake Deval Stranded Near Southampton; Esperanza Towed to Port.

The United States Shipping Board freighter Lake Deval went aground yesterday two miles west of Southampton, L. I., while trying to make her way through a heavy fog. When first sighted by a member of the Meadow House Club, near Southampton, the vessel was listing heavily under pounding by a rough sea churned by a strong southeast wind. Later in the afternoon the fog became so dense that the vessel was lost to view, but her crew communicated with shore by a fog horn, using the Morse code. It was learned that a shift in the wind to west by southwest had helped to right the ship.

ANDERSON IS SUED BY REV. MR. FREEMAN

Minister Asks $75,000 Damages for Statement That He Once Ran a Saloon.

LEAGUE BILLS UP NEXT WEEK

Prediction Is Now Made That Assembly Will Not Pass Beer and Wine Bills.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 12.—The Rev. William H. Freeman, who is to be one of the witnesses against the Anti-Saloon League in the proposed legislative inquiry, today filed suit against Superintendent Anderson to recover $50,000 for alleged libel. The suit grows out of Anderson's statement that the Rev. Mr. Freeman once ran a saloon. The complaint also asks another $25,000 because of circulation of the statement among members of the Assembly.

The papers will be served on Mr. Anderson tomorrow.

Chairman Martin of the Assembly Judiciary Committee, which has been charged with conducting the investigation, said today that the committee would not consider the proposed inquiry until the Socialists' case had been finally disposed of.

The Anti-Saloon League's legislative proposals will be heard on Tuesday before the Senate Judiciary Committee and the Assembly Excise Committee sitting jointly. Strong pressure is apparently being exerted on the ex-service men in the Assembly to have them abandon their support of beer and light wines.

Speaker Sweet is now in a strong position to fight legislation permitting the sale of beer and light wines, because the all-powerful Rules Committee will soon take charge of pending legislation in the House.

So far as can be predicted now, the Assembly will pass enforcement legislation and refuse to pass any beer and light wine bills, while the Senate is expected to favor beer and wines and refuse to pass enforcement measures.

SAYS "WET" ALIENS FLEE.

Emigration Exceeds Immigration Since Prohibiton, Says Siegel.

So many foreign-born are leaving the United States that emigration is exceeding immigration, Congressman Isaac Siegel, a member of the House Immigration Committee, declared yesterday. Records at Ellis Island showed that immigration since Jan. 1 had been 53,000, while 61,000 left the country. It was said that most of the emigrants had gone back to Poland and Czechoslovakia to stay.

Mr. Siegel said that while a desire to live in rejuvenated homelands was a factor in emigration, he believed that prohibition was the principal reason. Much ill feeling among the foreign-born residents, particularly in the mining districts, has been caused, Mr. Siegel said, on account of the inability to buy beer or wine.

FEARS DEFEAT ON DRY ISSUE

New Jersey Republicans Warned to Come Out Against Prohibition.

TRENTON, N. J., March 12.—The "wet" cause is in the ascendant politically, according to City Commissioner George W. Page of Trenton, who warned the Mercer Republican County Committee at a late meeting this morning that the Republicans faced defeat, if they failed to come out openly against on the issue.

"If the Republican party desires to be successful in Mercer County," he said, "it must espouse the cause of the Anti-Prohobitionists and straddling the issue will only result in political failure."

Feigenspan Appeals on Prohibition.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Appeals from Federal Court decrees denying Christian Feigenspan an injunction to restraint the enforcement of the prohibition amendment were filed today in the Supreme Court. Announcement was made that the Government would ask the court to expedite its consideration in the hope of a decision before the June recess.

McADOO STILL IN RACE

Forbids Instruction of Delegates for Him, but Is a Candidate—Roper May Be His Manager.

The National Personal Liberty League opened headquarters in the Hotel Hermitage in Times Square yesterday and will begin a campaign to attack the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Enforcement act and to boom Governor Edward I. Edwards of New Jersey for the Democratic Presidential nomination. While the identity of the men backing the movement was not disclosed, it was said that many are prominent in public and social life and represent all political parties. Defense of personal liberty and the Constitution of the United States is to be the slogan of the new organization.

"While the league is not of political origin," explained H. F. McGarvie, a member of the Executive Committee, "one of its purposes will be to espouse the candidacy of Governor Edwards for the Presidential nomination. Men of all political creeds are behind the movement. Their prominence in public and social life is a guarantee that they are not impelled by selfish motives."

William G. McAdoo, former Secretary of the Treasury, who has been mentioned as an aspirant for the Democratic Presidential nomination, declared yesterday that he would release from their instructions any McAdoo delegates elected in the primaries where he was unable to prevent the use of his name on the ballots.

Mr. McAdoo's latest announcement is not taken to mean his elimination from the Presidential race. Some of his opponents assert that he has taken his present stand because he believes that his best chance of obtaining the nomination is to be found in a situation where the convention will assemble with but few of the delegates instructed for any candidate.

Mr. McAdoo's recent activities, especially his visit this week to the White House when he consulted with the President on the treaty situation, are taken by politicians to mean that he is very much in the race and is working hard to obtain support in various directions. The report was revived that Daniel C. Roper, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, who has resigned, will soon after his retirement from official life on April 1, assume charge as Mr. McAdoo's campaign manager.

DENOUNCES PEACE WITH MOSCOW REDS

Major Stanley Washburn Calls the Proposal a Betrayal of Our Civilization.

WHY THEY SEEK A TRUCE

Former Correspondent with Russian Armies Shows Red Rule as Destructive of All Social Progress.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 12. — Major Stanley Washburn, war correspondent with the Russian armies and a member of the Root Mission to Russia, condemned Bolshevism and the Soviet form of government in an address delivered tonight before the National Press Club. Out of the wealth of his experience in Russia Major Washburn warned against the proposal to recognize the Soviet Government at Moscow.

"We are now facing," he said, "the undisguised proposition to recognize in amity and friendship a system of thought and a form of government which repudiates, root and branch, every tenet on which our State was founded and for which our race has struggled for 150 years."

Major Washburn strongly condemned this proposition as dictated by "fear and trade" which demanded its thirty pieces of silver. It would mean, he asserted, the cracking of the stamina of the civilized world and the betrayal of every tradition in the history of the Anglo-Saxon race inherited from our fathers. "If this comes about," he said, "then indeed has the war ended in neither peace nor victory."

Greater Danger Than Pan Germanism.

To recognize Soviet Russia, said Major Washburn, meant that "our sacrifices have been in vain and we face a situation far more dangerous in its consequences than pan-Germanism ever did or ever will represent." He sketched the fundamental principles of Bolshevism, pointing out how a small minority of the enormous population of Russia was able to rule under this system and backed up his condemnatory statements by references to official documents of the Soviet rulers.

"The question of Bolshevism and Soviet Russia," said the speaker, "is not one to be handled with abuse and invective. I do not propose to deal in rumors as to atrocities and misery in Russia. The pro-Bolshevists deny this. What I state in regard to Bolshevism is from official documents and quotations from the leaders themselves. What I saytherefore is not open to discussion, nor do I believe it is subject to correction."

He then said Bolshevism was destructive of the four elements essential for social progress. It was destructive of religious life, of the home, of representeative government and a sound economic system. He quoted from Bolshevist laws and other doucuments to prove his points.

"The price of the violation of these moral and economic laws," he continued, "has been chaos in Russia, which it is alleged has already caused the death by famine, pestilence and malnutrition of from twenty to thirty million people.

"Lenin and his followers have openly stated that the only hope of success for their ideas is world revolution. Zinoviev, one of the leaders of the movement, is credited with the statement that a truce was absolutely essential to Soviet Russia in order that they might have a breathing space in which to recuperate and reorganize for further efforts and revolutions. With commendable frankness he added that any truce which would be signed would be merely a scrap of paper and bind them only as long as was convenient for themselves.

Sacrifice Versus Trade.

"In November, 1918, men from every quarter of the globe were in Europe preparing to sacrifice their lives to beat the material strength of Germany. We must not confuse the policies of leaders in this war with the genius of the men who fought it. No doubt there were sordid and sinister aims in the various foreign offices of Europe, but 3,000,000 men of English blood did not voluntarily join the colors and offer their lives to promote commerce. The Canadians and the Australians did not go overseas and die in Flanders for trade reasons. The French have not buried a million dead to gain a commercial advantage over Germany. Nine million Russian peasants did not suffer that Russia might expand and, incidentally, 4,000,000 Americans did not join the service for commercial purposes.

"All these men went to France, believing that if they died the sacrifice was made to perpetuate a better world in which to live. We in America were told that we were fighting to make the world safe for democracy. You in this audience who were making Liberty Loan speeches know as well as I do myself why it was that our men went willingly to France, and why it was that our people were willing to invest billions of their savings in Liberty bonds. Perhaps it was not to fight for the particular slogan enunciated by Mr. Wilson, but it certainly was because they felt that civilization demanded this sacrifice. I know this to be true, because I have seen the men of these armies and I know what was in their hearts.

"If the world now makes this compromise it will be forced by two factors, both the most unworthy known to human nature. The first, fear of what Bolshevist propaganda may do to the world which prompts men to buy them off by granting terms of peace; second, the pressure of mercenary individuals who wish to sell in Russia and coin dollars at the price of abandonment of every aim that has made the Anglo-Saxon race supreme in the world today.

"What do you imagine will be the result upon the psychology and morals of the people of England and the people of America if all our high endeavor and protestation of virtue is proved to be mere cant and verbiage when fear and trade demands its thirty pieces of silver? I know not what may be your conclusionns, but my deduction is this, and I would state it categorically and without reservation, that it means the cracking of the stamina of the civilized world and the betrayal of every tradition in the history of the Anglo-Saxon race which we have inherited from our fathers."

Lithuanian and Czech Delegations Seeking Peace, Says Danish Paper.

COPENHAGEN, March 12.—The Berlingske Tidende says it learns that a Lithuanian delegation has arrived in Moscow, ostensibly to negotiate for an exchange of prisoners, but in reality to discuss peace terms.

The majority of the Lithuanians, says the newspaper, are eager for peace.

It is added that a Czechoslovak delegation has arrived in Moscow with the same intention as the Lithuanians.

NUGENT'S WAR DEAL STIRS HIGH OFFICIAL

Fissell Agreement Denounced by F. L. Olmstead of Construction Committee.

DRAFT LAW TALE DENIED

Democratic Leaders Aid on Stand—"Hope Jim Made Money," Tumulty's Comment.

Vice Chancellor Backes, in the Court of Chancery at Newark yesterday, denied a motion to dismiss the bill of complaint filed by James R. Nugent, former Democratic Chairman of New Jersey, seeking from William H. Fissell of New York an accounting of profits on contracts for construction work at Camp Merritt. Mr. Nugent and his political lieutenant Joseph A. Wright of Newark, contend they obtained the contracts for Mr. Fissell through Mr. Nugent's influence at Washington, and are entitled to a "fifty-fifty" split of Fissell's profit, said to be $146,000. The Vice Chancellor said the motion might be renewed when the case came up for argument May 24.

Testimony was closed with the introduction of a letter from Frederick Law Olmstead of Brookline, Mass., former member of the Construction Committee of the Council of National Defense, which recommended contractors for emergency Government work, in which he decried war "lobbyists." The letter was written in response to a request of counsel for Mr. Fissell. Mr. Olmstead wrote that he did not recall Mr. Nugent or Mr. Wright or the circumstances of the Fissell award. He added:

"If I had known of the alleged agreement between Mr. Nugent and Mr. Fissell about the former using his influence I would have regarded it as evidence of Mr. Fissell's unfitness as a contractor on our work. That was the attitude of the committee toward such deals."

Josiah Stryker, counsel for Mr. Fissell, in moving for dismissal, declared the alleged contract or "gentlemen's agreement" between Mr. Nugent and Mr. Wright on the one hand and Mr. Fissell on the other, whereby the former were to use political influence to get contracts, was contrary to public policy.

Mr. Wright was put on the stand by Mr. Nugent to rebut the testimony of Mr. Fissell that he had said Mr. Nugent had weekly conferences with President Wilson and had advised the President on the drawing of the draft bill.

"What I told Fissell," testified Mr. Wright, "was that Mr. Nugent stood high with the administration. In regard to the draft bill I told Fissell that when this law was first talked of it was the Government's plan to enforce it by an extensive advertising campaign asking the co-operation of the public. At that time Mr. Nugent wrote the President a letter, and it was published in the newspapers, suggesting that the draft law be handled and enforced through the existing election machinery of the country and that is just what was done. I told Fissell that was Nugent's suggestion. I never said he had written or advised or suggested the draft law."

Mr. Wright also testified that he and Valentine Braun and the latter's son Chester, heard Captain Kenneth M. Murchison, who was advising the Construction Committee, say to Mr. Fissell when he lost the $10,000,000 Camp Hancock contract:

"Never mind about the Hancock contract. You'll get one right in your own back yard."

Mr. Braun, a Nugent follower, corroborated Mr. Wright and so did Chester Braun.

Vice Chancellor Backes questioned Mr. Fissell as to why he paid Mr. Wright weekly sums that totaled $7,000 from December, 1917, to March, 1919, and particularly why he continued to pay Mr. Wright after July, 1918, when he learned from Captain Murchison that Wright had "as much to do with getting the Camp Merritt contracts as the man in the moon." Mr. Fissell replied:

"Nugent talked of a $6,000,000 private contract he could get me and I figured that if Nugent did have any influence it would be better not to antagonize him."

Letters from Mr. Nugent during the period when the Democratic leader was supposed to be exerting his "influence" at Washington in Mr. Fissell's behalf, were put in evidence by the latter. They referred to numerous contracts Mr. Nugent said he would get. According to Mr. Fissell, all he got was "reports of progress" and promises.

Captain Murchison testified it was he and not Mr. Nugent or Mr. Wright or any one they saw in Washington that got the Camp Merritt contract for Mr. Fissell. "I knew of Fissell's work, through contact with him in big undertakings, and I recommended him to the committee as a competent contractor," Captain Murchison testified.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Secretary Tumulty's comment today on James R. Nugent's testimony that through introductions secured from the President's secretary he had succeeded in getting war contracts for a firm Nugent now is suing for an accounting was:

"I introduced Nugent when he came to me, as I did many others. He was treated as any other person was treated who asked for introductions. I hope Jim made some money out of the contracts."

Secretary Tumulty said many other persons who had secured introductions from him in a regular way were suing for commissions on contracts.

GAS COMPANIES ASK RELIEF.

Oil Shortage and Cost of 22 Candle Power Pointed Out.

The statement made to Public Service Commissioner Lewis Nixon on Thursday by the New York and Richmond Gas Company that it was not able to renew its contract for gas oil and that it was confronted with the prospect of having to suspend serving its consumers on April 1 was followed yesterday by a letter to Mr. Nixon from C. H. B. Chapin, Secretary of the Empire Gas and Electric Association, which said that the shortage of gas oil was widespread and was threatening the welfare of all of the gas companies.

On March 3, the letter stated, the operating representatives of companies supplying water gas met in Albany to consider the oil shortage and the concensus was that the "unnecessary use of gas oil" through efforts to keep the quality of gas up to the 22-candle power required by statute would result in advancing the price of oil to 12 cents or more and a forced increase in the price of gas if the people were to be served at all.

Mr. Nixon will hold a public hearing on the matter next Tuesday morning.

CHICAGO JUDGE BEATEN UP.

Intervenes to Stop Four Men Fighting and Gets Rough Treatment.

CHICAGO, March 12.—An attempt at peace making by Chief Justice Harry Olson of the Municipal Court during a fight in a darkened corridor of the City Hall tonight resulted in a bruised eye for the jurist and his threat to swear out a warrant for the arrest of a Police Sergeant who, the Judge said, choked him while his original assailants fled.

Judge Olson was leaving the City Hall for the night when he came upon four men fighting in the corridor. A fifth lay on the floor, bruised and bleeding. The Judge appealed to the men to cease fighting, whereupon one of the four knocked him down. The Judge defended himself, at the same time shouting for help.

At this point Police Sergeant Philip Carroll intervened. When peace was restored Judge Olson said Carroll, instead of assisting him, had seized him about the neck and choked him while permitting his assailants to get away. Carroll denied this, asserting that he mistook the Judge for one of the assailants.

Mascagni Premiere Delayed.

ROME, March 11.—Announcement was recently made by the Costanzi Theatre that Mascagni's new opera, "Little Marat," would be performed there for the first time soon. The composer, however, issued a statement today that the opera cannot be performed as yet, as he has given it to Targioni-Torzetti, the librettist who collaborated with Mascagni in composing "Cavalleria Rusticana" and who has the commission to write the book of the play.

N. Y. CENTRAL PLANS BIG OFFICE BUILDING

To Add Thirteen Stories to Present Quarters Near the Terminal.

WORK STARTS AT ONCE

Modern Gray Brick Structure Will House the Railroad's Offices.

The New York Central Railroad is planning to make its building at the northwest corner of Lexington Avenue and Forty-fifth Street the tallest and one of the finest office buildings in the district. Thirteen stories are to be added to the present four-story building. The plans, drawn by Warren & Wetmore and to be carried out by the contracting firm of James Stewart & Co., call for a thoroughly modern office building to harmonize with the other Central buildings in that vicinity, with the same gray-brick exterior.

With the return of the road to the control of its corporate management, however, it has been decided to go ahead with the work as rapidly as possible, a series of delays having prevented starting it previously. Some of the materials already are available and deliveries of steel are expected early in June. The contractors think the building will be ready shortly after the first of next year, when many of the company offices will be removed from the Grand Central Terminal building.

The building on Lexington Avenue was erected some years ago and so arranged that additional stories could be put on without inconvenience to the occupants. While the New York Central was under Federal control the corporate officers of the company were there, and some still are.

There has been a tremendous demand for office and railroad space near the Grand Central Terminal, and the road, feeling the pinch along with its neighbors, expects thus to solve many of its office problems. It was estimated that the gross expense would be several million dollars.

Radicals Lead in Argentine Elections

BEUNOS AIRES, March 9.—The first return from Sunday's election to the Congress of Argentina, the counting of which was begun today, showed the Radicals in the lead. On the early returns that party appears to have elected half as many again of its candidates as the Socialists, with the Progressive Democrats close behind the Socialists.

KING COLLAPSES ON STAND.

Newberry' Manager Is Unable to Testify and Court Is Adjourned.

Special to The New York Times.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., March 12.—The Newberry trial was further delayed today, when Paul H. King, Newberry's manager, called for cross-examination, had a complete breakdown on the stand and was removed from the courtroom following a few questions by Attorney Allan Rees on behalf of Respondent Myron T. Sherwood. Government attorneys declared they did not want to question a sick witness, and court was adjourned until tomorrow morning, and if King is unable to attend court then the trial will probably go over until Monday.

Only five respondents have testified. King took the stand to speak for himself and the remaining eighty respondents. Senator Newberry did not testify, as it is contended that the correspondence read into the record covers his part in the case.

The prosecution hopes to cross-examine King, but in the event his illness is prolonged they may have to waive that right rather than adjourn the case. There are more than thirty rebuttal witnesses on hand waiting to be heard and the prosecution desires to use them now rather than have to call them back at a later time.

DE VALERA'S HOUSE RAIDED.

Police Seek Countess Markievicz at Sinn Fein Leader's Dublin Residence

DUBLIN, March 12.—The police today raided the residence of Mrs. Eamonn de Valera, wife of the Sinn Fein leader, in search of Countess Markievicz, Sinn Fein member of Parliament for the St. Patrick's Division of Dublin. They were unsuccessful, however, in their quest.

It is stated that the police mistook a cousin of Mrs. de Valera from London for the Countess in disguise.

Countess Markievicz was sentenced in June of last year to four months' imprisonment on charges growing out of disorders in Cork during May, when she was alleged to have incited tradesmen to boycott the police and to have participated in an unlawful assembly. She was released in October. As is the case with the other Sinn Fein members of Parliament elected in Ireland at the last general election, she has never taken her seat in the House. There has been no mention in recent advices on the Irish situation of any fresh charges against the Countess.

26TH IRISH CONSTABLE SLAIN

Two Soldiers and Several Civilians Also Killed in County Cork.

BELFAST, March 12.—Constable Scully was shot at Glenmire, County Cork, last night.

He was the twenty-sixth policeman murdered since Jan. 21.

Two soldiers and a number of civilians also were killed by gangs in the same vicinity yesterday.

MINE UNION HEADS SAID TO BE INDICTED

Big Coal Operators Also Reported to be Included in Indianapolis Indictment.

CAPIASES ARE BEING ISSUED

Attorney for United Mine Workers Confers with the Federal Official.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., March 12.—The Federal Building today was thronged with Government agents busily engaged in the preparation of 125 capiases which are to be served on the coal operators and miners indicted yesterday on the charge of conspiracy and violation of the Lever act.

The names of those who will fall into the Government dragnet are being closely guarded and will not be revealed until the arrests are made. However, the information leaked out during the day that 73 of those indicted live outside the State of Indiana and will be drawn chiefly from Illinois, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Fifty-two operators and miners of this State will be forced to stand trial. Defendants in Indiana will be arrested by deputies working out of the office of Mark Storen, United States Marshal, while service on the other defendants will be sent to the United States District Attorneys in the States in which they live. This service will include a copy of the indictment for each defendant to be arrested. No arrests are expected before Monday or Tuesday of next week.

Reports were current here today that aside from a number of the leading coal operators of the country in the list of those indicted are several leaders of the United Mine Workers of America.

Henry Warrum, attorney of the United Mine Workers, was in conference with Albert Slack, Special Assistant United States Attorney at the Federal Building. The basic charge against all of those indicted, of whom two-thirds are operators, is reported to be a conspiracy to limit the production of coal during the coal strike last Fall.

Charges were made by Federal officials that the union mine leaders and the operators in their joint conferences talked production and price as well as the miners' demand for increased wages. Among Indiana operators who have been prominent in negotiations with miners are Phil A. Penna of Terre Haute, Secretary of the Indiana Coal Operators' Association; Will Freeman, member of the Wage Scale Committee of the operators, and Hugh Shirke, mine owner.

All of those arrested under the indictments will be held under bonds ranging from $5,000 to $10,000. They will be arraigned in Federal Court May 4.

COL. RAND TO ASSIST GRAND JURY INQUIRY

Appointed Legal Adviser in Investigation of Charges Against Swann's Staff.

TO MAKE STATEMENT TODAY

Independent in Politics—District Attorney Says He Wanted Republicans Appointed.

Colonel William Rand, Jr., was appointed a Special Deputy Attorney General yesterday to assist the Extraordinary Grand Jury as legal adviser in the investigation of its charges submitted to Governor Smith against members of District Attorney Swann's staff, James E. Smith, John T. Dooling and Edwin P. Kilroe, Assistant District Attorneys. The appointment was made by Attorney General Charles D. Newton, who was designated by the Governor as general counsel in response to the jury's request for executive aid so that the investigations might be taken from the jurisdiction of the New York County prosecutor.

In accepting the appointment Colonel Rand said he would make a statement today. He was asked if he had acted as attorney for a member of the Extraordinary Grand Jury, Clinton T. Brainard. He replied that he might have acted as counsel for him many years ago, that he would look it up and refer to it in his statement, but he did not consider that incident a legal barrier to his proceeding as counsel to the jury.

The new legal aid to the jury has been an Assistant Corporation Counsel and an Assistant District Attorney. He is a member of the law firm of Jerome, Rand & Kresel, 37 Wall Street. He is an independent in politics, with Democratic affiliations. During the war he was a member of the Judge Advocate General's Department of the army and assisted Brig. Gen. Edward A. Kreger in France in the review of cases from general courts-martial.

The appointment is the fourth attempt made by the Governor in an effort to satisfy the jury. The jury wanted two assistants, one a Republican and the other a Democrat, to assure the investigation freedom from any suspicion of partisan politics. It was rumored that another appointment may include either Leonard M. Wallstein, ex-Commissioner of Accounts, who is now counsel to the Citizens Union, or Royal H. Weller, a Republican, and a former Assistant District Attorney. District Attorney Swann expressed approval of Colonel Rand's professional ability, and said:

"I asked Attorney General Newton to appoint a Republican, an enrolled Republican, and a member of the Republican Club, not a half-way Democrat, so that there could be no question of partisan politics when the investigator renders his report to the Attorney General, as he must do, and which will show that there is nothing against the men who have been so grossly maligned by Almirall."

POLICE STOP MUSIC PICKETS

Strikers Have Enlisted the Aid of Lambs and Actors' Equity.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 12.—The dismissed musicians of the Boston Symphony Orchestra were barred by the police from picketing the stage entrance to Symphony Hall at rehearsal today. Six pickets selected from members of the newly formed union gathered near the door, but were made to "keep moving" and were unceremoniously hustled along by policemen apparently stationed there especially to prevent the strikers from doing picket duty.

While the orchestra management was revising its concert programs the strikers were arranging for a benefit concert, to be given by themselves and union sympathizers in the Colonial Theatre a week from Sunday night and in various other enterprises in connection with the continuance of their strike.

The concert is being arranged by Mr. Dodge, who is the originator of the ten band concerts that are conducted annually in Mechanics' Building. He has been in touch with the Lambs and the Actors' Equity Association, and through these associations a number of prominent stars are to appear at the concert, which will be conducted by Emil Mollenhauer.

AIRMEN BREAK ICE JAM.

Bombs Scatter Susquehanna Barrier—Floods Start in Ohio.

PORT DEPOSIT, Md., March 12.—The tremendous ice jam in the Susquehanna River, extending from this town to Havre de Grace at the river's mouth, finally succumbed today to the heavy bombardment from airplanes of the last three days, combined with the influence of mild weather, and passed out into Chesapeake Bay.

It is believed that the dangerous flood menace to this town has been removed and the citizens are planning a banquet to the army aviators in appreciation of their work.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 12.—Boats and cottages along Rocky River were buried today under miniature mountains of ice, following the breaking of a large ice gorge last night and the flooding of the lowlands.

There was grave danger, it was said, that further breaking of the ice with continued mild weather would crush and sweep away many cottages and boats.

CONNEAUT, Ohio, March 12.—Bessemer and Lake Erie Railroad tracks are under water for a mile to the depth of two or three feet, and the grounds of the United Brick Company and a large section of adjacent low land are buried under three feet of water today as a result of Conneaut Creek overflowing its banks following an ice jam last night.

STRIKE TODAY MAY TIE UP COAST SHIPS

Owners Refuse Increased Wage Demands of 8,000 Longshoremen, Checkers and Stevedores.

TALK SEABOARD BLOCKADE

Union Official Says Strike Vote Is Being Taken in Atlantic Coast Ports.

A strike of all the coastwise longshoremen, checkers and stevedores engaged in the Port of New York, numbering 7,000 or 8,000, will begin at 8 o'clock this morning. Following the refusal of the steamship owners, in conference with the union leaders yesterday, to grant their demands for increased wages, the various locals of the longshoremen, checkers and stevedores last night voted unanimously to strike this morning. It was announced by a union official that a strike vote was also being taken last night at all ports along the Atlantic Coast and that its result would be known today.

The longshoremen struck last week, partly tying up coastwise shipping, but most of them had returned to work by Tuesday pending consideration of their demands. The steamship lines involved in the strike are the Mallory, Clyde, Morgan, Old Dominion, Southern Pacific and the Ocean Steamship Company, which operates the Savannah line.

The coastwise longshoremen are seeking the same rate of pay that the deep sea men receive, which is 80 cents an hour and $1.20 cents for overtime. They now receive 65 cents an hour, with $1 an hour for overtime. The differential was established last fall by the National Adjustment Commission, at about the same time that the deep sea men were awarded an extra 5 cents an hour. Later the commission raised the pay of the deep sea men to 80 cents an hour, but no further action has been taken on the demands of the coastwise men.

The steamship owners say they are bound by the award of the National Adjustment Commission, which was to remain in effect until Sept. 30, 1920. The commission agreed to "reconsider the case without prejudice if present prices persist and if a general increase of freight rates should in course of time occur." The steamship owners say that they "frankly admit that there has been no decrease in the cost of living since October," but that "we must at the same time draw especial attention to the fact that the plight of our lines has become steadily, progressively worse."

BRITISH NAVY BUDGET CUT.

Estimates Call for £84,372,300, Against £157,528,800 for 1919.

LONDON, March 12.—Revised naval estimates issued for 1920 and 1921 provide for the expenditure of £84,372,300, as against £157,528,800 for the previous year.

The estimates calls for a total personnel of 136,000 men, as against 280,000 last year.

AN ACCEPTABLE RESERVATION.

After all these months of obduracy and hair-splitting, Senator Lodge has finally proposed a compromise reservation to Article X. to which, it seems to us, no reasonable friend of the Treaty can object. In presenting his reservation Mr. Lodge said that if he thought that it "affected in any way "the principle or substance of the "reservation as it stands [that is, his "own reservation] I should not offer "it and would vote against the "Treaty which contains it." That is a question for Mr. Lodge himself. To us it seems that this new draft leaves Article X. vital and valid, while the Lodge reservation was intentionally made destructive. But if the compromise form suits his difficult taste no one else will haggle over the point. This compromise reservation does not affect the principle or substance of Article X. of the Treaty. It is declaratory of our perfectly well understood constitutional practice. If a reservation is necessary to preclude in any quarter, either at home or abroad, the foolish belief that the League covenant would require us to employ our military or naval force without the sanction of Congress, this proposal of Mr. Lodge's will answer the purpose. And as interference in a dispute might lead to military action, it is not unreasonable to invoke the antecedent sanction of Congress. That process will cause delay; it may be fatal to the effort to prevent a resort to arms. But the point is not at the moment important enough to delay or defeat ratification.

It is believed in Washington that at least thirty-two Democrats stand ready to vote for this reservation. That is half of the two-thirds majority. The responsibility for its adoption, for the ratification or non-ratification of the Treaty, therefore, rests just where it has always rested, with the Republican Senators.

THE DIVIDED FLEET.

The United States Navy was not ready for active service when war was declared upon Germany in April, 1917, according to Admiral Sims. It may be some consolation to know, if heed be given to the charges of Sir Percy Scott, that the British Navy was not ready in August, 1914. Some of his countrymen regard him as too stern a critic, but he is always prepared with facts and figures to show that the Admiralty had often turned a deaf ear to the naval reformers like Sir John Fisher and himself. Admiral Sims would not be offended to be compared with Sir Percy Scott as a critic and reformer. Both have been devoted to their profession and have risked court-martial and neglect to point out what was wrong with the navy. Admiral Sims is just as bold and explicit as Sir Percy. The only way to answer either of them is to present evidence in rebuttal that is stronger. Secretary Daniels will have his turn before the Senate committee, and Admiral Benson must prepare the case for the defense.

Admiral Sims declares that months were lost in sending a squadron of battleships to reinforce the British fleet, although he was persistent in urging expedition. And when the squadron came it was not homogeneous. Ships were not ready or they had to go into the repair dock. Not a submarine was sent for four months, and then a small flotilla of five arrived; four months later five more appeared. The truth, of course, is that the navy was not strong in submarines. The Admiral scored heavily when he read a cablegram from the department, dated July 10, 1917, which gave notice that, "while "a successful termination of the "present war must always be the first "allied aim and will probably result "in diminished tension throughout the "world, the future position of the "United States must in no way be "jeopardized by any disintegration of "our main fighting fleet."

Admiral Sims maintained that the fighting zone was the place for the fleet, that the war could not be won on the Atlantic seaboard, and that not an hour or minute should be lost in reinforcing the British and French Navies to grapple with the submarine menace and close with the enemy's fleet if it should come out again. That certainly would have been Admiral Mahan's strategical plan, and it would have had the approval of the country. It becomes the duty of the head of the Navy Department and the Chief of Operations to present the reasons why the policy of separation and distribution was pursued.

DIRECT ACTION BEATEN.

The British Federation of Miners has been or pretended to be eager for the nationalization of the coal mines. Its radical leaders have committed it to the policy of direct action—that is, of the general strike, for the purpose of securing nationalization. Among the members of the Triple Alliance there has been an evident lukewarmness to this extreme policy. Referred to a Trades Union Congress, called for the special purpose, direct action as a means of forcing the Government to nationalize the coal mines has been badly defeated. To the referendum were submitted two questions: Should political action take the form of "intensive propaganda" in preparation for a general election? The majority of the yeas over the nays was 2,717,000. Should trade union action be direct, take the form of a general strike? Nays, 3,370,000; yeas, 1,050,000; majority against direct action, 2,820,000.

The Coalition Government has not been too brave or decided in regard to nationalization. The election of Mr. Asquith at Paisley seems to have been due largely to his clear and strong opposition to nationalization of industries. Now Mr. Lloyd George has his instructions. The verdict of the Trades Union Congress must be regarded as a verdict against nationalization not merely of the coal mines but of any industry. It shows that the mass of British trade unionists are sensible, conservative, not awed by the violent Socialism or Bolshevism of some of their chiefs. The London and Liverpool police strike was a sufficient British lesson in direct action, just as the Boston police strike was to America. Aside from the folly and danger of direct action, and its substitution for orderly and constitutional political and parliamentary methods, nationalization of the mines would be fatal, is indeed impossible, economically and financially. Like all other countries, Great Britain needs to reduce expenditures. The British trade unionists know that, and are not deceived by the sophistications and objurgations of the Smillies and the Tom Manns.

SYRIA AND MESOPOTAMIA.

The Syrian Congress sitting at Damascus has proclaimed the independence of Syria, and Mesopotamian notabilities are talking of independence for Mesopotamia. Whether a son of the King of the Hedjaz has actually been proclaimed King as yet is not certain, but something of the sort is likely to happen. British and French statesmen specializing in the Near East may well be somewhat disturbed, and doubtless it does not add to their peace of mind to remember that their neglect of Turkish questions and the protection of Ottoman Christians was largely due to their absorption in arrangements with the Arabs, which have now apparently broken down.

The King of the Hedjaz and his active son, the Emir Feisal, were of considerable use to the Allies in the campaigns which ended with the victory at Megiddo; but the Arabs were not fighting for England and France, they were fighting for themselves. Through 1916 there were negotiations between England and the Arabs, on the one hand, and England and France, on the other. France had a traditional position in Syria, going back to the Crusades and emphasized by French action in the nineteenth century. To this sentimental interest was added the desire to get something which should counterbalance the great acquisitions which England was on the way to making in Mesopotamia. French and Arab interests clashed in Syria, where apparently support for France is confined to the Catholic element of the population. And even the Catholics have a good deal of Nationalist feeling.

For a while Lord Allenby prevented the French and the Arabs from coming into conflict, but French diplomats were disturbed at the continued presence of the British, even as shock absorbers. So presently the British left and the French began to make adjustments with the Emir Feisal. That gentleman, who seems to need no guardian, realized that French assistance could be useful in the development of Syria and that it might be bought at what to the Arabs would seem too heavy a price. A conflict was in the interest of neither party, but popular sentiment was becoming irritated at many places. The Emir's orders have been necessary already to prevent clashes between the Arabs and the French, and some of the wilder spirits are talking about co-operating with Mustapha Kemal Pasha if an arrangement cannot be made with France. Meanwhile the French, trying to find compensation in Cilicia for what was endangered further south, encountered Turkish troops at Marash and are likely to have a fight on their hands to make much progress in this quarter.

The differences between the Arabs and the French are not incapable of adjustment, but it begins to be apparent that both French and English will have to realize that the Arabs are going to have a good deal more to say about what happens in Arab countries than had been expected. Colonel Lawrence, the Frankenstein of the Emir Feisal, must be somewhat alarmed at the activity of his creation. Optimists in Washington see in the possibility of the erection of a great Arab State from Persia and Cilicia down to Aden a power which should compensate Moslem pride for the expulsion of the Turks from Europe, but optimists have not often been right in recent times. British and French statesmanship in the Near East has shown a great deal of ingenuity since 1914, but talent of a different sort seems to be needed now.

"STAGGERING" TAXES.

The piling of Federal and State tax duties and payments on each other is staggering, but in a wrong sense. Engineers "stagger" by alternation, not by addition, and that is the salutary effect of Controller Travis's postponement of the limit for filing State income tax returns, but with a penalty of interest for the period of delay which he has not the power to waive. The approval of the separation of the Federal and State dates and payments is so unanimous that the relief might well be made permanent by amendment of the law before the Legislature adjourns. The wonder is why it was ever thought desirable to pile this Pelion on the Federal Ossa. Taxpayers are not able to do this "staggering" for themselves, as the real estate interests are now seeking to do in order to relieve themselves from a like inconvenience. They are now co-operating with the intent that their business shall be "closed" on the 5th, 10th, 20th or 25th of each month instead of being accumulated at the end, the beginning, or the middle of the month. The reason is that it troubles both the traders and the banks to deal with many things as a total when they can be dealt with as items just as well and more easily.

There is no such escape for those who must comply with the tax laws. But why should not the laws be modified in this respect? The proposal is timely, for there are other pending proposals. One is for the communication of information between the State and the United States regarding incomes. If teeth are to be put in the law in this manner, why should not something be done for the convenience of the taxpayers as well as the tax collectors? Neither the State nor the nation has need for such great sums as are paid on the tax days when they are so few. The State allows only a single payment for a year's income tax payment. The nation allows four, but one of them is the same as the State's. This cumulation of payments has some recompense for the banks, which are alternately starved and flooded with funds, and some of them are mere book entries. There is no such relief for the taxpayers, who part with their funds once for all when paid over. The State allows payment of realty taxes in installments and might well make a similar arrangement regarding the income taxes.

If the payment due March 15 were made to fall on April 15, and if the date for filing the returns were made different from the Federal date, there would be considerable convenience both in the preparation of the returns and in the payment of the funds. When the State requires the State returns to conform to the Federal returns, an opportunity to make them up after the Federal returns are filed would be a reasonable accommodation to those harried and flurried by intricate calculations.

SECURITY FOR POLAND.

Dispatches from Warsaw report the conclusion of an agreement between the Polish Government and the United States Shipping Board and Liquidation Commission which promises to help Poland where help was most needed. The Liquidation Commission has agreed to sell to the Poles as much of the surplus American Army supplies as they may need, on six years' credit. The Shipping Board will see that the goods are carried to Danzig. Already, according to Warsaw, there is en route a quantity of supplies including "military equipment for 2,000,000 "men, 80 locomotives, 4,500 cars for "troop transport, 5,000,000 pounds of "margarine, 100,000 tons of flour "and a considerable quantity of miscellaneous material."

This is a good deal to be on the way at one time, but it may be supposed that at any rate it indicates the extent of Polish purchases. No wonder the Poles feel that "almost overnight the "complexion of the whole Polish situation has changed." The Poles are excellent soldiers and ought to be able to hold their own against the Red Army if they have adequate supplies. During the Winter they were painfully lacking in equipment, but this need now seems to have been met. If the quantities of goods bought are as large as represented, and if they arrive without interference or too great delay, Poland may be considered as fairly safe against Bolshevist Russia.

It is not likely that the question of peace with the Bolsheviki will be much affected by this transfer. The idea of a Polish offensive against Moscow, which offered dubious chances of success and jeopardized everything that the Poles have won in the last year and a half, seems to have been abandoned; it was a French idea always which found less support in Warsaw than in Paris. The Poles would be quite unwise in undertaking an offensive against Russia, but this sale of equipment should mean that on the defensive they can hold their own. With their army well supplied they will probably be ready now to make peace on some such terms as those lately suggested by General Pilsudski. The great danger has always been that other Powers would make peace and leave Poland standing alone. That danger seems to be passing; the precipitate eagerness of certain Governments to make peace and get trade has been somewhat abated, and the Poles will soon be able to depend more fully on themselves. It is a transaction which is good politics and good business; by helping Poland we help Western Europe and America.

TALK AND WORK.

Isn't Governor Sproul of Pennsylvania rather epigrammatic than positively helpful to his fellow-citizens when he tells them that there is too much talk and not enough work in the United States at present? "The "American people learned to talk during the war drives," he says, "and "some of them haven't stopped." Was more work ever done in the United States than in the time of the war drives? And talk is necessary to the health of a great many people. Governments, political campaigns, "banquets," to go no further, cannot be carried on without it. What is a parliament but a talkery? Like poetry, talk is relieving to the talker. In every village and city, wherever articulate-speaking men and women exist, are many, many persons who must speak or they will die, die with all their music in them.

There is a time for speech and a time for work. There is time enough for both. Still, if we consider the search for new sources of taxation, where could one be found more productive than a tax, a graduated tax with surtaxes, on talk? Of course, there would have to be ample deductions and exemptions for politicians, after-dinner speakers, public forum orators, and Mr. Bryan; but a talk tax would be sold economically, easily collected and highly productive. We offer the idea respectfully to Governor Sproul and to all other statesmen and speakers. A talk tax, honestly collected, would furnish so much revenue that the excess profits tax and the State and Federal income taxes could be taken off the backs of a patient people.

NO PLACE FOR RHEUMATISM.

There appears to have been a rupture of diplomatic relations between Mr. "Nicky" Arnstein and the District Attorney's office. For a while "the gentleman accused of being "the master mind" in the little matter of five million dollars' worth of securities conducted long-range negotiations, acting in his own name and by his own proper authority, with the State of New York, and there seemed for a time some hope that he would accept Judge Swann's fourteen points and sign an armistice. But at the last moment he seems to have feared that he would be made the victim of a Carthaginian peace; so he resumes his peregrinations between long-distance telephone booths in Cleveland, Syracuse, Pittsburgh and way stations, leaving the neutral mediator, Mr. McGee, deprived of his excellent chance of winning the Nobel peace prize.

Now by the long-distance telephone, which he seems to be able to employ with much better success than the average citizen, he issues a statement of war aims. In the first place, he is absolutely innocent. He would like to come home because he misses his family, but he can't raise a hundred thousand dollars bail. And "I am ill with "rheumatism and don't want to lie in "the Tombs for three or four "months." Here is a frank statement which ought to be useful as a basis for further discussions looking toward a negotiated peace. Brushing aside all propaganda, it is evident that Mr. Arnstein's minimum demands are concerned principally with strategic guarantees against the rheumatism. If the District Attorney's office can make arrangements to confine him in some bathing establishment instead of the vulgar institution on Centre Street, perhaps he will come home. If he refuses an honest proposal of that sort, one can only suspect that he is a humorist even more gifted than his wife.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Situation Viewed by Experts. It will not add anything to the immediate popularity of the Bar Association that it has cast a coldly critical eye on the various bills relating to rents now before the State Legislature and for most of them expresses only disapproval. This is due, probably, to the fact that the members of the association are wont to take the constitutionality of a proposed law into consideration before approving its enactment, and besides it probably is not enough for them, as it is for a good many enraged tenants, just now, that a proposed law, if passed and enforced, would make life miserable for all landlords and so punish them for their sins.

The bill reviving the law repealed two years ago, the law that made the duration of occupancy, when not a matter of explicit contract, run until the following May, is advised by the association, but for the Dimin bill, which has received more of commendation in and out of the Legislature than any of the others now waiting action, it has no good words to say and with it many faults to find.

The report of the association is not very helpful, except as it may move both the Legislature and the public to realize that much care will have to be exercised, and not a little wisdom, before a real solution of the equally serious and difficult rent problem can be found. Any merely vindictive measure would be worse than useless, and it is hard to see much else than the desire to punish in many of the bills that have been drawn. Perhaps if the Bar Association were asked for advice, its combined knowledge and ingenuity could produce a law that at least would mitigate the renting situation.

Utilizing a Noble Precedent. While tenants are waiting relief from Albany that may be long in coming, it would be judicious for those who have the resources required for determined litigation to find out if there is not help for them in the laws we already have. They should ponder the hint to be found in the recent decision that he who charges for a ham $11 more than it is worth cannot collect the excess, but must be content with a reasonable profit. This is just what the revolted tenants of the big apartment house in Forest Hills seem to have done, for they have hired a lawyer and purpose to get a court decision as to whether they can be forced either to move or to submit to a doubling of the rents they now are paying. Nobody will object to that—least of all lawyers, associated or other—and it is a plan of considerable hopefulness, especially at a time like this, when the traditional uncertainty as to what a petty jury will do in a given case has been much decreased in cases like this one.

The Forest Hills controversy is a particularly interesting one because of what may be described as the literary skill of both the landlord's agent and the leader of the rebels. Each of them, for an amateur, shows notable command of satire, but the agent should have been—and in the future probably will be—more cautious in the use of that often dangerous weapon, satire. He rather severely wounded himself when he referred to the price of oil, in which, it seems, his antagonist is a large dealer. For the return blow was a comparison between oil prices and rents that was decidedly in favor of the former.

Next time the landlord's man will fortify himself with figures before he begins. As it is, he has lost the first skirmish, but that is not enough to make a real warrior despair.

His Object Was Not a Record. Those who have assumed that an altitude record was the only object sought by Major Rudolph Schroeder when he climbed nearer to the sky than man ever went before must have felt, or at any rate had an excuse for feeling, that he put his courage to rather futile use. It would not be really worth while to risk life and endure much cruel suffering merely to beat other altitude hunters by spending a few minutes in a region as unfitted for human abiding as is the bottom of the sea.

That the Major did have his eye on a record he does not deny, but he explains that the setting of a new height mark was only incidental to effort at a far less sterile achievement. What he wanted to discover was whether they are right or wrong who contend that if a plane flies high enough it will find two mighty currents of air, one moving toward the east and another, above it, going the other way.

If these currents do exist, they are likely to be the future's best pathways for the making of long journeys at enormous speed. The difficulties and dangers of travel in air much rarefied and intensely cold are not insuperable. Already Major Schroeder knows why he had such a terrible experience, and he confidently expects his next trip toward the stars to be a fairly comfortable one. Oxygen and warmth, fortunately, are portable and may be carried almost anywhere.

A Death Purely Accidental. Lamentable as was the fatal injury of young Milton Sternfeld while he and another young man, his close friend, were giving a brief exhibition of very amateur boxing, it has practically no bearing on the question whether the exercise or sport that brought them into the semblance of conflict is one to be commended or reprehended.

What happened evidently was an accident, and it was an unavoidable accident, except that an examination by a doctor before the bout began just possibly might have revealed the unwisdom of strenuous physical exertion by young Sternfeld. The need of such an examination before a contest so far from fierce between two boys in seemingly perfect health was very far from obvious, however—so far that failure to make it cannot fairly be said to render anybody worthy of blame or criticism.

Such blows as the one that was struck a few moments after the bout began are endured with impunity so often and by so many young men that reasonably enough they excite no apprehension. Perhaps they should excite more of it than they do, for the point of the jaw is a place where severe shocks to the whole nervous system can be given.

MARCH MORNING.

A pale sun glints across the swirling drifts,
Bent trees are crackling with a silver load,
A wild gale shrieks in mischief as it lifts
A stinging screen of flakes across the road.

It seems midwinter still, and still the world
Lies wrapped in sleep upon the year's high shelf,
But March is such a rogue, his challenge hurled
In fury cannot hide his other self.

A softer azure tints the sky's cold blue,
Sometimes, for moments, all the wind is quiet,
Ice jewels melt to tears, the rendezvous
Of ruffled sparrows teems with April riot.

Still roars the lion, but the lamb is bolder,
The madness has a subtle touch of play,
The night was Winter, but the Spring, grown older,
Knows what a sham of Winter is today.

EDNA MEAD.

WOMEN DELEGATES.

A Complaint That the City Republicans Are a Man's Party.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As evidenced by their choice of delegates and alternates in New York City to the Chicago Convention, the Republican Party has completely failed to take women "at their word" and estimate them "on equal terms" with men. Instead of basing its choice of the absurdly small number of women delegates on their record and qualifications, as it professes to do with men, it has almost uniformly selected merely those women who were placed in certain party positions after the granting of equal suffrage two years ago, regardless of whether their claims to actual achievement equaled or surpassed the claims either of other women or of the men in the party. Conspicuous initiative and leadership have usually counted for nothing in these selections. On the contrary, it is perfectly evident that in many cases a premium is placed upon the woman who is content to be a submissive understudy to the men with whom she is associated. A great cry has been raised as to the menace of a "woman's party." Is this a mesh to hide the self-evident fact that in New York City, at any rate, the Republican Party intends to be a "man's party," leavened, by cruel necessity, with a very few feminine "rubber stamps"?

As far as the selection of delegates goes, the Democratic Party has been far more astute, and to that extent it is securing enthusiastic support among its alert women. It has chosen as delegates not merely holders of small organization offices, but women who, by reason of energy and initiative, whatever their handicaps may be, are recognized as leaders among its women and as genuine assets to the party. To the casual observer, the names of these women are associated with political achievement of some sort.

The suspicion that, in this part of the world at least, the Republican Party is suffering from a bad attack of "dry rot," that it is falling back into the sluggish reaction which brought about the disaster of 1912 and condemned it to eight years of "innocuous desuetude," would seem to be substantiated by the stupidity and injustice shown in the number and choice of women delegates to Chicago, by the sorry showing made by its present leaders at Albany, and by its extraordinary determination to risk a seat in the United States Senate rather than supplant a Senator deserted by a large part of his constituents because they fear his close association with a discredited political machine, and his inability to keep step with the steady, forward march of progress. We have had dreams of a party arising from defeat, chastened, renewed in strength; we have had visions of a nation which, during these tragic years of war, had learned the beauty of sacrifice for a great ideal, of self-forgetfulness in service. Has it all counted for nothing?

The Russian Church.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In a recent issue of your paper there appeared an article headed "America's Russian Archbishop Is Safe." In that little article there is so much misinformation about the Russian Church that I deem it my duty to write these few lines.

Here are the plain facts: Former Archbishop Evdokim, head of the Russian Church in America, left this country in July, 1917. His place was taken by the First Vicar, Bishop Alexander Nemolovsky. That was done in accordance with the Church law and also at the special request of Archbishop Evdokim by cablegram from Moscow. That the present Archbishop Alexander is not "without authority from the Elected Synod," as the article states, I am inclosing an affidavit from Metropolitan Platon, former President of the Elected Synod, in which it is plainly stated that "Archbishop Evdokim transmitted to his First Vicar, Bishop Alexander, his right in the ruling of the Russian Church in America," and that "Bishop Alexander by virtue of these instructions was obliged to exercise the right of ruling Archbishop." This affidavit of the President of the Elected Synod of Russia, established just after the revolution, surely must have more value than bare assertion of any professor.

Soon after arrival in Russia Archbishop Evdokim was appointed by the Patriarch as Archbishop of the Kostroma Diocese. That appointment automatically cut his connection with the American Church.

In March, 1918, at the Cleveland convention, the Russian-American Church elected Alexander Nemolovsky as its ruling Archbishop. The right of election of Bishops was established at the Ecumenical Church Council at Moscow (1917-1918); no one can dispute it. As to the return of former Archbishop Evdokim, nobody wants it, and no faction endeavors to communicate with him. There is no need for that. Our Church has been reorganized on the truly democratic principles; we know our rights and we cannot allow any one to take them away. We are trying to communicate with the Patriarch Tikhon, but, unfortunately, that is impossible at present.

As to the reference to the Red Cross funds having been misused, improper tax returns, &c.—all that had been done during the incumbency of Archbishop Evdokim, insinuations of the article to the contrary. The visit of the revenue officers, arrest of papers, receivership—all that was due to former sins for which the present Archbishop cannot be held responsible.

Secretary Diocesan Council of the Russian Church in America, Member All-Russian Ecumenical Council at Moscow.

Lodge Quoted for Lodge.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The moral obligation of the United States, as one of the Allies in the late war, to assist in establishing the League of Nations, and thus to do whatever is possible to prevent the recurrence of another war is incontrovertible. It is a grave discredit to our institutions and their practical working that so statesmanlike a conception should be held up, month after month, by petty differences and party jealousies.

I should like to call the attention of your readers to the following sentence from Senator Lodge's "Life of Alexander Hamilton," which repeats as nearly as possible the condemnation which all internationally minded men must feel to be due to the present hair-splitting and self-defeating manoeuvring; he is speaking of the Congress before 1787 (p. 39): "Hamilton looked with absolute disgust upon this dogged refusal to pay the price of freedom, this stupid indifference to honor, rapidly degraded by the practical disregard of all just claims."

For Trade with Russia.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I note in your columns of March 5 a letter signed by Jerome Landfield containing an attack on the American Commercial Association to promote trade with Russia and on the American business men who compose its memberships.

I wish to state that the American Commercial Association was formed of, by and for American business men; that it was not formed by or for any foreign agency or individual, that it was formed for the purpose of serving a real need to American commercial interests at the present time, and that its organization, purposes and activities are open to the inspection and scrutiny of all reputable American business men at all times.

President American Commercial Association; President Lehigh Machine Company, Lehighton, Pa.

18,279 SCHOOLS CLOSED.

Unable to Get Teachers Because of Low Salaries Paid.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The country is faced with a serious shortage of school teachers, chiefly through failure to provide adequate salaries, according to reports to the United States Bureau of Education. Conditions are becoming slightly better, however, the report states, in some sections, compared with those of last October.

Based on returns from State school officials, the reports show that on Feb. 13 last 18,279 schools were closed because of lack of teachers and 41,900 were being taught by teachers characterized as "below standard, but taken on temporarily in the emergency." Greater shortages are shown in Southern States.

A great majority of the States in which schools were closed report that children are being transferred to other districts, while the others report pupils losing the grade.

Taxpayers are reported almost unanimously for an increase in teachers' salaries. Salaries paid in 1918 were, on an average, $606 for elementary teachers and $1,031 for those in high schools. Wages paid rural teachers fell far below the foregoing average in many States, many localities showing salaries as low as $150 and $200 a year.

In 190 State, county, city and private normal schools, representing 60 per cent. of the total normal schools in the country, there were 11,503 fewer students enrolled Nov. 1, 1919, than during the pre-war period. A similar falling off is shown in teacher-training departments in colleges, while other departments show great increases in enrollment.

A. O. Neal of the bureau's Division of Rural Education said today there was an increasing withdrawal of men teachers from the profession, the percentage in 1918 being only 17 per cent., or one in every six.

FOR A CONSTRUCTION CORPS

House Approves Separate Army Unit Despite Charge of Lobbying.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Existence of an "organized lobby of contractors," aided by interested army officers with the motive of amending the Army Reorganization bill so as to provide a separate construction corps, was charged in the House today by Representatives Madden of Illinois, Anthony of Kansas, Knutson of Minnesota and Wood of Indiana, all Republicans.

Representative Harrison, Democrat, of Virginia, a supporter of the proposed amendment, replied that there was "as much lobbying on one side as on the other." Other supporters declared that continuance of the corps as created during the war would result in great savings.

The amendment was adopted tentatively by a vote of 133 to 74, the House thereby making the first change in the bill as reported by the Military Committee.

Provision is made in the amendment for a corps of 250 officers and 8,000 men to have charge of all real estate purchases and construction by the War Department, except miscellaneous work now done by the Engineers' Corps. The House later reaffirmed its action by voting 77 to 47 to discharge the Quartermaster's Corps from such duties and transfer from the Quartermaster branch the officers and men necessary to fill the places created in the construction service.

The Republican leader, Mondell, chided Republican members for joining with the Democrats in approving the separate organization.

DEMOTE 300 OFFICERS.

Regulars on Staff Duty in Washington Get Pre-War Rank.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Return of more than 300 officers of the regular army on staff duty in Washington to their pre-war rank is provided in orders being issued by direction of General March, Chief of Staff.

Among the officers are Lieut. Col. John M. Milliken and Major J. M. Swing, aids to and sons-in-law of General March. Under the orders, which are effective Monday, both will revert to the rank of Captain. Colonel Grant will return to his regular rank of Major.

Orders for return to permanent rank also are being prepared for more than 100 officers with the American forces in Germany.

AMERICANS EAT LESS BEEF.

High Prices Turn Consumers to Veal and Mutton.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—High retail prices in 1919 reduced the per capita consumption of beef in America almost eight pounds, and caused the consumer to turn more frequently to veal and mutton, according to a statement today by the Department of Agriculture. Slightly less pork was eaten, but the total consumption of pork products was much larger than in 1917, and the exports of pork and lard were greater than ever shown in the records of the department.

The total meat consumption was less than in 1918, the per capita for 1918 being 150.08 and that in 1919 141.98.

Beef exports were shown to have fallen off 56.8 per cent., but the shipments of pork and lard to foreign ports showed a great increase. The exports were equivalent to 18,000,000 hogs weighing 200 pounds each. Less pork and lard were consumed in America, but the number of hogs slaughtered was a million more than in 1918.

Reduction in foreign orders was the heaviest blow received by the beef industry. Exports declined 56.8 per cent. from the previous year. The department attributed this to the return of European countries to the cheaper sources of supply in South America and Australia. The decrease in foreign orders for beef was so large as to bring the total meat production in America 4 per cent. lower than in 1918, when packers were supplying a great part of the European market.

Figures supplied by the department show the American people ate more veal and mutton than during the war, but the per capita consumption of goat meat, never large, was only 0.09 per cent.

GROW DISEASELESS PLANTS

Cambridge, Eng., Scientists Also Develop a Triple-Yield Wheat.

CAMBRIDGE, England, March 2.—Cambridge University botanists maintain that it is now possible to breed disease-proof plants. A special body of investigators who have been devoting themselves to the practical testing of the Mendelian heredity law, are engaged in immunizing wheat, oats, barley, potatoes and roots, the results of which will be shown in the Summer to a distinguished assembly of medical men.

The "plant doctors," as they are called, have already succeeded in breeding a new wheat known as "Yeoman," which has yielded twelve quarters (96 bushels) to the acre—three times an ordinary crop.

DAYLIGHT SAVING APPEAL.

Citizens Urged to Request Legislators to Oppose Repeal.

Marcus M. Marks, President of the National Daylight Saving Association, made an appeal yesterday to those who favor daylight saving to ask their Senators and Assemblymen to oppose the bill for its repeal now in the New York Legislature.

Mr. Marks asserted that 95 per cent. of the people favored daylight saving, but that the strongly organized 5 per cent. might succeed in the movement for its repeal, unless the friends of the plan became active in support of it.

Population Gains in Three Cities.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Population statistics for 1920 announced today by the Census Bureau included: Macon, Ga., 52,525, an increase of 11,860, or 29.2 per cent., over 1910; Chattanooga, Tenn., 57,895, an increase of 13,291, or 29.8 per cent., and Coatesville, Pa., 14,515, an increase of 3,431, or 31 per cent.

GEDDES SEES CLOSER BOND WITH AMERICA

New British Ambassador, Guest of American Luncheon Club, Predicts Stronger Friendship.

COMMON LANGUAGE A BAR

It Has Disadvantage as Well as Advantage, He Says—Proud of Nations' Records.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, March 12.—Sir Auckland Geddes today received from the American Luncheon Club here what he termed his first American welcome in his new capacity as British Ambassador to Washington, and he took the opportunity to point out some dangers to a real understanding between the American and British peoples that lie in the use of the same "literary language."

Ambassador Davis, in proposing the health of the newcomer to the ranks of diplomacy, admitted that he felt the same keen delight as when he had to initiate a new boy at school, but he paid a high personal tribute to Sir Auckland and said: "He has given the best proof of his opinion of America by choosing from American soil the real mistress of his destinies, Lady Geddes."

To make his point clear concerning the superficial difficulties which Americans and Englishmen have in understanding each other Sir Auckland indulged in personal reminiscences. He told how as a young and undistinguished student he had wandered through Europe and part of Africa and found extraordinarily close resemblances between the men he met and himself. Then he went to America, to a people with a like language to himself. He continued:

"I dare say that at first I was more than disappointed. I felt that I could not penetrate the crust that seemed to separate the Americans from myself. The people seemed quite different."

In a little while, however, the truth dawned on him that he had been misled by the common tongue. He had gone to Europe expecting great differences and had found great similarities. In America he expected everything to be similar and had found differences.

"But," he said, "suddenly the crust broke and I found myself living among a people who, despite superficial dissimilarities, mainly due to climate and history, were most remarkably like me."

Sir Auckland spoke of his warm admiration and appreciation for Americans, and then uttered a warning against criticism of a nation based on an unfortunate experience with one of its members. An Englishman, he remarked, who had seen his best girl go off with an American soldier is likely enough to declaim against all Americans, when his real meaning is that he hates seeing his girl take notice of any other male.

"What we all want to realize," he said, "is that nations cannot be judged by the few chance citizens, but by the expression of their collective will in hours of crisis. Judge Britain by her action as a nation during the war—or even during one month of the war, April, 1918—and I think no friend of Britain need be ashamed of his friendship. Judge America by her action when she came into the war, her whole-hearted adoption of compulsory military service, and even more striking voluntary rationing of food and fuel in millions of households, and I think no friend of America need be other than proud of his friendship.

"These are great things. These are the pure gold of unselfish idealism in national souls, and long after the hysterics and exaggerations have passed away and false generalizations have been exposed, the ultimate essential verity, the capacity to forget self for a common ideal, will bind our nations in a yoke of service to mankind."

$450,000 IN A. I. C. P. FUND.

Association Confident of Reaching $975,000 Goal, Says President.

Cornelius N. Bliss, Jr., President of the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, which has raised $450,000 of the fund of $975,000 which it is seeking to carry on its work in the face of increasing costs, said yesterday:

"Restoring the family to a position where more of its members can act as wage-earners is the goal sought. The preventive and remedial factor consists of guarding the health of the children, guiding their education so that at the earliest time practicable they can take up the burden.

"We feel that money spent wisely for relief of this kind is an investment for the ultimate well-being of the city. Because of this we regard with every confidence our present effort to raise the $975,000 fund which make possible the continuance of this work."

TELLS OF PICTORIAL LOSSES

Witness Says Its Books Showed Decline of $683,000 in 1917.

Isador Schlanger, an ex-employe of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, testifying yesterday at the trial of Jay A. Weber, Secretary of the Pictorial Review Company, charged with trying to bribe Nathaniel W. Gropper, a revenue agent, to swear falsely to the company's income, said that the records of the company showed it made $700,000 in 1916 and only $17,000 in 1917. He said it was explained that $400,000 was lost in stock transactions.

In March, 1917, the witness said, the company declared a dividend of $800,000, half the capital stock, which was rescinded in November, 1917. The stockholders were asked to return the money and 95 per cent. of them gave promissory notes. William P. Ahnelt, President and principal stockholder of the company, gave such a note, Schlanger said, and had not redeemed it.

E. Barrett Prettyman of the Internal Revenue office refused to produce tax returns of the company without permission of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue or of the Secretary of the Treasury. Frank M. Roosa for the defense asked for a warrant for Colonel Daniel L. Porter, Supervising Revenue Agent, for not producing the returns. Benjamin P. De Witt, the Government prosecutor, asked that the subpoena served on Colonel Porter be quashed. The Court decided not to compel production of the return but, if the defendant was convicted, to grant a new trial if it was shown that the testimony of Gropper and Schlanger was contradictory.

CALLS BONUS GRANT A MATTER OF VOTES

New Yorker's Blunt Statement at Hearing Stirs Fordney, Who Styles It an "Insult."

RAINEY SUPPORTS WITNESS

Legion Member Asserts Majority Do Not Want Gift—Opposition in Committee Growing.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The statement by a witness that members of Congress would support soldier relief legislation to get votes started a dispute today in the House Ways and Means Committee.

The witness was Frank P. Keech of New York, a former Lieutenant Colonel in the Inspector General's department.

"I consider that an insult to members of Congress," declared Chairman Fordney.

"I did not mean it as an insult, but it is true" Keech replied.

"Members of Congress are influenced by the will of the people and rightly so," said Representative Garner, Democrat of Texas.

"I consider it an insult for any person to say that I would spend two billion dollars of public money to be elected to Congress," insisted Chairman Fordney.

Representative Henry T. Rainey, Democrat of Illinois, told Keech he did not consider his remark an insult and that he would appeal to the committee to overrule Chairman Fordney's effort to suppress freedom of speech among witnesses.

"What was your salary before and after the war," asked Representative Frear, Republican of Wisconsin, after the wrangle had subsided.

"I don't wish to give that." Keech said.

"You are a broker and you speak from the Wall Street viewpoint," said Mr. Frear. "Do you know if boys on the farm who lost everything feel as the people do who lived in New York?"

"From conditions in New York, I would say that a bonus is not desired or needed by the average discharged soldier," Keech replied.

Fears for Bond Values.

He was concerned over the predicted decrease in bond values. He objected to the suggestion of Representative Rainey that a tax be placed on the 23,000 men who became millionaires during the war. He quoted statements from a report compiled by army officers that 80 per cent. of the men of the Canadian Army spent their bonuses in several weeks.

G. M. Rushmore, a bank clerk of New York City, who fought at Château-Thierry and was a voluntary witness, opposed bonuses. He said he was a member of the American Legion, and that out of his pay as a Sergeant he saved more than from his civilian salary.

"The soldiers do not actually want a bonus," he asserted. "They do not want to be rewarded for their services. At least that is the opinion of men I meet who, like myself, are working for small salaries. The position of most of the ex-service men regarding the proposed bonus is that they will take it if they can get it. But they are not making any demand upon Congress for it.

Means Heavier Burden Says Veteran.

"I believe if the ex-service men could learn just what such a bonus would mean to themselves and the taxpayers generally they would be more generally opposed to the proposition. It does not matter how you raise the money, the result would be the same, an increased cost of living and a heavier burden on the people. If the money is obtained by a consumption tax, it would fall heaviest on the poor."

The ill-effect of floating a loan of $2,000,000,000 for bonuses revealed by Treasury officials has tended to lessen support for such legislation in the Ways and Means Committee and, according to a member, a casual poll made today shows that it stands 13 to 12 against bonuses, with the prospect that it will refuse to report any of the numerous bills. He also said 80 per cent. of the House members deemed it inadvisable to expend any large sum.

Representative Mondell, Republican House leader, said the thorough presentation of the financial situation by Treasury officials had confirmed his belief that disaster might follow if any heavier burden was placed on the country.

Representative J. I. Nolan of California, who testified today, suggested that there should be bonus legislation to cover five years and that the revenues therefor should be raised by a tax of 1 per cent. on gross sales.

MID-LENT CELEBRATION MADE PARIS GAY AGAIN

"Queen of Queens" Ruled on Thursday and the Whole City Frolicked.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 11.—For the first time since Armistice Night Paris has shown today something of its pre-war gaiety of spirit and love of fun. It was Mi-Carême, and after the tragic interval of six years the "Procession of Queens," which dates from the Middle Ages, was revived.

Preparations for the celebration had been going on for weeks. Each trade at which women work chose for itself the prettiest queen it could find in its ranks, and of the ten selected Mlle. Lucile Bataille, a stenographer, was elected "Queen of Queens."

Today Queen Lucile ruled in Paris, and as a sign of her sovereignty received the kiss of the President of the Republic when she called on him in her state chariot. With her went an immense procession of wonderful vehicles built for the occasion and representing trade incidents or jests.

The Queen's own chariot, which was twenty-one feet long and eighteen high, represented the colonnade of a temple in gold and white, with lions at the foot of the throne and cupids for drivers. Behind her the other queens came in a chariot representing a huge basket of flowers, and one, the Queen of Food, in an immense saucepan. Charlie Chaplin, too, had a chariot all to himself, with a grotesque figure of the famous movie actor enthroned, and others dealt with such topics as the recent transport crisis. The number of queens was increased by two this year. One of them, Mlle. Suzanne Wurtz, famous as a swimmer, who has challenged the feminine world, represented sport, and the other came as representative of the recovered town of Metz.

The sun shone on the procession, and practically the whole population of Paris and its suburbs gathered on the boulevards to see it pass. Hundreds were in fancy dress, and although the use of confetti was forbidden by the police the gaiety was not less on that account. Over the whole five miles the procession traveled the crowds were dense and Parisians laughed and cheered as they have not for years.

REJECTION OF COLBY MIGHT HIT SUFFRAGE

There Would Be No Official, It Is Said, Authorized to Proclaim Ratification of Amendment.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Failure by the Senate to confirm the nomination of Bainbridge Colby as Secretary of State might cause an awkward situation if the suffrage amendment is ratified by the necessary thirty-six States. The amendment provides that it become effective on ratification, and this is construed to mean that it becomes part of the Federal Constitution when the Secretary of State issues a proclamation setting forth the fact of the ratification by the requisite number of States.

Under the law the President may designate an Acting Secretary of State or a Secretary of State ad interim to serve in that capacity for thirty days. Frank L. Polk, the Under Secretary of State, has been serving as Acting Secretary of State for nearly that period. His tenure will expire Monday, and unless a way can be found to have him continue to exercise the prescribed duties of the Secretary of State beyond that period there will be no officer of the Government authorized to proclaim an amendment to the Constitution and perform other important acts.

Mr. Polk will be able to preside over the affairs of the State Department as an administrator, but his hands will be tied when it comes to signing and issuing certain State documents.

The Attorney General has been asked to render an opinion as to whether, in the event that there is a vacancy in the office of Secretary of State, a person may be designated to serve as Acting Secretary or Secretary ad interim for a period longer than thirty days. It is expected that the Attorney General's opinion will be rendered tomorrow. On the face of the law howover there appears to be no way to issue a Federal proclamation until some one nominated to and confirmed by the Senate has qualified as Secretary of State.

It is taken for granted, however, that should Mr. Colby be confirmed he would proclaim that the amendment was embodied in the Constitution from the date the State Department received formal notice from the thirty-sixth ratifying State.

WASHINGTON, March 12 (Associated Press).—Passports now being issued at the rate of from 650 to 800 a day may be held up after tomorrow until it is determined who is the head of the State Department, as Bainbridge Colby's nomination has not yet been confirmed by the Senate and the tenure of Frank L. Polk as Acting Secretary will expire tomorrow night by limitation.

Sixty per cent. of the passports now issued are for travel in Europe and 20 per cent. in Cuba.

Virtual decision not to call further witnesses in connection with Mr. Colby's nomination was reached today by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee after it had heard Walter Mack, of New York, formerly official of the War Trade Board. Some members thought committee action might be taken tomorrow.

Women Oppose Wadsworth.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., March 12.—In a conference of the women voters of the Thirty-fourth and Thirty-seventh Congressional Districts of the New York State League of Women Voters in session here today, members of the league and representatives of other women's organizations unanimously voted to oppose the nomination and re-election of Senator James Wadsworth.

DELAWARE GOVERNOR LOOKS FOR SUFFRAGE

But States That He Has No Poll Showing Just How the Legislators Will Vote.

Special to The New York Times.

DOVER, Del., March 12.—Governor Townsend, who returned today from a business trip to Boston, was asked as to the prospects for the woman's suffrage amendment at the special session of the Legislature, which will convene here March 22.

The Governor said he never had a poll of the members of the General Assembly assuring the passage of the suffrage amendment, but reiterated the statement made a week ago that he believed the amendment would pass. All the assurances he had as to its passage, he said, was from verbal expressions of the members some months ago, when he first considered calling a special session.

At the Delaware equal suffrage headquarters here an effort was made to secure the poll of the legislators the organization had made, but it was said that when the poll was taken assurances were given that the names of those who had pledged positively would not be revealed.

It is generally conceded at the State Capitol that neither the Governor nor the suffrage advocates will have any idea how the members will line up on the amendment until they meet here a week from Monday.

One report coming from a prominent Sussex County Republican was that not a single Republican member of the Legislature from that county would vote for the amendment.

GIVES BAIL IN BOXING DEATH

Columbia Treasurer Surety for Lockett, Pending Autopsy.

Andrew Lockett, the Columbia University student who was arrested on Thursday night following the death of Milton Sternfeld, a fellow student with whom he had been boxing in Earl Hall, was arraigned yesterday before Magistrate Schwab in the Washington Heights Court on a technical charge of homicide. He was released in $2,000 bail, provided by Frederick A. Goetze, Treasurer of Columbia, for examination on March 18.

The hearing was postponed on motion of Assistant District Attorney Carlino, who told the Court that an autopsy would be held to determine the cause of Sternfeld's death. There was doubt as to whether the student was killed by the blows his friendly opponent had landed on his jaw or by reason of an organic trouble, Mr. Carlino said.

Many friends of both Lockett and Sternfeld were in the court, as well as members of the Columbia Faculty. Edward Hymes, a lawyer, who is an uncle of Sternfeld, told Magistrate Schwab that Lockett and his nephew were close friends, and he believed the death was not due to the blows the student received.

Plan Airplane Landings on Roof.

CHICAGO, March 12.—Plans for converting the roof of the proposed new Union Station here into a landing field for airplanes were before the Chicago Air Board today. They were presented by William J. H. Strong of the American Association of Engineers. The station roof will have an area of more than two city blocks, he said, affording adequate room for low speed planes to land. It would be particularly valuable for the use of mail planes, he stated, adding that the high speed ships could transfer their cargoes to the slower planes in mid-air outside the city limits.

MORGAN & COMPANY TAKE MILLS BUILDING

Acquire 84-Year Leasehold and Will Replace Famous Wall and Broad Street Structure.

DETAILS NOT GIVEN OUT

New Development, Which Will Be Home of Subsidiaries, Will Be Completed in Two Years.

It was announced yesterday by J. P. Morgan that J. P. Morgan & Co. had acquired an eighty-four-year lease on the L-shaped plot forming the eastern and southern boundary of the Morgan banking house, at Broad and Wall Streets, and within two years would replace the old Mills Building, that has stood upon the site for thirty-five years.

Although negotiations on other terms of the lease have been completed, the papers have not been signed, and, pending signature, all clauses of the contract are not to be made public. This formal conclusion of the deal probably will take place early next week.

In the financial district it is expected that the price will establish a record, because the plot is one of the best sites there. Not only is the site in a good strategic position, with frontages on Wall Street, Broad Street and Exchange Place, but it is virtually the only site available near the intersection of Wall and Broad Streets.

Although the Morgan bank had streets on both sides on its site on the southeast corner of Wall and Broad Streets, there was always the menace that the Mills Building, on the L-shaped plot on the other sides, might be replaced by an objectionable structure. The completion of the new four-story Morgan building in 1914 made it more desirable that the new structure be protected at the rear.

No Plans for Building.

No plans have been made for the new office building on the site of the old building, which was erected by Darius O. Mills. Neither representatives of the Morgan firm nor the Mills estate were able to say how far the height of the new building would be restricted by the zone laws.

Speaking of the application of the zone law to this site, real estate men said yesterday that it was permissible to erect a building two and one-half times as high as Broad Street is wide at this point, which is about eighty-five feet. They pointed out that a fifteen-story building could be put up, although the depth of the plot on Exchange Place might permit the erection of a side or tower there of almost any height desired, merely by use of the "set-back," thus tapering the side of the tower in accordance with the zone law.

The present Mills Building is eleven stories high, and covers about 23,000 feet of surface area. It runs about 163 feet on Broad Street, 29 on Wall Street and 126 feet on Exchange Place. The present building thus has entrances on three sides and three streets in the financial section, increasing its desirability as an office structure.

Mills Building Famous.

The Mills Building was erected thirty-five years ago, and because of its location, size and cost, as well as the prominence of the tenants, became famous throughout the country. Among its 800 tenants during its early history was Collis P. Huntington, James B. Haggin, some of the Morgan subsidiaries, and many mining and railroad men whose names were known over the world.

On rainy days the broad halls opening upon Broad Street, as well as on Exchange Place and Broad Street, were filled with the members of the old Curb Market Association, who, on fair days, traded at its front doors in Broad Street. Unmolested, the traders continued their deals in the broad rotundas.

The site of the building is assessed at about $3,500,000, and, with improvements at about $4,150,000. The Morgan site, on the southeast corner of Broad and Wall Streets is valued, land alone, at about $4,100,000, and the cost of the four-story building there was about $1,000,000.

Although the Morgan building was erected on especially heavy foundations, so that additional stories might be added above the present height of four, there is as yet no idea of carrying the height of this building on up with the new structure. Representatives of the Morgan company said yesterday that this would probably require the erection of heavy pillars in the present banking rooms, causing undesirable obstructions.

Subsidiaries in New Building.

There has also been the idea that in other arrangements, as well as in architecture, the present building was too desirable to be surmounted by another structure. The building is large enough for the accommodation of the banking business and to provide offices for the Morgan partners, with dining rooms and other conveniences.

Gradually the Morgan subsidiaries have been established in quarters outside the banking house, many of them in the Mills Building itself, and all of these will be gathered together in the new building. One of the departments, called the Foreign Trade Department, organized by E. R. Stettinius early in the war to take care of the purchases for British and other allied Governments here, had quarters in the Wall Street side of the Mills Building.

Other Morgan companies with offices in the Mills Building are the newly organized Foreign Finances Corporation, of which Arthur M. Henderson, formerly head of the bond department of J. P. Morgan & Company, is President, and Foreign Commerce of America, of which Lieut. Col. Grayson M.-P. Murphy is President. It was recalled in Wall Street yesterday that when Thomas W. Lamont recently announced the formation of the Foreign Commerce subsidiary he recalled that the founder of the Morgan house, Junius Spencer Morgan, was primarily a merchant, and that Mr. Lamont also predicted great expansion in the foreign trade field.

Many Wall Street Changes.

Improvement of the Mills site is one of many changes in Wall Street. It was announced in February that the New York Stock Exchange, directly across Broad Street from the main entrance of the Mills Building, had acquired an eight-year lease on the southwest corner of Wall and Broad Streets from the Wilks estate and would erect an extension of the Exchange there as soon as the expiration of leases permitted the tearing down of the old building. Running along Wall Street, between the Wilks Building and New Street, the Stock Exchange acquired also the Mortimer Building. A new office and banking building is under construction on the north side of Wall Street adjoining the United States Sub-Treasury, so that this centre of the financial district at Wall and Broad Streets soon will be greatly improved with new buildings.

Many of the leases in the Mills Building have years to run, but it is expected that the structure may be vacated so that construction of the new building may begin within two years. Among the present tenants are Henry Clews & Co. and the Continental Bank of America.

Roosevelt Homestead Drive.

Mrs. John Henry Hammond, President of the Women's Roosevelt Memorial Association, announced yesterday at its national headquarters, at 1 East Fifty-seventh Street, that a campaign would be conducted from April 5 to April 15 for funds for the restoration of the old Roosevelt homestead, at 28 East Twentieth Street, which has been purchased by the association, to its appearance at the time when Colonel Roosevelt was born in 18[illegible].

VOCATIONAL BOARD CALLS FOR INQUIRY

House Committee Will Investigate Charges of Neglect of Disabled Soldiers.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—The Federal Board for Vocational Education has asked for an investigation of charges that it had instructed its agents to be "hard boiled" in dealing with soldiers seeking educational rehabilitation.

Chairman Fess of the House Education Committee announced today that the inquiry would be stated by his committee tomorrow night and members of the board and others would be called. The committee decided several days ago that unless the board asked for the investigation one would be made by the committee on its own responsibility.

Charges that the board had neglected disabled soldiers and had delayed their re-education as much as a year were made in a memorandum presented to the committee today by Harold Littledale, a New York reporter, who will be one of the witnesses at the inquiry.

Mr. Littledale charged that, while the board had 209,000 cases registered with it on Jan. 17, nineteen months after its creation, it had placed in training only 24,000 men and had trained and placed in employment only 217. He said the men became so tired of waiting that 30 per cent. of all passed for training did not take advantage of it. Ten per cent. of those who took the training, he added, abandoned it "because the training is often a pretense."

Referring to the "hard boiled" order, the memorandum said it appeared in a circular written in the central office of the board.

WANT TO JOIN TICKER CASE.

Dow, Jones & Co. Test Suit May Have Additional Plaintiffs.

Martin C. Ansorge, attorney for Gaston Jaillet in the action against Dow, Jones & Co. for stock losses alleged to have been suffered through the erroneous report of the United States Supreme Court's decision in the Macomber case, said yesterday that several attorneys had notified him that they had clients with similar causes of action and desired to participate in the test case.

Mr. Ansorge said that one of these clients was a resident of Washington, who left an order with his broker here to sell 1,000 shares of Crucible Steel short if the decision proved unfavorable. Mr. Ansorge said that the broker carried out these instructions upon receipt of the Dow, Jones & Co. ticker report, with the result that the customer lost $30,000.

Referring to the contention prevalent in Wall Street that he would have a better cause of action if his client were a brokerage firm getting the ticker service, Mr. Ansorge said that no contractual relation was involved in the case. "The case is based upon the dissemination of false information," he said. "The brokerage firms maintain the tickers for the information of their customers, who are invited to make free use of the tape and who rely upon the information printed on it in their business transactions."

TWO HELD IN FUR ROBBERY.

Charged with Chloroforming Woman for $2,000 Loot.

Richard P. Russell, 22 years old, and Patrick Lacey, 23 years old, both of 1,204 Second Avenue, were held in Yorkville Court yesterday in $2,000 bail, on the charge of stealing furs and silks worth $2,000 from the store of George Ratka, 711 Lexington Avenue, at 11 o'clock on Thursday night, after compelling Mrs. Ratka to open the door and then chloroforming her.

Mrs. Ratka, who lives at 245 East Sixty-seventh Street, said she was going to enter the store when two men seized her, compelled her to unlock the door and drugged her while they looted the place. Russell and Lacey were arrested after a special policeman had fired two shots after two men carrying bundles into the address in Second Avenue had refused to halt. Policeman King and Bagley later entered the place, arrested Russell and Lacey and recovered a quantity of silks and furs.

GOVERNOR APPEALS FOR PEOPLE'S HELP

Makes Plea at Syracuse for Support of His Reconstruction Program.

FOR MORE EXECUTIVE POWER

Would Make Governor Responsible for Good Government—Addresses Women and Business Men.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., March 12.—Governor Alfred E. Smith today made a direct appeal here to the people for the support of his program for the reconstruction of the State Government, which has encountered opposition in the Legislature, and for the other measures which he believes make for the betterment of conditions in New York State. It was his first up-State trip in his campaign to crystalize public sentiment behind the things he believes are necessary.

The Governor addressed an audience of women Democrats late today, was guest at a dinner given by the Reconstruction Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, which was non-partisan in character, and tonight addressed a gathering of business men, at which he outlined changes he advocates in the State Government.

One effect of these changes would be to centralize authority in the Executive, making him responsible for the proper conduct of State government, make the Governor's term four years, and reduce the number of elective officers. Another would permit the Executive to establish a budget system. Governor Smith asserted that under the present system an Executive is handicapped by division of authority and restrictions.

In his address to the women Democrats, the Governor advocated the following measures:

Legislation to make school teaching more attractive financially, completion of the Barge Canal and terminals, development of water power for State benefit, minimum wage law for women and minors, eight-hour day for women, State subsidized community health centres, better care of the insane, compensation for industrial diseases, immediate relief of housing situation, State control of the production and distribution of milk, and abolition of the Council of Farms and Markets.

Skolny Clothes

FOR YOUNG MEN AND BOYS

Factory Morale

The fabrics chosen for SKOLNY Clothes are the finest that are woven abroad and at home.

Our tailors are not only willing to do the best work, but they know how to do it.

They realize that skimped, insincere workmanship would discredit Skolny Clothes, and this would reflect upon them individually and collectively.

All our people share the sentiment that poor needlework would be treason against the organization—and a palpable fraud upon the public.

The honor of labor is the unchartered union that keeps them true to the Skolny ideal.

In the arithmetic of the Skolny shops two and two still make four. There is no attempt to have them make five or six.

The pace is not so rapid that no time remains for care, and slow, painstaking attention to details.

RESULT:

Stylish, fitting Ready-for-service Clothes at prices so economical that the custom-tailor exists simply as an extravagant habit and vanity of man.

N. Y. U. AND RUTGERS TO PLAY IN FINALS

Rivals Will Meet for National A. A. U. Basket Ball Title in Tourney at Atlanta.

VIOLET FAVORED TO WIN

New Yorkers Defeat Kansas City A. C., 45 to 22, While Jersey Collegians Beat Y. M. O. of Detroit.

ATLANTA, March 12.—Two Eastern college teams, New York University and Rutgers, will fight it out for the Amateur Athletic Union's national basket ball championship here tomorrow. N. Y. U. went into the finals tonight by defeating the Kansas City Athletic Club, 45 to 22, and Rutgers won from the Young Men's Order of Detroit, 33 to 17.

The New York University five, conquerers yesterday of the last year's champions, the Los Angeles Athletic Club team, had a comparatively easy time with the Kansas City team. Faster and more accurate, the New York collegians worked the ball surely to the basket, while the Kansas City men took chances at long shots which paid poor dividends.

Some brilliant scoring was done by the New Yorkers, Goeller making eight goals from the floor, Cann seven and Mooney five. In addition Mooney scored five goals from foul in seven tries. Singer made five of Kansas City's nine goals from the floor.

The lineup:

N. Y. U. (45).		KANSAS CITY (22).
Cann	R. F.	Singer
Goeller	L. F.	Moberly
Mooney	C.	De Barnard
Delaney	L. G.	Joyce
Baker	R. G.	Peabody

Goals from field—Cann (7), Goeller (8), Mooney (5), Singer (5), Moberly (2), De Barnardi (2). Goals from foul—Mooney (5), De Barnardi (4).

Substitutions—Vanice for Joyce, Gettlish for Moberly.

Referee—Mr. Lange. Umpire—Mr. Yates. Timekeepers—Messrs. Ditmaas and Tichener. Scorer—Mr. Thorp.

In the Rutgers-Detroit game the Michigan quintet did not show the form it had displayed in other games and proved fairly easy for the New Jerseyites. The Detroit players repeatedly were forced to try for long shots.

The line-up:

RUTGERS (33).		DET. Y. M. O. (17).
Benzoni	R. F.	Fisher
Taliaferro	L. F.	Dermody
Hall	C.	Voss
Moni	R. G.	Kershner
French	L. G.	Whitmarsh

Goals from floor—Benzoni (5), Taliferro (6), Hall, Moni, French, Fisher, Dermody (4), Whitmarsh (2). Goals from foul—Taliaferro (5), Dermody (3).

Substitutions—Detroit: Whitmarsh for Voss, Houser for Kershner.

Referee—Tom Thorp, Columbia. Umpire—Mr. Yates. Scorekeeper—Mr. Lang.

Officials here who have been estimating the strength of the teams daily are tonight declaring their belief that nothing can prevent N. Y. U. from winning the A. A. U. championship of the United States when it plays the final game tomorrow. They point to the week's record as evidence of the complete superiority of the New Yorkers over the strongest fives sent here from coast to coast.

In the first game New York trounced the Houston Y. M. C. A. quintet by the overwhelming count of 86 to 21, a score rarely reached in the indoor game on the floor court.

Yesterday N. Y. U. won its way to the semi-final by drubbing no less a headline aggregation than the Los Angeles Athletic Club, champions of last year. Followers of A. A. U. basket ball said tonight that perhaps Los Angeles was slightly weaker than last year when the title was won, but they marvel at the stamina of the New Yorkers. The strain of game after game on successive days proved too much for such leading teams as the Crescent A. C. of Brooklyn and the Atlanta Athletic Club, both of which were eliminated yesterday in the second round, but tonight New York University lined up against the Kansans with seeming greater strength than shown on previous days.

This post-season schedule is entirely new for New York University, but the good care taken of the players by Physical Director Frank H. Cann is regarded as a strong factor. After the regular schedule of games was completed, N. Y. U. first met in an extra game the C. C. N. Y. five, conquerers of Yale, Columbia and West Point, and defeated th[illegible] spectators at the 22d Regiment Armory, New York. Then Faculty permission was given for the trip to Atlanta and all members in the squad were ordered to continue in training for the extra games.

The scores of games leading up to the final round for the championship resulted as follows:

First Round (Wednesday).

Crescent A. C., Brooklyn, 45; Northern Paper Mills, Green Bay, Wis., 30.
New York University, 86; Houston Y. M. C. A., 21.
Rutgers College, 36; University of Georgia, 33.
University of Utah, 61; Charlotte, N. C., Y. M. C. A., 20.
Kansas City A. C., 65; Spartanburg, S. C., Y. M. C. A., 26.
Los Angeles A. C., 45; Kentucky-Indiana Terminal Railroad, Louisville, Ky., 28.
Atlanta A. C., 57; University of Tennessee, 20.
Young Men's Order, Detroit, 53; Union Club, Belvidere, Ill., 20.

Second Round (Thursday).

N. Y. U., 35; Los Angeles A. C., 22.
Kansas City A. C., 27; Crescent A. C., 19.
Rutgers College, 35; University of Utah, 32.
Y. M. O. of Detroit, 51; Atlanta A. C., 26.

Semi-Finals (Friday).

N. Y. U., 45; Kansas City A. C., 22.
Rutgers, 33; Y. M. O. of Detroit, 17.

CHURCH HOUSE FIVE WINS.

Defeats Grace Club Team in 135-Pound Title Tourney.

The Bronx five, trailing through the first half, which ended with Grace Club in front by 12 to 8, rallied strongly in the second half, and kept the play continually in Grace Club territory.

In the only other game played the Madison Square Boys' Club quintet scored a close victory over the Henry Street Settlement by the score of 20 to 18.

The semi-finals and finals will be decided at City College Gymnasium March 23.

Columbia Athletes to Avoid Faculty Ban by New Scheme

The very newest model in the way of safeguards against 'Varsity candidates failing in their studies appeared at Columbia yesterday. The athletes themselves, acting through the 'Varsity "C" Club, decided to relieve the Faculty and the Student Board of the responsibility of keeping the team candidates in line. Hereafter the marks of each athlete will be examined once a month by a committee composed of the baseball Captain, a former football leader and the star guard on the eleven.

The monthly investigation was decided upon to forestall action by the Faculty, which looks into the academic standing of the students only once every three months. Any delinquents among the athletes at the end of the first month will be haled before the committee and the graduate manager of athletics, and a member of the committee will be assigned to each case. This unofficial supervision will continue until the back work is made up and the grades are restored to the proper level. The committee will consist of Jack Kennedy, Al Schnaars and J. H. Hinch, the last named of whom recently won the Football Cup for the best grades last semester.

NO CHANGES MADE IN FOOTBALL RULES

Committee Considers Proposals, but Adjourns Without Taking Action—Meets Again Today.

Thirteen sleepy, yawning, fatigued men filed out of Room 151 at the Biltmore Hotel in the early hours of this morning, worn out but fairly well satisfied. They were the solons of football, the high and mighty Football Rules Committee, and they had finished a tediously long meeting which began last night at 8 o'clock.

After hearing scores of proposals, after weighing, balancing and deliberating a whole medley of plans to change football in one form or another, the governing board of the greatest of intercollegiate sports adjourned until 10 A. M. today without having arrived at a single decision. Changes made be made today—in fact, considerable support was evident last night for the plan to make more difficult the point after a touchdown, but until the adjourned session is finished about noon today the gridiron game will remain without alteration.

The necessary organization was effected, however, and the committee, which represents every part of the country except the Pacific Coast, was started on another year of work. E. K. Hall of Dartmouth was re-elected Chairman, and Walter Camp of Yale will again serve as Secretary. Clyde Williams of Iowa State College was the only absentee, but two changes were made in the committee. Captain V. E. Pritchard now represents West Point, having been named to succeed Lieut. G. H. Francke, and W. W. Roper is the new Princeton representative in place of Parke H. Davis.

Those present were E. K. Hall, Dartmouth, Chairman; Walter Camp, Yale, Secretary; Dr. J. A. Babbitt, Haverford; C. W. Savage, Oberlin; Dr. H. L. Williams, Minnesota; W. A. Lambeth, Virginia; Captain V. E. Pritchard, West Point; Dr. Carl Williams, Pennsylvania; Commander Paul J. Dashiell, Annapolis; W. W. Roper, Princeton; A. A. Stagg, Chicago; Fred Moore, Harvard, and Al H. Sharpe, Yale. Nathan A. Tufts of Brown, one of the leading referees of the country, was present for part of the meeting as an adviser.

Great Assortment of Proposals.

No meeting of the Football Rules Committee has been held since 1917, and consequently no changes have been adopted in three years. That was the reason why the round table was covered copiously with letters, briefs and proposals, sent in from many college coaches and many officials, suggesting alterations. The scope of changes which the moguls will finally discard or adopt this morning covers a range from the ridiculous to the really meritorious. Of chief value, perhaps, were the Harvard proposals to abandon the present free kick after a touchdown and substitute in its place a play from the 20-yard line directly in front of the goal posts in which the teams will line up for scrimmage and the point obtained either by a drop kick or a goal from placement. The proposal of some Harvard men to substitute quarters of forty plays each instead of quarters of fifteen minutes was another before the board, and other suggestions included the award of a point for five sequential first downs or for rushing the ball to within five yards of the goal, narrowing goal posts to approximately fourteen feet, compelling teams to number players and to create an extra official to whom incoming players shall report.

More than the expected allotment of time was given to the radical proposals to eliminate the stop watch and the element of time from football games and to substitute as a measure forty plays for each period and 160 plays for each game. Harry R. Coffin, Harvard, '94, long an enthusiastic Harvard football supporter, but never a player, was the originator of this plan.

He was the first of the outsiders called into the executive session, and after a preliminary conference he was called back at 10:30 P. M., when he presented in detail the features of his proposals.

Princeton Less Guilty of Stalling.

Coffin showed by carefully recorded statistics that the present game of periods of fifteen minutes was open to exceptional opportunity for "stalling." He spared none of the "big three" in declaring they were offenders, although he did say that Princeton was less guilty than Harvard or Yale. Tennis, golf and baseball, he emphasized, are not governed by minutes or time. The measure is plays, not seconds.

Harvard and Yale have played thirty-eight times, said Coffin, and, barring the 1916 game, when the first and second periods were wrongly timed, the side that scored first always won. Moreover, he presented another fact of interest. He declared that except in 1892, 1893 and 1905 the second half has never changed the result.

In the last eight Harvard-Yale games the number of plays have been as follows, according to Coffin's statistics: 1919, 144 plays; 1916, 169; 1915, 148; 1914, 163; 1913, 147; 1912, 145; 1911, 121; 1910, 125. The variation, therefore, was from 121 plays to 169 plays a game, or 39 per cent. The smallest number in any period was 24, in the first period of the 1911 game, and the largest was 51, in the fourth period of the 1916 game. Variations by periods, therefore, exceed 100 per cent.

In the last five Harvard-Princeton games the periods have varied from 27 plays to 48 and in the last six Yale-Princeton games the shortest period was 20 plays and the longest 46 plays.

Coffin then explained why he had resolved on the number of 160 plays a game, forty a period. He exhibited statistics compiled by Nathan A. Tufts, prominent referee in recent games of the "big three." Seven games in which Tufts officiated averaged 159 plays and varied from 178 to 140. William S. Langford officiated in seventeen games where the average was 145 plays.

Crimson Captain to Wrestle.

CAMBRIDGE, March 12.—James A. MacDonell, Captain of the Harvard wrestling team, will be allowed to compete against Yale tomorrow in the 145-pound class. MacDonell, however, will not be permitted to serve as Captain. This decision was reached at an informal meeting of the Athletic Committee today.

WILDE OUTPOINTS MASON DECISIVELY

World's Flyweight Champion Excels American in 9 of 12 Rounds, with Two Even.

BRITON FORCES FIGHTING

Chases Fort Wayne Boxer Around Ring—Latter's Effort to Break Through Guard Futile.

TOLEDO, Ohio, March 12.—Jimmy Wilde of England, recognized flyweight boxing champion of the world, proved his right to the title tonight by decisively outpointing Frankie Mason of Fort Wayne, Ind., the American claimant of the title.

Wilde was the aggressor throughout the fight with the exception of the fifth round, when Mason braced himself and put the Englishman on the defensive. Two of the rounds were even, the fourth and tenth. The ring, which was twenty-one feet square, gave the little American plenty of room to jump away from the pressing Britisher.

Mason started to bleed from the mouth early in the battle, but he wore a smile of confidence while the little Briton, from the time he entered the ring, seemed set and determined.

Time after time Mason, when urged on by his enthusiasts, attempted to break through the Britisher's guard, but the plucky little Briton dodged, feinted, shifted and retaliated with a right and left, chasing the American about the ring.

After the fight Referee Ed Smith declared never in his life had he seen a young fellow, or any fighter, who was so willing to carry or mix matters as Wilde. Smith was of the opinion that it was a very even match, but declared that, according to the rules of the commission, he was not at liberty to announce the winner.

The following are the opinions of sporting authorities present at the ringside:

Sam Hill, Chicago Herald-Examiner—"Wilde won easily."

J. E. Wray, St. Louis Post-Dispatch—"Wilde won by yards."

Joe William, Cleveland News—"Wilde won seven rounds."

Tom Andrews, Milwaukee Journal—"Wilde easily the winner, although Mason fought a great battle."

Ollie Pecord, Toledo Referee of the Willard-Dempsey fight—"Wilde won."

C. W. Howard, Toledo Times—"Wilde easy winner."

Ad. Thacher, promoter of the fight—"Mason won by a shade."

Mason First in Ring.

Prince of Wales Will Race Horses on Canadian Tracks

Special to The New York Times.

VANCOUVER, B. C., March 12.—The thoroughbred horses and the famous silks of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales will be seen on Canadian race tracks during the coming Summer. Word to this effect has been received by J. Caryle, manager of the ranch which his Royal Highness purchased during his Canadian tour last Summer. The thoroughbreds, most of them two-year-olds, seven in number, will be shipped from the Prince of Wales's stables at Windsor and will arrive in Canada early in May or June. The horses, which are of pure English stock, are being sent to Canada primarily for breeding purposes, but some of them will be raced around the Canadian circuits.

OPPORTUNITY WINS NEW ORLEANS RACE

Takes Mile and Seventy Yards Event and Wins Lafitte Purse on Heavy Track.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 12.—Showing considerable improvement and a liking for the distance, despite a heavy track, William Woodward's Opportunity proved today at Jefferson Park that he could go a mile and seventy yards, though most of his successes have been been over the sprint route. Under a hustling ride by Wida he got down in front to capture the Lafitte Purse, which was the feature of the day's racing. Opportunity defeated Peccant and Warsaw, among others.

Though the track was anything but suitable for good racing, only two of the nine named for the race were withdrawn, these being Stepson and Docod, and Opportunity was made a 13 to 10 choice at post time. This was due largely to the fact that his previous race had indicated he was in need of a test over a mile and seventy yards distance to show at his best over the route.

McAtee was in the employ of W. R. Coe, and may ride for him again this season. Twenty-eight jockeys were granted licenses and 131 trainers had their applications favorably considered.

FOLWELL TO COACH ANNAPOLIS ELEVEN

Former Mentor of Quakers Succeeds Dobie in Charge of Navy Gridiron Team.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 12.—Bob Folwell, late gridiron mentor of the University of Pennsylvania, will coach the football team of the Naval Academy for the coming season. At a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Navy Athletic Association, held here this afternoon, he was offered the position, the terms being based upon a tentative agreement reached with Mr. Folwell while he was in Annapolis this week. He succeeds Gilmour Dobie, who has accepted the position of coach at Cornell.

Folwell talked the matter over thoroughly with Commander Howard, athletic officer at the Academy, and others connected with athletics here. The situation here was outlined to him and it is believed that he will fit into the position admirably. Prospects for a winning team are excellent and the spirit among the midshipmen is such that he will be given enthusiastic backing. The schedule for next season is the most formidable for many years and the Middies are confident that Folwell will turn out a team which will give the best possible account of itself.

GOULLET KEEPS HIS TEAM IN THE LEAD

Australian Cyclist Safeguards Advantage by Brilliant Riding in Sprints.

Bello-Madonna	2,069	2
Bowker-Bowker	2,069	1
Byron-Markey	2,069	1

Leader, Goullet. Record, 2,390 miles and no laps, made by Lawson and Drobach in 1914.

That dark and sinister villian, Alfred Goullet, again held the centre of the stage last night in the six-day cycling melodrama at Madison Square Garden. With the crown of the hapless Maurice Brocco perched rakishly on his head, the Australian gave the most impressive demonstration of recent years in the evening sprints that began at 9:30.

If there had been any doubt as to the unpopular racer's superiority as a sprinter, it was effectively removed and exiled for some time to come by the veteran's performance in the evening's dashes. While the fans booed and groaned with their usual gusto, he circled the track in front four times out of six sprints, and maintained his team's lead against repeated onslaughts by the other ten combinations.

Goullet's brilliant riding was the only factor that prevented him and his partner from being left behind in the racing score. The final results gave Goullet and Magin 49 points for the evening, Egg and Madden 46 and Kaiser and Hill 37. At 10:45 Goullet and his partner were heading the field with a 44-point advantage, and the Garden quieted down to spasmodic murmurs of disapproval at the victory of the Australian and his mate.

The point score at the end of last night's sprints was as follows:

Goullet-Magin	350	Godiver-Vannek	109
Egg-Madden	306	Lang-Chapman	104
Buysse-Spiessens	203	*Byron-Markey.
Kaiser-Hill	228	*Bello-Madonna.
Dupuy-Hanley	209	*Bowker-Bowker.
Coburn-Kopsky	158

*Do not figure in the point score.

In the forty-five minutes between 11:30 P. M. and 12:15 A. M. Goullet further enriched himself and his teammate by capturing two special prizes, one of $100 and the other of $50, offered by patrons. The $100 sprint, which the Australian snatched from Oscar Egg for the fifth time in the evening, ended in a jamboree that forced three teams—Bello-Madonna, Bowker-Bowker and Byron-Markey—one lap further in the ruck.

Gus Lang, who is one lap behind the others, attempted to close up the gap by a sudden dash at the end of the sprint. Goullet and Egg took up the pursuit of the fleeing Jerseyite and the field followed, while the three trailers emerged from the tussle minus another lap. They are now five laps behind, and Lang-Chapman are one in the rear. At 12:15 another fan offered $5 to the winners of each of ten successive laps, and $50 to the winner of the eleventh. Goullet, riding in masterly fashion, appropriated the larger amount of the ten $5 prizes, Bello-Madonna took six. Bowker and Bowker three and Egg and Madden one.

Although the crowd which streamed into the big arena to witness the official sprint at 9:30 was slightly smaller than the throng on Thursday night, the Fire Department at 9 o'clock ordered all doors bolted against the onslaught of the eager fans without. Even ticket holders, secure, as they thought, in the possession of the magic slips of pasteboard, were denied admittance by the police.

If Goullet was the heavy villain of the piece, Oscar Egg was the handsome hero. The Swiss was the recipient of as much applause as the Australian was of hoots. But, as has sometimes happened in melodrama, the hero was not always cordially handled by the villain. Goullet, evidently figuring that he might as well live up to his rôle, devilishly proceeded to flash in front of the Swiss in four of the five clashes between the two. Egg carried off the first encounter, but after that he was through for the evening.

On the very next jam Goullet again tackled the Swiss rider, and the results this time were disastrous to the hopes and aspirations of the Egg-Madden team. Egg was a poor second. Again in the fourth, sixth and tenth sprints Goullet, after lurking innocently three or four paces behind, rushed into the lead on the last lap and captured the event. Egg's only change for revenge was in the eighth dash, when Goullet was neatly pocketed by the other riders and compelled to content himself with a third place.

Why be greedy?

A friend on a recent shopping tour bumped right into it—with her own eyes saw a price marker jolly up a price full 20%.

We think the public will agree with us that such stunts are poor policy, even though some merchants may sincerely disagree on the ground that increased replacement costs give added value.

Our own policy is to add just a normal trading profit to actual cost, and that fair price remains, unless reduced, until the goods are sold.

We never mark up goods once in stock.

Sometimes this results in having two prices for goods of the same quality, but what of that. If at the lesser price one's size is still available it helps reduce the H. C. L.!

It pays to know your dealer these days.

Frisch was at third, Kelly at first, Doyle at second and Fletcher at short. With this array the regulars defeated the recruits in the first nine-inning game of the training season by a score of 6 to 2.

While Manager McGraw is skeptical about Larry Doyle's physical condition and is fearful that the veteran second baseman may break down at a critical time of the season, as he did last year, he, nevertheless, is planning to start the season with Doyle unless some deal is made in the meantime for a veteran third baseman. In that event it is probable that Frisch will go back to second.

As it looks now, however, Doyle will start the season at second. Today's nine-inning game brought shuffling Phil Douglas into action for the first time this year. Phil is the only member of the Giants' pitching staff who uses the spit ball. Phil pitched three innings for the recruits and allowed two hits. Although the sun was warm enough at the ball park today, there was a strong wind which interfered with the fielding of high fliers.

Fletcher made his first appearance in a practice game and he showed his old enthusiasm and fighting spirit. He made a double and a single and did a lot of high class fielding. To Frank Frisch fell the honor of smashing the first home run over the fence. He soaked the ball over the right field barricade in the third inning.

The regulars got after Virgle Barnes hard in the first inning after two were out. Frisch and Fletcher got doubles. Doyle and Benny Kauff followed with three-base drives and than a single by George Kelly brought the run total for the inning up to five. After that the regulars did not have to extend themselves.

Statz played a fine game in centre field for the recruits and got a three bagger off Winters on his first trip to the plate. Fletcher and Doyle played only six innings, when they gave way to White and Bates. The game today was punctuated with three double plays, but two of these were made possible by bad base running.

Kinsella kept up his hitting pace among the youngsters and got a triple and a single. Six pitchers got a good workout in the game, Winters, Paul Johnson and Burfield for the regulars and V. Barnes, Douglas and Stryker for the recruits.

The Giants are slated to play the San Antonio Club tomorrow and Sunday and McGraw will probably use his regular line-up at the start of both contests.

The score:

ROBINS HIT BALL HARD.

Brooklyn Regulars Defeat Second Team by Score of 9 to 2.

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 12.—The Brooklyn Regulars, judging by their stick work this afternoon, are prepared to face the Yankee hurlers tomorrow in the first game of their exhibition series. The outfit which will be sent against the American Leaguers cracked out seventeen base hits in the eight-inning game against the Yanigans. The safe blows, coupled with errors, enabled them to trot off with an easy triumph over the colts, 9 to 2.

Zack Wheat and Hy Myers were on the Regulars and stayed in the game from start to finish. Hy made two of the four doubles credited to his side, and Wheat made two singles in five times at bat.

Ed Pfeffer hurled the first four rounds for the Yannigans and John Miljus succeeded him on the slab. Sherrod Smith pitched the first half of the contest for the Regulars, and Joe Conlon finished. The Regulars found Pfeffer for four hits and two tallies during his stay on the slab, but in the fifth frame they pounced on Miljus and scored four more runs on five safe blows. In the eighth session they collected five more base hits and their final three runs off the youngster.

Sherrod Smith held the youngsters to two singles in the first four frames, and they failed to score off Uncle Robbie's crack southpaw. In the sixth session, however, with Joe Conlon, one of the rookies' left-handers, opposing them, they scored their first tally. They added another run to their score in the seventh session.

The Robins' new infield worked to perfection during the abbreviated fray, and two double plays were executed by Ward, Olson and Konetchy.

Zack Wheat appeared at the plate for the first time in the opening round, and Pfeffer struck him out. In the fourth round, however, Wheat, after fouling off five, lined out a single to centre. Myers made his first two-bagger in the first inning, and it scored Olson, who opened the session with a double to left.

Hugh Duffy, the manager of the Toronto Club of the International League, was a visitor at the Robins' training park this afternoon. Duffy looked over the promising youngsters, and tried to grab one or two of the future greats.

The score by innings:

Batteries—Smith, Conlon and Beyers; Pfeffer, Miljus and Krueger. Umpire—Mr. O'Day.

WHITE SOX GO SOUTH.

American League Champions Leave for Waco Training Camp.

CHICAGO, March 12.—The Chicago American League baseball team left tonight for Waco, Texas, for Spring training. Manager William Gleason and twenty-two members of the White Sox, including Eddie Cicotte, the veteran pitcher, who has been holding out for a better contract, made up the party. Cicotte announced yesterday he was ready to sign a contract "if an amicable agreement can be reached," and said he would accompany the team South regardless of whether he had signed.

Eddie Collins, second baseman, did not accompany the team tonight. He is in Philadelphia and has asked permission to remain there a week, after which he will leave to meet the team in Dallas next week for the opening of the Spring series.

The White Sox are the last major league team to go into training.

Milton Stock Joins Cardinals.

BROWNSVILLE, Tex., March 12.—Third Baseman Milton Stock, who has been a holdout, today notified Manager Branch Rickey of the St. Louis Nationals in training here, that he would reach Brownsville tonight. If he signs up, Pitcher Oscar Tuero will be the only Cardinal holdout.

Davis Sails to be Physical Director of All Rumania

John A. Davis, Director of Physical Education at Stevens Tech and coach of the basket ball, tennis and track teams, is sailing this morning for Rumania, where he has been requested by the Government, on recommendation of the Y. M. C. A., to take charge of the physical education of the country. With the help of six assistants he plans to establish physical education departments in all of the existing schools and to build new schools where necessary. He will be gone for about a year, and will then leave the running of the affairs to assistants whom he will instruct. For several weeks he will stop in Belgium as physical adviser of the Belgium and Polish entries in the Olympics.

In the absence of Mr. Davis, Leroy Durburow, coach of the football and baseball teams, will supervise the physical education department of Stevens.

YANKEE YANIGANS TROUNCE REGULARS

Second Team Clearly Outplays Veterans and Wins by Score of 8 to 1.

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 12.—After enjoying one brief spell of success, the Yankee regulars dropped back into losing ways today and were beaten again by the Yanigans. They were beaten thoroughly, too, the score being 8 to 1. The weather was hot, and tomorrow the Yanks are to have it out with the Brooklyns in the first game of the Spring series. Here were two reasons why a show of dash and speed were to be expected from the regulars, but they had neither.

The Yanigans all week have batted better and played with more spirit, and such was the case this afternoon. The best hitting of the week was done today by the second side, which jolted Shore and Quinn for a combined yield of thirteen hits. Shore did right well for three innings, but four seemed to be too many for him, and he was pounded in his last round for two triples, a double and a single.

Quinn also experienced an inning in which hits were bunched on him. Four singles in sucession, with O'Doul, Ward, Meusel and Geiser making them, sent in three runs. For the Yanigans Shawkey and Thormahlen were much more effective workmen. The regulars started a batting rally on Shawkey in the fourth inning when Peck and Pipp singled with nobody out. Pipp wandered away from second with too big a lead and was nipped by a quick throw from Hofmann. His untimely demise halted an onslaught.

Hofmann and Shawkey stabbed Shore for hits in the second after Biemiller had waited it out successfully. A throw by Ruth to the wrong base accounted for one of the runs, for it allowed a runner to advance who otherwise would not have reached the plate. On another occasion Ruth made a splendid pick-up with one hand of a sharp bounding ball and held it to a single. His fielding is decidedly good but his batting continues to be poor.

A bag full of Babe's own special fence wrecking brand of ordnance arrived and one was in action today for the first time, but the ball, in contrary mood, went high instead of far. The Babe became irritated once when the orb did this and showed his golf training by flinging his club far into the adjacent rough.

Huggins called for a nine-inning game as a preparation for tomorrow, and the expectation is that he will ask Mays and Mogridge to do his pitching. Mogridge has been going fine, but Mays has been doing only fairly well. More animation is looked for from the regulars tomorrow when they get into a regular game, as so far brushes with the recruits apparently have not been much of an incentive to them to cut loose, or else the second team simply has been too fast for them. However, the race is not won by Spring speed.

The score by innings:

Batteries—Shore, Quinn and Hannah; Shawkey, Thormahlen and Hofmann.

Hits—Fewster, Reck Pipp (2), Bodie, Hannah, Gleich, O'Doul (2), Ward (2), Meusel (2), Geiser (2), Rice, Biemiller, Hofmann, Shawkey. Two-base hits—Hannah, Ward, Rice. Three-base hits—Gleich, Biemiller. Double plays—O'Doul, Hofmann, Biemiller and Ward; Thormahlen, Biemiller and Meusel. Errors—Pipp, Pratt, Gleich, Meusel, Biemiller, Thormahlen. Hits—Off Shore, 7 in four innings; Quinn, 6 in five; Shawkey, 3 in four; Thormahlen, 2 in five.

I. R. A. BARS BRODIL.

Oarsman Will Not Be Allowed to Row for Columbia This Season.

The Intercollegiate Rowing Association, which conducts the annual Poughkeepsie regatta, yesterday disqualified Franklin Brodil, stroke last year on the Union Boat Club and now at Columbia, from rowing in either the freshman or 'Varsity races of the Hudson River classic this Summer. Charles Halstead Mapes, Chairman of the Board of Stewards, informed Brodil that he was barred because he had rowed on a junior boat club crew and was in only his first year at Columbia. A rule of the association requires a one-year residence for former boat club rowers.

The University Committee on Athletics at Columbia at the same time decided to bar Brodil from the 'Varsity eight in all races this season. He will be permitted to row in the freshman boat in every event except that at Poughkeepsie, where he will be completely out. Technically Brodil is a sophomore, but in all other respects he is a first-year student. He is President of the freshman class.

CLARK EXPLAINS PLANS.

Choice of United States Gunners for Olympic Games Deferred.

That he has not picked the trapshooting team which will represent the United States at the Olympic games in Antwerp next July, and that final selection will be deferred as long as possible, in order to select the country's best shooters, were stated in a message to American Trapshooting Association headquarters tonight from Jay Clark, Jr., of Worcester, Mass., captain of the team.

Competition to make the team is open to every shooter, regardless of his means, as funds will be raised to send the team to Antwerp, he said.

Clark called attention to the fact that scores made under adverse weather conditions here will receive greater consideration than those made under ideal conditions, inasmuch as the Olympic shooting will be held on scheduled time, regardless of weather. Mr. Clark, who has been empowered by the Association, to pick the team and to make all arrangements for the European trip, will confer with other members of the Olympic Committee here tomorrow.

PRIMAKOW IN LEAD IN CAROM TOURNEY

Defeats Blumenthal in National Three-Cushion Billiard Tourney at Thum's.

NATIONAL THREE-CUSHION BILLIARD STANDING.

Player.	W.	L.	H.R.	P.C.
J. Primakow	4	0	5	1000
W. Blumenthal	3	1	4	.725
H. Frisch	2	1	6	.667
J. Cosgrove	2	1	5	.667
H. Frantzen	2	2	6	.500
F. G. Owles	1	2	7	.333
C. Maxwell	0	3	4	.000
G. E. Van Arsdale	0	4	5	.000

Joseph Primakow forged into the lead in the national three-cushion billiard championship tournament being held under the auspices of the American Amateur Billiard Association, at Joe Thum's Academy last night. He met William Blumenthal and defeated the veteran by a score of 50 to 38. As a result of this match, Primakow is in front with four games won and none lost. Blumenthal is in second place with three won and one lost. Primakow now is the only player who has not lost a game.

Primakow scored such a decisive victory over his nearest rival that he now seems certain to win the A. A. B. A. title. In scoring all of his victories he has shown a superiority that has been impressive. Playing a match last night that may decide the title, Primakow was as cool as the proverbial icicle. Never throughout the match was he ruffled; never was he nervous. He was out after the shots whenever they offered but, at the same time, he was a cagy player. Not once during the game did he take any chances. Only twice during the match did he call deliberate safeties, and only eight times did Blumenthal call them, but there was a great deal of covered safety. They both continually shot off the white ball, giving each other the "oil" without declaring themselves.

Primakow started off in the lead and held it until the twelfth inning, when Blumenthal made four and he held the lead until the twenty-third inning. Primakow came with a rush, and soon recovered the lead. Thereafter it was a battle royal, with neither player able to gain a decisive lead until toward the end of the game, when Primakow went out and took a good working margin and held it until the end of the game.

SPEAR AND SHEA WINNERS.

George Spear and J. M. Shea were the winners in the handicap 18.2 balkline billiard tournament for the J. F. Poggenberg Cup at the Rational Recreation Academy in Brooklyn last night. Spear defeated J. R. Johann by a score of 115 to 68. Both men are Class C players. Shea defeated James R. Langdon, 115 to 99. Both these men are Class C players. Therefore, these two matches were played on an even basis.

The Quakers did not score until the final period, when Hill and Henriques put the puck across for goals by sterling stick work. Gelmore played in good form at the goal, blocking a number of hard drives.

OLYMPIC TRIALS SET FOR JUNE 26

American Committee Names Date for Sectional Tryouts for Games at Antwerp.

Sectional track and field try-outs for the Seventh Olympic Games at Antwerp, Belgium, will be held throughout the country June 26. This date was selected yesterday at a meeting of members of the American Olympic Committee, attended by Gustavus T. Kirby, President, and Frederick W. Rubien, Secretary. Following the conference Mr. Rubien disclosed the date for the sectional trials, which will be held simultaneously, under present plans, at Pasadena, Cal.; Stagg Field, Chicago, and Franklin Field, Philadelphia. In his announcement after the session Mr. Rubien made no provision for Southern try-outs. Absence of specific mention of that section of the country was accepted as significant in view of the fact that doubt has existed as to whether there would be try-outs below the Mason-Dixon line.

This plan, together with other plans which were tentatively adopted yesterday, will be submitted for ratification this afternoon at the meeting of the American Olympic Committee in the New York A. C. The meeting, contrary to original arrangements, will be open for representatives of the press: Mr. Kirby brought up this question in the course of the session and convinced his fellow-committeemen of the advisability of this arrangement. It was also determined to hold another meeting Sunday afternoon, at which complete details of the plans for America's preparations for the coming world classic will be divulged. Tomorrow's meeting will be an Executive Committee session, at which the matters submitted this afternoon will be reviewed and either approved or disapproved.

Considerable doubt exists as to the advisability of conducting tryouts for the Eastern section of the country at Franklin Field. The officials are understood to be undecided on a plan which provides for holding this meet, and the National A. A. U. outdoor championships, which will be the final trials, at Soldiers' Field, Cambridge. The prospect of financial success will guide the committee in its deliberations, and for this reason it is probable a decision will be reached awarding both meets to Cambridge. The final tryouts will probably be held July 17.

Representatives of the fifteen different sports governing bodies affiliated with the American Olympic Committee will attend today's session. The army will be represented by Major Gen. William M. Wright and the navy by Commander C. B. Mayo. The sports which will be represented include track and field athletics, fencing, trapshooting, revolver shooting, collegiate athletics, skating, rowing, cycling, rifle shooting, rugby football, golf and tennis.

SQUADRON A TRIO WINS.

Defeats Riding Club Poloists by 4½ Goals to 3.

Led by Captain R. K. Cooke, the Squadron A indoor polo trio last night defeated the Riding and Driving Club in the return game between the two teams at the Riding and Driving Club by the score of 4½ goals to 3. This success gave the Squadron A players their second victory of the week over the Riding and Driving Club. The soldiers outscored their rivals by a margin of 5 to 3, but a penalty of half a goal for foul on Captain Cooke reduced the final score. Captain Cooke accounted for but one goal, but was a material factor in the four remaining tallies which gave his team victory.

The lineup:

SQUADRON A (4½).	RIDING & D. C. (3).
No. 1—R. K. Cooke.	No. 1—E. S. Reynal.
No. 2—M. Rockwood.	No. 2—H. B. Guthrie.
Back—S. C. Abernathy.	Back—W. D. Lyon.

Goals—Cooke, Rockwood (2), Abernathy, (2), Reynal, Guthrie, Lyon. Penalty—Captain Cooke, ½ half for foul. Time of perids—Ten minutes.

HUDSON SURPRISES CORDIER IN SQUASH

National Champion Wins Match at Yale Club Only After Dropping Opening Game.

Auguste J. Cordier, national amateur squash tennis champion, ran into a surprise yesterday afternoon when he faced E. R. Hudson in the opening round of the scratch tournament for the championship of the Yale Club. Although the top ranking player of the United States won the match, it required three games for him to turn the trick, the first going against him by the decisive count of 15—10. Once Cordier struck his stride, however, Hudson had little chance, and the remainder of the match was one-sided.

The loser made good use of a low-bounding service in the first game, and also seemed able to kill the champion's delivery with smashing drives straight up and down the inclosure. Cordier was sluggish in his movements, and could neither follow the ball to the limit of its bound nor put it away once he got his racquet on it. While the champion made a number of errors, Hudson fully earned the opener by consistently better play.

Cordier pulled himself together in the second session, however, and, warming gradually to his task, soon had the match squared by a count of 15—6. In the rubber he ran away from his rapidly tiring opponent and it was all over at 15—4.

Other winners yesterday were C. J. MacGuire, runnerup of the last Fall scratch tournament; Stuyvesant Wainwright, a semi-finalist in the national Class B event, and K. O'Brien. R. F. Potter, H. R. Stern, D. S. Baker, winners of second honors in the national handicap event tournament; R. S. Saltus, S. H. Johnson, and A. A. Gammell advanced by default.

MacGuire was given a hard fight by J. Walker, who reached double figures in both games of their match, almost setting the opener for extra points. After wining this close battle at 15—12, MacGuire increased his speed and took the second by a count of 15—10.

Wainwright allowed T. M. Day only two points in the opening game and four in the second, playing brilliantly all the way. O'Brien was carried into extra points by S. S. Walker in their first game, winning by the narrow margin of 18—16, but completed his victory somewhat more easily at 15—10.

The draw of the Yale Club tournament, which has an even division of thirty-two entries, brackets the remaining players in the first round as follows, and these matches will be played today: G. J. Carr vs. R. M. Wolfe, L. A. Lightener vs. Livingston Platt, Otis Guernsey vs. H. C. Holt, I. O'Rourke vs. A. L. Gates, J. C. Tomlinson vs. J. F. O'Rourke, Reginald Roome vs. J. F. Trounstine.

EAST GAINS TENNIS STAR.

W. T. Hayes of Chicago to Join Philadelphia's Group of Experts.

Another high-ranking lawn tennis player from the Middle West has joined the forces of the Eastern stars of the game. Walter T. Hayes of Chicago, rated at No. 9 in the United States for the past season, has accepted an important business position in Philadelphia and will henceforth make the Quaker City his home. His play will distinctly strengthen an already famous group of experts of the racquet, which includes William T. Tilden, 2d, Wallace F. Johnson, Craig Biddle and Stanley W. Pearson.

SEEKS OLYMPIC GAMES.

Philadelphia Starts Movement to Get Events in 1924.

PHILADELPHIA, March 12.—A movement to build a great stadium in Philadelphia, if successful, to make an effort to have the Olympic games held here in 1924 was started tonight at a meeting of representatives of athletic, automobile clubs and other interests under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce.

One of the speakers in favor of the project was Samuel Dallas, President of the Amateur Athletic Union, who said the Olympic events could be brought here if Philadelphia could show it had the equipment for the games.

TRACK CHAMPIONS TO DEFEND TITLES

Record-Breaking Performances Expected at Senior A. A. U. Games Here Tonight.

With possibly one or two exceptions every champion athlete in the country will strive for titular honors this evening in the 22d Regiment Armory, Broadway and 168th Street, on the occasion of the annual national A. A. U. senior indoor track and field championships. Many of the athletes upon whom Uncle Sam will depend for a winning point total in the coming Olympic Games at Antwerp, Belgium, will compete under the critical gaze of members of the American Olympic Committee, who will attend as guests of the A. A. U.

Records are in danger in the 60-yard dash, 300-yard run, 600-yard run and 1,000-yard run. Several of the stars who have entered for these titles have demonstrated in their latest races that they are in superb condition. In anticipation of new marks, A. A. U. officials have treated the armory track to a special composition designed to eliminate slips or spills on the turns.

Loren Murchison of the New York A. C. will seek titles at 60 yards and 300 yards. In both events the former St. Louis flyer will be opposed by top notch fields. Earl Eby, University of Pennsylvania middle distance crack, is another who has entered for two events. Eby plans to compete in the 600-yard and 1,000-yard races. In the latter event Joie W. Ray, Illinois A. C., the champion, will defend his title. Jack Sellers of the New York A. C. will defend his 600-yard title.

Thirteen events are scheduled. In addition, the Championship Committee has added the national title tug-of-war test for the first time in the history of the games. The meet promises a record in point of attendance, if the advance sale of tickets is a criterion. More than $2,000 worth of pasteboards has been purchased already. This is a record sale for this fixture. The meet is scheduled to start at 8 o'clock with the trials in the tug-of-war.

That we simply could not sell under other circumstances for less than $60 and $65

This is why we can turn them over to you at $46.50

Purely as a compliment to the enormous business we give them throughout the year our manufacturers have handed over these suits to us at less than their normal price and rightful value, so that this department could hold up its end in the Annual Spring Sales which is an institutional event at this time of the year in this store. There, in a few words, are the whole facts! There are the reasons that you can now get a regular $60 or $65 suit (skeleton-lined and of a weight that can be worn comfortably right up to July) for so low a price as $46.50.

SIMS SAYS U-BOAT SCARE WAS COSTLY

Asserts That Department Held Ships Here That Should Have Been Hurried Abroad.

KNEW ALL ABOUT RAIDERS

Says Word Was Sent Three Weeks Ahead—Failure to Adopt Convoy Earlier Again Criticised.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—More shipping was saved by keeping track of German submarines and routing vessels clear of them than by any other single measure, Rear Admiral Sims today told the Senate investigating committee.

The Admiral's statement was in support of his charge that the Navy Department had a "fundamental misconception" of the problem of defending home waters in keeping American naval forces on this side of the Atlantic rather than by giving "whole-hearted and vigorous co-operation" to the Allies.

"Actual experience has shown," the witness continued, "that we could depend upon keeping reasonably accurate track of all submarines at sea. We were certain we would never have to deal with but one or two submarines at a time on our own coast, and it was possible to do a great deal toward providing for the safety of shipping in our home waters without the use of any anti-submarine craft at all."

Admiral Sims presented cable dispatches announcing the departure from Germany of the first raider for the American coast, sent more than three weeks before the vessel appeared in American waters. The messages he read, he said, were remarkable for the accuracy with which every move of the enemy was foretold, adding that they were founded on absolute information obtained by the British Admiralty. They proved, he argued, the soundness of his original recommendations to the department that all available forces should be concentrated in European waters.

"It was, of course, in the German interest," he said, "to create abroad the impression that they were about to undertake submarine attacks upon the American coast, and it is to be noted that such rumors were continually circulated by German agents in Europe and America for the purpose of influencing the Navy Department and to retain craft on the American side.

"The fact that such propaganda was not without effect on the Navy Department was illustrated by numerous cables from the Department, mentioning these reports of probable submarine activity on the Atlantic coast."

Admiral Sims said that early in 1917 the Allies were compelled by the submarines to adopt the convoy plan for protecting shipping, and that on May 1 he "urgently recommended" that the United States give its co-operation, but it was not until June 20 that Secretary Daniels replied that he considered American vessels having armed guards were safer when sailing independently.

The British Admiralty desired assurance of American co-operation in the convoy plan so the first convoy might sail from New York July 8. About the same time Admiral Jellicoe wrote expressing grave apprehension for the success of the convoy system unless the United States decided to participate, the Admiral stated.

Finally, on July 22, the Navy Department accepted the convoy plan for troopships and later accepted it for supply vessels, the Admiral stated, but only after great pressure had been brought to bear by the other Allies and after many valuable weeks had been wasted. Even as late as Aug. 10 he said he received messages from the department asking that the convoy system be explained, although "for four months I had been exhausting my vocabulary in attempting to explain the system."

"It is very difficult for me to make clear to you now the desperation in which I found myself almost constantly during the early months of the war." Admiral Sims said. "I reiterate there was no question that these recommendations were right. The fact remains that they were virtually all adopted in the end."

Herbert Hoover, former Food Administrator, will be called by the committee tomorrow to testify in regard to the seriousness of the food situation in Europe in 1918.

NEW ORLEANS CROWDS SEEK CURE BY HEALER

Press at His Houseboat, Led by Cripples, Is So Great That Five Guards Fall Into River.

NEW ORLEANS, March 12.—Led by a score of crippled and ailing men and women, hundreds of persons crowded the Mississippi River levee to-night, trying to reach the ramshackle houseboat of John Cudney, a kindling pedler, known as "Brother Isaiah," from reputed cures by the laying on of hands.

The press was so great that twenty-five policemen were assigned to preserve order, and on a rumor that Cudney was about to appear, there was a rush which bore five of the guards into the river. All were rescued.

Cudney, a native Canadian, 73 years old, has been working as a "healer" for some time, and reports yesterday that he had restored sight to the blind started a rush to the levee, a number of invalids being taken there on cots. He was forced to work all night, only retiring at dawn, when threatened with physical collapse. Many wealthy persons sought treatement, but all their offers of money or other assistance were refused.

State and municipal authorities refused to disturb the pedler. Dr. Oscar F. Dowling, President of the State Board of Health, said no legal action could be taken against the "healer" because he was "accepting no money, prescribing no medicines and violating none of the rules of religious practice."

CARUSO PAYS INCOME TAX.

Tenor Says He Went to Custom House 'Gloomy,' Came Out 'Happy.'

Yesterday was another strenuous day at the Custom House where William H. Edwards, Collector of Internal Revenue for Manhattan, is receiving income tax returns.

Among the callers was Enrico Caruso. He sought the personal aid of Collector Edwards in the preparation of his return. After he had paid his tax Mr. Caruso said: "I come into the Custom House gloomy. I go out happy." The amount paid by Mr. Caruso was not made public.

Last year Mr. Caruso paid his tax on March 13. His total obligation was $153,933.76. The tenor paid for the first quarter, $38,483.42.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 12.—David Warfield, the actor, was struck by an automobile truck here today. His left leg was broken and his face lacerated.

MUSIC

By Richard Aldrich

The Philharmonic Society.

The chief place upon the program of yesterday's concert of the Philharmonic Society was occupied by Rubinstein's "Ocean" symphony, a work that had faded from sight and sound for a good many years. It has been in the repertory of the Philharmonic Society since 1871; and apparently its last previous performance was by Mr. Sapanoff when he was conducting the orchestra, a dozen years ago.

Like so many other of Rubinstein's larger and more ambitious compositions, it has aged sadly. And yet it is probably the most successful of his orchestral works. He himself was so enamored of it that he kept adding new movements to it after it was originally published with the usual number of four, till finally it had seven. Mr. Stransky very wisely disregarded the composer's afterthoughts and played only the original four movements of the composition.

There is enough that is tiresome even in these. The exposition of the first movement is pleasing, but Rubinstein's ideas of symphonic development, both here and in the other movements, were so wooden and so mechanical that what he made of them seems now extremely dull. But in estimating the dullness of a piece of music played by the Philharmonic Society the intervening factor of the conductor's reading must always be taken into account.

Tschaikovsky's fantasy "Francesca da Rimini," Debussy's prelude "The Afternoon of a Faun" and the overture to "Tannhäuser," all familiar to the Philharmonic audiences, were the other numbers of the program.

In speaking of the program played by the Philharmonic Society on Thursday evening in this column it was the intention of the writer to say that Brahms and Wagner are "a not irreconcilable combination" to music lovers of these days. The types defeated this intention by calling it "a most irreconcilable" combination, which it is not; and apologies are tendered to whomever they are due.

Miss Cottlow's Recital.

Miss Augusta Cottlow's piano playing has been heard in New York while she was growing up from little girlhood to young womanhood and has been recognized as a manifestation of talent. She gave her second recital of the present season last evening in Aeolian Hall. She showed, as she has before, an ample equipment of technique and an intelligent understanding of a good many things in pianoforte playing, but also some strangely erratic ideas about some of the compositions she presented.

She brought a good deal of sentimentality, for instance, into her performance of Brahms's variations and fugue on a theme by Handel, a composition whose essence is as far removed from sentimentality as may well be conceived. All the slow variations she took at a lingering pace that robbed them of much of their robust vigor and turned them into something they are not. There was much breadth in her delivery of the final fugue, and a very clear enunciation of the theme at its various appearances in augmentation and diminution, and all through the piece there was clarity in the voices and a constant feeling for beauty of tone.

There was strangely erratic rhythm in her conception of Chopin's B flat minor mazurka that it would be difficult to construe as a Chopin rubato. The mazurka in C was more naturally given, and there was real beauty in her playing of the C sharp minor nocturne, and the A flat ballade, though in this last a tendency to undue deliberation was again at times manifested.

Miss Cottlow gave four short pieces of MacDowell's that are seldom heard in public, "Of Bre'r Rabbit," "Nautilus," "From the Depths" (these two from the "Sea Pieces"), and the "Danse Andalouse" from "Les Orientales," and closed with Liszt's E major polonnaise, with a final cadenza by Busoni.

"Carmen" Sung at the Opera.

"Carmen" for the sixth time sold out the Metropolitan last evening, with Mme. Farrar in the title rôle and Mr. Martinelli as Don José. Mr. Werrenrath, returning to the part of Escamillo, was applauded in the Toreador song. Mmes. Sundelius, Sparkes, Berat, Messrs. Picco, Dua, Laurenti and de Segurola also sang, and Alfred Wolff conducted.

DAVIS CLAIMS RIGHT TO 'THE BLUE FLAME'

Dramatist Says Theda Bara Play Is Founded on His Novel "Lola."

INJUNCTION MAY BE ASKED

Action Threatened if No Settlement Is Made—A. H. Woods Paid $35,000 for Rights.

The idea and principal story of "The Blue Flame," the play in which Theda Bara is announced to appear at the Shubert Theatre next Monday night, was laid claim to yesterday by Owen Davis, well known as the author of dozens of plays. "The Blue Flame," which is being produced by A. H. Woods, is announced as a melodrama by George V. Hobart and John Willard, founded upon a play by Leta Nicholson Vance. Mr. Davis declared yesterday that he used the identical story in a novel called "Lola," first published in 1910, and subsequently made into a play and acted by Laurette Taylor and others at the Lyceum Theatre on March 14, 1911.

"The Blue Flame," in which Miss Bara has been appearing on the road for four weeks, concerns a scientist who believes that he can restore life, and who successfully experiments upon his fiancée when the latter is killed by lightning. This is accomplished, in the play, by an electrical apparatus, but in the process a blue flame, the soul of the girl, is discerned to leave the body. The girl lives, but without a soul, and the remainder of the play is made up of her adventures as a vampire. Subsequently the entire thing turns out to have been the dream of the young scientist.

In Mr. Davis's play the scientist was the father of the girl, who restored her to life by the use of electrical apparatus after she had died from heart failure. It was then discovered, as in "The Blue Flame," that the soul had fled, and the remainder of the play depicted her career as a creature without a soul. Several references were made in the story to the violet flame. In Mr. Davis's play, as in the Theda Bara play, the creation of the soulless girl turned out to have been a dream of the scientist, although this point was not included in the novel.

"Lola" was produced by Daniel Frohman and acted only for a series of special matinées. Subsequently it was made into a motion picture by Clara Kimball Young, first under the title of "Lola" and later reissued under the name of "Without a Soul." The Theda Bara play was first known as "The Lost Soul."

Mr. Davis said yesterday that he had received many letters since the play opened out of town, calling his attention to the similarity. He declared that he had brought the coincidence to the attention of Mr. Woods, but that to date no move had been made toward a settlement. If nothing is done by Tuesday, the day following the première here, Mr. Davis's attorneys, O'Brien, Malevinsky & Driscoll, will move for an injunction to halt the run of the play.

Martin Herman, speaking for A. H. Woods, said yesterday that he would make no move to compensate Mr. Davis, inasmuch as they had purchased the play outright from Walter C. Jordan, a play agent, for $35,000, and that their contract with Mr. Jordan called upon the latter to defend all claims up to that amount. Mr. Jordan is understood to have paid $10,000 for the rights to the three authors.

Leta Nicholson Vance, who wrote the play on which Mr. Hobart and Mr. Willard based "The Blue Flame," is a motion picture scenario writer. Mr. Hobart has written many successful plays, and Mr. Willard is an actor, now appearing in "The Son-Daughter."

The question of the ownership of the play is one of considerable financial importance, for Miss Bara has been attracting an enormous patronage out of town, and is at present doing so huge a business in Boston that the police have been called on several occasions to control the crowds. Miss Bara's income from the play was more than $6,000 last week.

Applaud Thomas in Opera Airs.

John Charles Thomas, a leading baritone of the light opera stage, sang grand opera airs of Leoncavallo and Massenet, accompanied by Romaine Simmons, to a packed house at Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon, his serious pieces even including one from Mendelssohn's oratorio "Elijah," with William Janaushek at the organ. Like a boy out of school the Broadway star ran the gamut of styles—child "comics," the charming "Sleepy Land" by Mana Zucca, novelties or requested pieces by Bossi, Emile Pessard, Francis Hendricks, Eugene Bonner and H. T. Burleigh. Mr. Thomas's diction and use of half-voice in the least of these songs, his sincere ambition and skill in "keeping his depth," so to speak, in the greatest of them, commanded a respect harder sometimes to gain than the applause of a frankly delighted matinée following.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Thunder Mountain," a melodrama by Langdon McCormick, author of "The Storm," will be produced out of town next week.

Arrangements have been made to produce "Shavings" in Australia next season.

"What's in a Name?" will open at the Maxine Elliott Theatre on Wednesday night of next week instead of Tuesday, as originally announced.

The postponed premiere of "Musk" will take place tonight at the Punch and Judy.

Fay Wallace will be in the cast of Owen Davis's comedy, "A Week-End Marriage," now in rehearsal.

Muriel DeForest has been engaged for the Shuberts' revival of "Florodora," scheduled to open at the Century Theatre on April 5.

The third play in the New York Drama League's series of Young People's Performances will be Josephine Preston Peabody's "The Piper," soon to be revived by the Shakespeare Playhouse. The league has taken over the Friday afternoon and Saturday morning performances, March 19 and 20.

COAL FACTIONS WAIT WORD FROM WILSON

President, It Is Said, Will Try to Compose Differences in Majority and Minority Reports.

ACCEPTANCE IS EXPECTED

Representatives of Miners and Operators Keep in Touch with Situation, but Refuse to Comment.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—In all quarters concerned over the bituminous coal controversy the disposition was tonight to await President Wilson's word before taking any action.

The majority report arising from the split in the commission appointed after the coal strike last Fall to make a settlement was at the White House, but the minority report of John P. White, miners' representative on the commission, is still uncompleted. Neither of the documents, it was said at the White House, would be made public until the President determined whether Mr. White and his assistants, Henry M. Robinson, the commission Chairman and public representative upon it, and Rembrandt Peale, the operators' representative, could reconcile their views.

John L. Lewis, President, and other officials of the Mine Workers' Union on the ground, kept in close touch with the situation today, but refrained from comment. It was made apparent, however, that the organization would not move until the President made known his decision. Likewise the operators' representatives said they would await the President's action. Chairman Robinson has left Washington for his home in California and Mr. Peale has returned to New York, leaving Mr. White the only member in Washington.

The majority report recommends that the men receive a 25 per cent. increase in wages, including the 14 per cent. awarded them by Dr. Garfield, and that local differences in pay and allowances between different mining districts be referred to another commission. Mr. White will recommend that the increase be fixed at 35 per cent. and a seven-hour day. It is understood that the only factor regarded as serious in the differences is the hour schedule. The original demand of the Mine Workers was for a thirty-hour week, a 60 per cent. increase in wages and local adjustment of the differentials arising in and between districts.

An effort to compose the differences between the majority and minority will be made by President Wilson, it was said, at the White House today. While the commission failed to reach a unanimous decision asked for by the President, it was said that its labors had not been in vain, and officials generally believed that the two reports could be used as a basis for an amicable agreement.

Secretary Green of the miners said today that the majority and Mr. White were not far apart on the matter of wages, and that he was hopeful that the differences could be smoothed out in direct conferences. The failure of the majority to recommend improved working conditions proved a disappointment to the miners, it was said, as this had been one of the chief demands of the men.

Pipe and Foundry Company Shows Loss.

The annual report of the United States Cast Iron Pipe and Foundry Company for last year shows a loss after the deduction of charges, expenses and taxes amounting to $503,703. In the preceding year there was a surplus of $1,109,037. This, after the deduction of preferred dividends, was equivalent to $2.34 a share on the $12,000,000 common stock.

44-CENT FINANCIER HELD.

Abraham White, Once Backed by Russell Sage, Accused of Larceny.

Abraham White, who bought $1,500,000 of the Federal bond issue of 1896 with no financial backing except 44 cents' worth of postage stamps and made large profits when the deal was later financed by Russell Sage, was held yesterday in $1,000 bail in the Yorkville Court on a charge of grand larceny preferred by Julius Reibert, a builder, of Hartford, Conn.

Mr. Reibert, who is at the Hotel Commodore, said he had paid $2,500 for stock in the Freezproof Corporation, but that Mr. White had not delivered it. Mr. White asserted last night at the Hotel Pennsylvania that he had retained title to the stock to secure a loan he had made on it to Mr. Reibert and an associate.

Mr. White was a well known figure in the financial world ten years ago, when he followed up his coup on Government bond by large transactions in Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, New York City bonds and wireless telegraph promotion enterprises. For a time he was the owner of Shadow Lawn, the mansion at Seagirt which was the Summer home of President Wilson in 1916. Mr. White said yesterday that he had been living in New York most of the last ten years and dealing extensively in stocks and bonds, besides participating in munitions making projects during the war.

YVONNE GALL IN TAXI CRASH.

French Singer Has Narrow Escape in Central Park.

Yvonne Gall, French prima donna, had a narrow escape yesterday, when a taxicab carrying her, crashed head-on in Central Park with a machine driven by Otto Beeler, of 535 West 125th Street. She was thrown partly through a glass window in front of the car, but her hat protected her head and face, and she escaped with scratches.

The singer was taken in an ambulance to Flower Hospital, but left after an X-ray examination showed no bones broken. Both taxicabs were smashed. Beeler was arrested on a charge of reckless driving.

Italian Antiquities Bring $25,190.

Returns from the Neri sale of Italian antiquities at the Clark Galleries yesterday afternoon amounted to $14,093, making a grand total to date of $25,190. A pair of seventeenth century Venetian ivory lacquered chairs, with open lire-shaped backs, went to Mrs. L. F. Hyde for $420; Mrs. Grayson Murphy paid $350 for a sixteenth century Venetian walnut armchair, seat and back covered with red damask; to John Dexter went an Italian wrought iron and bronze fald stool for $330; Warren & Wetmore, architects, paid $240 for a pair of eighteenth century Lucca side chairs. The sale will be concluded this afternoon.

More Roads Accept Guarantee.

Additional railroad corporations which have decided to accept the extended guarantee clause in the Transportation act are the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company, the Illinois Central Railroad Company and the Wabash Railway Company. Others are expected to take similar action today, as Monday is the last day of the period allowed by the act for acceptance of the continued standard return.

United Profit Sharing Earnings.

The United Profit Sharing Corporation in its annual report for last year shows earnings of practically 100 per cent. on the capital stock outstanding. The amount available for dividends was $407,130, as compared with capital stock of $409,537. The shares are of 25 cents par value, and the earnings per share were 24.8 cents. In the preceding year the net profits were $211,525, or 12.9 a share.

BERGDOLL'S LAWYER REBUKED AT TRIAL

Court Warns Weinberger Slurs Against Witnesses Will Be Contempt.

DRAFT OFFICIAL EXAMINED

Federal Agent Swears Alleged Deserter's Mother Had a Pistol and a Blackjack.

Harry Weinberger, civilian counsel for Grover Cleveland Bergdoll in his trial by a general court-martial on Governors Island for desertion, was reprimanded by the court yesterday and admonished that a repetition of alleged slurring remarks about a witness would result in his being in contempt. The remark was made while the courtroom was cleared, and referred to John P. Dwyer, editor of The Philadelphia Record and Secretary of Local Draft Board 32 of Philadelphia, who admitted that he paid $35 a month rent for a nine-room house in West Philadelphia owned by a realty company controlled by the Pennsylvania Railroad, and was in the nature of an insinuation that the witness was in the employ of the railroad. This the witness denied.

Dwyer, who testified several days ago as to Bergdoll's status in the draft, had been recalled for cross-examination.

Leo J. Gorman, a Department of Justice agent, in charge of the officers who stormed the Bergdoll house on Jan. 7 and arrested Bergdoll, confirmed testimony of two Philadelphia patrolmen that Mrs. Bergdoll appeared with pistol in one hand and blackjack in the other and said:

"The first man who comes in here will be shot. I don't give a damn who you are."

The Federal agents didn't give Bergdoll a chance to put on any more clothing than the shirt and trousers he wore, Gorman explained, because they were anxious to get him out of the house, which contained a sawed-off shotgun, an army pistol, a rifle equipped with a Maxim silencer, "and other firearms and enough shells to stand a month's siege."

"How many people had collected in front of the house?" inquired Captain Campbell.

"Two or three hundred."

"Were they trying to hang the accused?"

"Well, they made some threats."

A suit Bergdoll put on in the Federal Building, Gorman testified, had a Pittsburgh tailor's label in the breast pocket showing it was made for "James Carson." This is the name Miss Ima Dayhoff, clerk of the New Vivian Hotel at Hagerstown, Md., testified on Tuesday Bergdoll registered under when he stayed there several months in 1918 and 1919.

The trial was adjourned until Monday.

Otis Steel Company to Expand.

A syndicate is now being organized, with William Salomon & Co. as managers, to underwrite $5,000,000 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock of the Otis Steel Company, to construct eight new sheet mills, doubling the present capacity, and to provide about $2,500,000 more working capital. Application will be made to list this issue on the Stock Exchange, where the present preferred and common stocks of the company already are listed.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Rise of Call Money to 15 Per Cent. Brings Pressure Against Stocks.

The stock market ran into extensive selling yesterday after quotations of industrial shares had displayed a generally firm tone during the initial hour of business. When the forward movement was in progress the petroleum group and some of the motor issues recorded more vigor than the others, oil stocks being influenced by emphasis laid in the last few days upon the shortage of crude material and a consequent stiffening in prices of refined products. Two major influences were evident in the reaction of the afternoon, which left net declines of 2 to more than 3 points among the active shares, except a few specialties. Chief of these was a spirited upbidding of call money from 7 to 15 per cent.; the other was the desire of traders with good-sized profits to make sure of them in advance of the week end. Next Monday the first installment of income taxes falls due, and it is expected that the strain upon the money market will also be increased then by sizable payments on account of State income tax payments, although the period for such payments has been extended by the State Controller to March 31 by an eleventh-hour decision.

It would be easy to lay too much stress upon the rise of call loan rates, however. The bulk of the day's borrowing was at 7 per cent., a level at which the market had been fairly well stabilized during the week, and whether the total of tax payments to the Government next week reach many hundreds of millions of dollars or are less than estimates, the funds will be distributed among the banks and will shortly be available, in large part, for temporary use in loans. The immediate money and credit situation is to be studied more in the light of time loan rates than in the fluctuations of call loan interest figures. If, as is believed in some banking quarters, bank statements will show shortly the intensive effect of curtailment of credit use in mercantile lines, it is more than possible that some easement of time money quotations will come as improved railroad transportation permits a freer movement of goods to market. Such a development would not of itself facilitate an upward movement of stocks, as the liquidation of goods presupposes lower prices and lessened industrial profits. Also, it is not to be forgotten that information continues to come from shipping circles of light outbound cargoes on North Atlantic ships, a matter of vital import to export trade statistics.

The market for railroad stocks seemed to be rather thin and prices receded easily under realizing sales. Speculation in this department has evidently passed out of the sphere of influence cast by the enactment of the railroad law, and traders are waiting for a fresh impetus. Railroad managers have insisted that the public should not expect too much of the carriers in the readjustment period, and the same sort of patience might be recommended to followers of the securities. There is a deal of financing to be arranged for and it is not impossible that the roads will not know how they are to fare in this respect until the six months' period of continued Government assistance has advanced far.

The foreign exchanges were again reactionary. Sterling hesitated for a time around Thursday's final quotation of 3.72 for sight drafts and then receded to 3.69. The recessions of rates on other allied countries were moderate and business was reported light.

ASK 'CHANGE TO LIST STANDARD OF JERSEY

Oil Company's Assets Expected to be Uncovered in Conforming to Rules.

STOCKS NOW IN LIMELIGHT

Fifteen Issues Prominent with $269,467,500, as Week's Increase in 44 Securities.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey has made application for the listing of its preferred and common stocks on the New York Stock Exchange. When the preferred stock issue was put out last Summer it was announced then that the company would apply for listing, and it was inferred that the common stock would also be placed on the Exchange. There was, however, nothing definite regarding the junior issue until it was announced yesterday that the application to list had been received by the Stock Exchange.

Standard of New Jersey is the second of the Standard Oil group of companies to apply for listing. The Atlantic Refining Company stock was listed on the Exchange several weeks ago. It is believed that the applications to list the stocks of these companies are merely the forerunners of a general move on the part of the Standard companies to have their stock traded in on the Exchange. While in recent years the Standard Oil companies have been much more free in discussing their affairs in reports than in the earlier days before the dissolution, it is believed that in conforming to the listing rules of the New York Stock Exchange all hidden asset values will be uncovered.

The Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, for instance, in its last report places the value of stocks in other companies at $25,000,000, a figure which is merely nominal and not indicative of the real asset value in the subsidiary companies. There have been several reports regarding the asset value which would be shown when the Stock Exchange listing papers are put out. These range from $4,000 to $5,000 a share for the common stock. The listing papers it is understood will be the most voluminous ever drawn up by a company seeking a place on the Stock Exchange. They have been in process of preparation for many weeks.

The Standard Oil securities have been in a place of prominence during this week, reflecting to a marked degree the stock dividend decision of the United States Supreme Court. Some of the gains have been phenomenal. Atlantic Refining, for instance, had advanced $200 a share up to last night, and Continental Oil $135 a share. The increase in the market price of all of the Standard Oil securities during the last week has been $269,467,500, a figure which has not been equaled in a long time for one week of trading. The advance in the Standards has not been by any means general, for some are practically unchanged. About fifteen of the total of forty-four issues have been in the limelight, this being the reflection of speculative sentiment as to the possibility of stock dividends.

In the case of the Standard of New Jersey, John D. Rockefeller owns 149,130 shares of stock, this having been attested to at the time the preferred stock was issued and underwritten by J. P. Morgan & Co., last August. This is about 15 per cent. of the total outstanding common stock. If the same holdings are in his possession now the increase in value during the last week would amount to $13,570,830. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., owns $630,020 of the common stock, and William Rockefeller's holdings on Aug. 15, 1919, were $90,000. At yesterday's market price John D. Rockefeller's stock in Standard of New Jersey was worth $119,304,000. There is no definite information to be had on the extent of his holdings in other of the Standard oils. Some of his stock in the smaller companies, it is believed, was given to his various endowments.

It has been reported for some time that the Standard of New Jersey shares would be divided if there was a favorable decision on stock dividends from the Supreme Court. There was no information to be had on this point yesterday from Standard Oil officials. The listing of the shares on the Stock Exchange is, however, believed to be in line with a policy of popularizing Standard Oil issues, and this could hardly be attained by letting the shares remain at their present high price. During yesterday's trading, in the over-the-counter dealings, Standard of New Jersey touched 805, the highest price ever recorded since the shares weer set apart following the dissolution of the old company.

The following table shows the par value of the stock of the fifteen Standard Oil issues which have been prominent this wee, also the market value yesterday and the gain for the week:

Standard Oil of Indiana was one of the outstanding stocks, there being an impression on the part of some that this company will be the first to make a stock distribution. The shares sold up as high as 870 early yesterday and later reacted to 835. Even with this fall of 35 points the gain for the week was 155 points, or the second largest recorded by any of the Standard issues.

NEW CLEARING PLAN READY.

Head of Stock Corporation Invites Members to Demonstration.

Samuel F. Streit, President of the new Stock Clearing Corporation of the New York Stock Exchange, has mailed letters to members announcing that the new system of clearing stocks is ready to function. He invites members to attend daily demonstrations of the new methods which are employed so that the corporation may begin to operate without unnecessary delay. Mr. Streit's letter reads:

"The facilities and working force of the Stock Clearing Corporation are now prepared for the purposes intended. Before we can place the same in operation it will be necessary, however, for you and your partners and those of your staff whom you may designate to become thoroughly familiar with the operations thereof, and the changed duties of your force in connection therewith.

"To acquaint all those that will have to familiarise themselves with the new methods of operation, which at first will only include the clearing of security balances as shown by balance tickets of night clearing branch of Stock Clearing Corporation, the Board of Directors has arranged with the management for its force to give demonstrations daily at 12 o'clock, 3 o'clock and 4:30 o'clock, except Saturday, and requests that you take advantage of the opportunity offered at your early convenience, so that the new operations may be inaugurated without unnecessary delay."

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

March 15 Financing.

The expected flurry in the call money market occurred yesterday afternoon, when the rate shot up from around 7 or 8 per cent. to 15 per cent. But it came along so late in the afternoon that it is doubtful if any one really suffered much. This flurry was in natural anticipation of Monday's big turn-over, when something like $400,000,000 Treasury certificates are expected to be presented for payment in this district and when tax payments probably of $100,000,000 more will go into the coffers of the local collectors. As the certificates will be paid promptly and the tax payments, so far as they are made in checks, may take a day or two to be cleared, the chances are that conditions will be easy enough on Monday and Tuesday. By the end of the week, however, the adjustment should be about completed and then things should be back to normal—or abnormal, if you prefer.

Government Deposits.

It will be interesting to note how the Government's deposit accounts with the Reserve Bank and with the associated banks stand in today's bank statements. There should be some considerable expansion in view of the big demands to be made on the Government Monday, and after the settlement is over, or in the statement of next week, there should be increases as the result of tax payments. The shrinkage of Government deposits in the associated banks, a shrinkage which has taken deposits down from $312,000,000 to less than $27,000,000 since the first of the year, has been one of the most potent factors thus far in making for tight money.

Possible Gold Supplies.

In casting about for possible stores of gold which may, or may not, be sent to this country in the liquidation of the $500,000,000 Anglo-French loan, bankers and others interested in the subject yesterday were discussing the possible availability of the $40,000,000 gold which the Kolchak Government pledged last year as collateral for the $38,000,000 loan which a syndicate of American and British bankers arranged. That operation, after several months of negotiation, was closed last December, and is to run for eighteen months. The collateral, about $40,000,000 in gold, was trusteed with the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank, at Hongkong. In the event of a default, or of liquidation of the collateral, the gold, naturally, would revert to the bankers who advanced the loan. The advance was $22,500,000 by Americans and between $15,000,000 and $16,000,000 by British. If liquidated, the British would have about $17,000,000 of the gold, and it was said that it was even possible the American lenders might arrange to sell their portion of the gold to the British interests, too. But it was also said that nothing of the kind had been considered by the leading group.

Bank of England Rate.

The London cables spoke of a possible advance in the minimum rate of discount at the Bank of England. Nothing official was said, of course, but the thing was hinted at in several places. If this should be actually done, and the much-talked-of gold exports to the United States should be arranged, the world would be treated to an anomaly of greatest rarity. Ordinarily, the advancing of the rate of discount served primarily to attract gold to London, but when governments deal in finance unconventional things sometimes happen.

Cutting Financing Programs.

It has been asserted in railroad banking and operating offices that the actual requirements of the railroads for this year is in the neighborhood of $1,000,000,000. The money is needed for the purchase of new equipment and for additions and betterments, but the opinion is almost universal that only a small portion of these requirements will be met this year. Bond men who follow the market for railroad securities especially say that there will be no sudden return of the investment appetite for securities of this class, but that the growth of demand will be a slow affair. It is expected that before the end of the year, if the railroads have demonstrated that they can operate their properties and serve the public better than the Government, some choice paper may be absorbed. But, say the bond men, the investor will not buy until he is satisfied that the future of the railroads is assured.

To Ease the Strain.

It is understood that several of the railroad companies have decided to meet the condition of tight money when new funds for transportation properties are almost unobtainable by starting intensive car repair campaigns. These plans, according to information obtained in the financial district, call for the repair and rebuilding of a great amount of equipment which under normal conditions would have been consigned to the scrap heap during the period of Federal control. Motive power conditions on many of the lines do not meet the demands of traffic, and it is understood that in paring down financial budgets for the year the companies will pay special attention to locomotive repair work.

Find So-Called Jokers.

A closer study of the Transportation act than was possible in the week following its passage has convinced counsel for many of the roads that the bill contains several clauses which may easily be misinterpreted. One of these, and the one most talked of, is that portion of the law which explains why the provision for a recapture of earnings above 5½ per cent. was written. In the opinion of some the section is characterized as the "weak" spot in the bill. On the other hand, there are those who take the opposite view and consider it as the strong point. Both contentions are based on the premise that the section has been lifted from taxation. Those who consider it constitutional say that this is the proof, while those of the opposite side say that being lifted out of taxation the bill was beyond the province of the Congress which passed it. Several other so-called jokers have been found, but this is the most important one, in the opinion of railroad men.

Market Reactionary.

Prices eased off in the stock market during the late trading of yesterday, apparently influenced by the advance in call money rates. At no time during the day, however, was there the buoyancy to the market that was exhibited earlier in the week. This was doubtless due in part to profit taking sales and also to a renewal of short selling which was pretty much abandoned following the Supreme Court stock dividend decision. To the bears a heavy punishment was meted out at that time and they were a bit timid about putting out short lines against the advance on succeeding days. The sentiment among traders is, generally speaking, optimistic, but there is an inclination to cautiousness in view of the tax payments on Monday and the effect on the money market.

Oil Gas Standards.

The shortage of petroleum has been reflected to the gas situation, as oil for making gas is in none too plentiful supply. This condition brings up the question as to whether a new gas standard should not be adopted. The present candle power requirement is based on lighting, whereas the great proportion of gas is used as fuel. It is the opinion of some that the British thermal unit should be adopted as the standard, in which case there would be a saving of some 25 per cent. in the amount of petroleum used for making gas.

Stock Dividend Rumors.

Gossip concerning stock dividends is running rampant in the financial district. If one is interested in any particular issue one can, without much difficulty, learn in the rumor mart that the stock is going to benefit by the Supreme Court decision. As a matter of fact, the issues which are in a position to declare stock dividends are not anywhere near so numerous as some seem to believe.

STUDEBAKER GAINS $6,400,000 INCOME

Corporation's Net Sales Last Year $66,383,307, Against $52,087,997 in 1918.

SOME LINES DISCONTINUED

Manufacture of Horse-Drawn Vehicles Abandoned Except Farm Wagons and Trucks.

A big increase in earnings is shown in the annual report of the Studebaker Corporation for last year. The net sales amounted to $66,383,307, compared with $52,087,997 in the preceding year. Manufacturing costs increased by nearly $8,000,000, but the net operating income of $11,283,463 is about $6,400,000 greater than in 1918. After all charges and Federal taxes the amount available for dividends was $9,312,283, or the equivalent after preferred disbursements of $28.54 a share earned on the $30,000,000 common stock. It was not until December of last year that $15,000,000 additional common stock was issued, so that this stock hardly figured in the year's earnings. In the preceding year the amount available for dividends was $3,884,194, or the equal of $10.38 a share.

The company is one of the few that has thus far reported for 1919 that shows an increase in the provision for Federal taxes in 1919 as compared with 1918. The amount set aside in the current report is $1,854,229, as compared with $637,754 in the preceding year. The balance sheet shows that cash increased by about $1,300,000, and that holdings of Liberty bonds were $3,020,000 as against $980,750 in 1918. The assets also include $2,000,000 in short time loans. Inventories placed at $20,607,338 are an increase of $3,000,000 over the same item in the report of a year ago.

A. R. Erskine, President of the company, in his remarks to stockholders says in part:

"Last year was the first year since 1916 in which the commercial operations of the corporation were not curtailed by the manufacture of military supplies for war purposes. In 1918 and 1917 our plants were serving the Government, and our profits from these operations were considerably below normal. The results of these two years are no criterion whatever of the capacity and ability of the corporation in commercial transactions, and it would be, therefore, misleading to compare last year's results with either those of 1918 or 1917. Instead, these results should be compared with those of the last preceding normal year, 1916, in which sales amounted to $61,988,594 and net profits to $8,611,245, after deducting $183,954 for income taxes.

"In both the automobile and horse-drawn vehicle divisions business offered was in excess of our capacity throughout the year. Production was hampered by shortages of materials, freight cars and labor, which increased costs and curtailed output, and these conditions continue today. Availing ourselves of the opportunity afforded by conditions, we discontinued the manufacture and liquidated our investments in all horse-drawn vehicle lines of product, including harness, except farm wagons and farm trucks, which lines are retained. The factory space and investments previously devoted to these discontinued lines are now more profitably employed in the manufacture of closed bodies and other parts for automobiles."

COMMERCE BODY FOR FEDERAL AUDIT

New York State Chamber Wants It Made Part of National Budget System.

SEES SAVING OF MILLIONS

Adopts Report Demanding Reform of Taxation—Upholds School Board Here.

The report of the Committee on Finance and Currency Inflation of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York, of which Frank A. Vanderlip is Chairman, was not presented at yesterday's special meeting of the Chamber, but will be laid before the regular April meeting, according to an announcement made by President Alfred E. Marling. This report had been eagerly awaited, not only by the members of the Chamber of Commerce, but by the general financial community as well, and there was much disappointment when it was learned that it would not be forthcoming. It was said that the Committee on Finance and Currency Inflation had been unable to agree on the final draft in time for yesterday's meeting.

Three other reports were read to the members and the resolutions proposed in each were unanimously adopted. Howard C. Smith of the Executive Committee submitted the report of that body on the proposal to create a national budget system; Leonor F. Loree, Chairman of the Committee on State and Municipal Taxation, read his report on taxation, and William G. Willcox of the Committee on Commercial Education presented the report which opposed the bills which have been introduced in the State Senate and Assembly proposing to abolish the local Board of Education and the creation of a City Department of Education and a Board of Appeals.

In the report of the Executive Committee on a national budget system Mr. Smith reviewed the history of legislative appropriation systems. He called attention to the great lack of efficiency under present methods, where each department of the Government, and at times even sub-divisions of the departments, prepare plans calling for the expenditure of considerable sums. In addition, each individual member of Congress is able to offer special bills for appropriations.

The committee suggested the establishment of a national budget bureau, consisting of a competent staff of expert accountants and men versed in the details of Governmental activity, under a chief reporting directly to the President. Adequate salaries and permanent tenure of office were also recommended as means by which first-class talent would be procured.

"One or more of these men," said Mr. Smith, "should be assigned as liaison officer to each department or independent bureau to keep in touch with what is going on and by a sound follow-up system to prepare for the President, with departmental co-operation, but with independent authority, regular periodic reports of activities and results. Such reports, being assembled centrally, would automatically reveal duplication of work and plans which could be taken up and adjusted. Failures to obtain results of any agency would also be brought immediately and automatically to the President's attention.

"Once a year, in the light of their activities and results during the year, the estimates of all bureaus and departments should be brought together for review by the budget bureau, together with the probable revenues available in the coming year. These estimates should then be reduced or expanded and welded together into a unified budget plan which the President, after approval, could submit to Congress.

"Had such a central supervisory system existed during the last two years it is probable, in spite of the importance of the element of time, that the aircraft production story would have been quite different.

"Had such a bureau been in existence the recent exposure relative to the Federal Board for Vocational Education in its work for the rehabilitation of injured soldiers would never have been necessary, for the trouble would have been found and corrected substantially at its inception.

"We would probably not have had the picture of the Assistant Surgeon General asking for large appropriations for reconstruction hospitals almost coincident with the sale of a Government hospital costing over $2,500,000 for $106,000.

"The frightful extravagance and mismanagement of the Housing Corporation, as reported by the Senate Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds on Dec. 16 last (Senate Report 336), would have been checked early in its operation, to the considerable advantage of the national finances."

The resolution offered by Mr. Smith and passed by the chamber stated the conviction of the body that a national budget and audit system, combined with a centralization of Congressional appropriations in one committee, as formerly was the case, is the "only means of saving the country from undue extravagance, on the one hand, or penny-wise economies on the other," and provided for the creation of a special committee of the chamber to be known as the Special Committee on a National Budget.

The report which Mr. Loree read recommended the repeal of the excess profits tax features of the Revenue Act of 1918, the repeal of the surtax on personal and corporate incomes and the modification of the inheritance tax which the Federal Government collects and the allowance of a deduction of the amount of inheritance tax imposed by the States. In place of these taxes he proposed a consumption tax.

"The mechanism of production, transport, distribution and finance is a most delicate organization," said the report. "Already it has been grievously wounded by the great war. It is not a prudent thing to shake the confidence of those who accumulate its capital by attacks upon the institution of private property, nor to discourage their abstinence and self-denial by draining from them the fruits of their labor."

MARCH COTTON PRICE EQUALS HIGH RECORD

Contract Sells at 40 Cents, Duplicating Quotations of Dec. 3 Last.

FOREIGN TONE BRINGS RISE

Day's Exports Large, with Week's Total of 223,179 Bales, the Greatest Since Jan. 16.

There was a good deal of bullishness in the cotton market yesterday, due to reports of heavy foreign buying and of big foreign demand likely to develop in the near future and on the wide circulation around the ring of reports that the Senate would very shortly pass the Peace Treaty. This latter was used extensively to inspire the local crowd, and served its purpose well. On the bulge in the afternoon, March, the spot month, got up to an even 40 cents, thereby duplicating the high contract record made by December on Dec. 3 last. Other months, however, were slightly lower yesterday than the corresponding months had been on that earlier date. Spot cotton, on the other hand, which was quoted unchanged at 41 cents yesterday, was three-fourths of a cent higher than it had been last December.

Reports from the South indicated that the spot markets there were somewhat stronger than they had been recently, but these quotations are also lower than they were at the top of the big movement last Fall. The demand for spots in the South yesterday was good and there were some large sales made, but the turnover in most places was not above normal.

The Liverpool market did better than was expected of it. This was explained in private cables on the ground that the recent process of hedging by selling there and buying here and been reversed. Most of this operation is based on the exchange market, and it was presumed that at Liverpool, where the transaction is very popular, had been somewhat overdone in recent days and that yesterday some of the big operators there were undoing some of their trades.

Exports for the day were again large, amounting to 45,312 bales, making the total for the week 223,179 bales, the largest total for any week since that of Jan. 16, and a big increase over last week's exports of 128,126 bales. On this showing the trade is now looking for a big return of exports for the month, as it is understood that arrangements are being made for forwarding a cosiderable amount of the staple the next fortnight.

Yesterday's quotations follow:

The local market for spot cotton was steady, unchanged at 41c for middling uplands; sales nil.

BUY AIR BRAKE COMPANY.

Kidder, Peabody & Co., John F. Alvord and Goethals in Control.

Kidder, Peabody & Co., John F. Alvord and George W. Goethals & Co., Inc., have acquired a controlling interest in the Automatic Straight Air-Brake Company, and the company has arranged to enter actively into the manufacture and sale of its new device, which is expected to revolutionize present practices in railroad train brake control. New Directors elected to the board are John F. Alvord, President of the company; William L. Benedict of Kidder, Peabody & Co.; Robert E. Graham of George W. Goethals & Co., Inc.; Edward D. Kenna, formerly Vice President of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé Railway Company, and Robert Winsor of Kidder, Peabody & Co.

Other Directors are Carl H. Ganter of Shattuck, Gleen, Huss & Ganter; Harry I. Miller, James B. Mortimer, President of the North American Company, and Morgan J. O'Brien of O'Brien, Boardman, Parker & Fox. Harry I. Miller and Harry B. Hunt are Vice Presidents. The stock of the company has been placed in a five-year voting trust, with the following as Voting Trustees: Messrs. Alvord, Benedict, Kenna, Miller and Mortimer.

THE CONDITION OF TRADE.

The trade reviews of the week state that there are indications in some lines of growing conservatism. Better weather is held responsible for an improvement in business, but there is decided resistance to many of the high prices now being asked in many lines.

Dun's Review says:

> Recovery of production and distribution of goods from the disorganizing effects of repeated storms of unusual severity is in progress, though serious transportation handicaps remain in some sections, and encouragement is derived from the accumulating indications that the high point of some commodity prices has at last been witnessed. While a decline of only about three-tenths of 1 per cent. in Dun's Index Number as of March 1 seems trivial in comparison with the preceding extraordinary upturn, yet it is significant as reflecting a change in the main price movement, and may conceivably be the forerunner of a gradual, if irregular, downward readjustment.

Bradstreet's says:

> While business in wholesale lines continues at a good pace a progressive tendency is reflected in the week's trade advices, and this with inclement weather in many sections has had an influence in bringing about a quieter tone in retail trade. Purchasing for immediate needs is reported as in general satisfactory, but there is a more pronounced disposition to limit commitments for the future. The main influence in inducing caution in respect to providing for more distant requirements is the feeling reflected in dispatches from many quarters that prices have about reached the top and that readjustments in a downward direction may be looked for in the not distant future.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The stockholders of the Mahoning & Shenango Railway & Light Company have voted to change the name of the company to Pennsylvania-Ohio Electric Company. The Pennsylvania Utilities Commission, it is said, has granted the company permission to increase fares from 6 to 7 per cent.

The Habirshaw Electric Cable Company has sold to a syndicate headed by Potter, Bros. & Co. $2,000,000 7 per cent., fifteen-year convertible debenture bonds and 40,000 shares of common stock, which will shortly be offered to the public.

A special meeting of the stockholders of the Stutz Motor Car Company has been called for March 26 to vote upon an increase in the number of shares of the company from 100,000 to 120,000, without par value. If the proposal is acted upon favorably it is said to be the plan to have the new stock given to shareholders as a stock dividend. A transfer of $5 per share from surplus to capital account is also contemplated.

VOTES $1,140,000 FOR 200 CITY BUSES

TAX NOTE ISSUE PLANNED

Whalen Sees Boon in Citywide System That Will Rid Streets of Cars and Tracks.

The report of the Finance and Budget Committee of the Board of Estimate recommending an appropriation of $1,140,000 for the purchase of 200 motor buses for use in place of abandoned surface car lines, was yesterday unanimously approved by the board. The money is to be raised at once by the issue of tax notes, and Grover A. Whalen, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, was directed to prepare contracts and specifications for competitive bidding for the buses, to submit these forms, together with a full description of the type, style and size of vehicles to the board as quickly as possible. Later, routes on which the buses are to be operated will be laid out.

Then followed a discussion as to where the buses were to be employed. Mayor Hylan told Mr. Whalen to be sure that some of the buses be sent to Staten Island for use along the routes abandoned by the Midland Railway Company. President LaGuardia of the Board of Aldermen said that a line of buses should be operated in Richmond County between the St. George Ferry and the Army Base Hospital at Fox Hills for a five-cent fare. This suggestion, in the shape of a motion, was adopted, thus overruling the contention of President Van Name at a recent hearing that the privilege was held by a private party who should be allowed to retain it.

Later in the day Mr. Whalen made this comment:

"The action of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment in appropriating a million dollars for the municipal operation and ownership of a bus system throughout the City of New York is a great step along the line of progress. When the buses are placed in operation and the street cars and street car tracks are eliminated from the roadways, it will completely revolutionize the city's traffic problems and will be a solution of the many difficulties occasioned by the present method of surface car transportation, which have been most aggravating to the people.

"The policy of the city in connection with the operation of the bus system by the Department of Plant and Structures will be one of courtesy and efficient service. It will also afford to the City of New York an additional source of revenue which is very much needed. It will relieve in a measure, when the municicpal bus operation is made city wide, the great burden of taxation. It will also help largely to build up the sparsely occupied territory in the city."

Mr. Whalen estimates that the buses will cost $5,500 each, that each bus will have a seating capacity for twenty-seven passengers and that the enterprise will net the city an annual profit of $275,064. It is expected to have the buses in operation within sixty days. They are to operate at a five-cent fare.

La Belle Iron Profits $2,254,613.

The La Belle Iron Works report profits, after all charges and Federal taxes, of $2,254,613 for last year. This is equivalent, after preferred dividends, to $14.74 a share on the common stock. In the preceding year the earnings were equal to $18.07 a share on the common.

American Gas Surplus Increases.

The American Gas Company in its report for 1919 shows a surplus after the deduction of charges and taxes amounting to $344,490. This was equal to $4.41 a share earned on the $7,804,100 capital stock, as compared with $1.07 earned in 1918.

METAL STOCK INCREASED.

American Company Votes to Raise Capital to $14,000,000.

The Directors of the American Metal Company yesterday voted to increase the company's outstanding capital stock from $7,000,000 to $14,000,000 by the sale of 70,000 shares of stock at par, $100, pro rata to stockholders of record at the close of business March 15. The new shares will be issued on or about June 15 and all the shareholders will take their pro rata allotment. The company has an authorized capital of $25,000,000.

The American Metal Company was sold by the Alien Property Custodian some time ago, but the sale was set aside. At a subsequent sale the company was purchased by a syndicate headed by C. D. Barney & Co. Later the company acquired the entire business of L. Vogelstein & Co., an independent metal producing and trading concern.

SEIZE BANANA CARGO IN AGREEMENT TEST

United Fruit Line Asks That Colombian Planters Be Made to Sell to It Exclusively.

GETS WRIT OF REPLEVIN

Other Consignments Are Reported to be Coming from Central America Soon.

A suit described as a test to determine whether the United Fruit Company could compel Central American planters to live up to an agreement to sell their fruit exclusively to the United Fruit Company by seizing the bananas when they arrived here consigned to other dealers was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday when Sheriff Knott took possession of 9,186 bunches on board the steamship Cherokee of the Caribbean Steamship Company's line.

The Sheriff and his deputies, Murray and Curtin, decided that there wasn't room enough in his office in the Hall of Records to store the bananas pending determination as to their ownership, and he knew of no legal mandatory writ that could be obtained to keep them from spoiling while the case awaited trial. He put a keeper on board the Cherokee to watch the fruit, where he planned to keep the bananas until the courts decided whether or not the United Fruit Company was entitled to the $20,000 worth of bananas. Meanwhile there is a cargo South awaiting the Cherokee as soon as this one is discharged.

Stuart McNamara, attorney for the steamship company, arranged to let the United Company unload and take the bananas upon giving a bond for $20,000 to pay for the bananas if the United Fruit Company loses the suit.

The case filed was a replevin action brought against the steamship company, Alejandro Angel & Co., an importing concern, and Joseph A. Caspary, an importer, who is alleged to have had something to do with the consignment of the benanas from a Colombian port to Angel & Co.

The affidavit of Victor M. Cutter, Vice President of the United Fruit Company, upon which the writ of replevin was granted in the Supreme Court, stated that the United Fruit Company had a contract with the planters at the Colombian port from which the bananas in question were shipped, by which all their product was to be delivered to the plaintiff. Mr. Cutter said that in violation of the agreement some persons unknown to the plaintiff "maliciously persuaded" certain planters to sell to others than the plaintiff, and the bananas were shipped Feb. 27 and reached here several days ago.

It was said yesterday that shipments to other dealers than the United Fruit Company were either on the way or would be started soon, and the suit was to decide whether the planters could be held to their arrangement. A jury will be empanelled in the Sheriff's office to determine the ownership of the Cherokee's cargo.

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday ......7 per cent. for the best names
Thursday ......7 per cent. for the best names
The quotations are for six months' paper.

Anticipating Payments.

One reason advanced for dilatory payments in the various dry goods lines by a local credit man has to do with the increased interest rates of banks. He believes that the higher rate asked for money makes it quite unprofitable for debtors to anticipate their bills and take advantage of discounts. In fact it is to be questioned, he remarked, that there are any advantages connected with some discounts under present conditions. Many concerns unable to get their usual accommodations from the banks are falling back on private loans, for which higher rates are sought.

Better Fabrics in Boys' Clothing.

Since boys' clothing attained the distinction of being operated as a branch apart from the lines of men's wear, there has been a notable tendency, according to mill agents, to purchase better materials for use in it. Formerly the cheapest kinds of materials, most of them with a liberal percentage of cotton, were used in the boys' lines. Now that even longer service is expected of a boy's suit than of a man's, sturdier materials are chosen. Mill representatives do not think that this new factor has had so important a bearing in adding to the output of finer goods, but they welcome the switch from the cheaper to the more expensive weaves.

New Dress Goods Shown.

Next week will see the general opening of the Fall 1920 line of the Forstmann & Huffmann Company. In the line of dress goods prepared for the new season the predominant color notes are said to be gray and green. The color range of twenty shades shows these hues in a number of variations and also gives a place to a few brown tints. Among the constructions to be shown are all-wool duvetyns selling at $7.50 a yard, and a silk and cashmere fabric at $16.50. Prices of other numbers are about the same as they were last Fall, due, it is explained, to large purchases of material made some time ago.

They Want American Yarns.

Little fault can be found with the export demand for American yarns at the moment, particularly that from Central and South America. While practically all of the yarn-using countries south of the Panama Canal are represented in the orders placed here this week, particularly active buying seems to have been done for Colombia and Argentina. One of the features of the week's transactions has been the call for hosiery yarns from Colombia, where considerable strides have been made in the manufacture of hose in recent years. A single order for hosiery yarns that totaled about $30,000 was received here yesterday from a mill in that country.

Fabric Now Is Wanted.

Some months ago many garment manufacturers designed and made up models in velour checks. The material was not much of a favorite then, but lately it seems to have sprung into sudden popularity, judging from the call it is getting from the retail trade. From the rapid change in sentiment regarding this fabric, manufacturers argue that the trade is getting rapidly back to a normal basis and one where styles in both garments and materials may be expected to see some changes during a season. Although the trade has never expressed a liking for quick style changes, yet there are those who are of the opinion that such changes bring them a more profitable business.

Gray Goods Market Stronger.

Gray goods continued strong and active in this market yesterday, with some of the recent increased strength of printcloths visible in sheetings as well. March-May deliveries of 5.50-yard sheetings were sold at 16½ cents while, for shipment during the remainder of this month and through next, buyers paid 21 cents for 4.70-yard sheetings. Liberal March-April sales of 39-inch 68-72s were made at 24½ cents. Buyers freely paid 23 cents for April. May and June deliveries of 38½-inch 64-60s, and also bought July-August deliveries of the same construction at 21½ cents. Trading in fine-yarn cloths and specialties did not show the activity or price strength visible in other parts of the market.

Hard Coal Demand Improves.

As the 1st of April draws nearer the mand for anthracite coal strengthens, Saward's Journal will say today, partly because retailers are in need of tonnage for current use, but more particularly because they wish to stock up against the possibility of a strike and the certainty of higher prices. While the April price may not show an advance over the Winter circular, it is taken for granted that the usual Spring discount will not be made. This means that coal can be purchased just as advantageously now as next month and it will prove to be a good asset, whatever may be the outcome of the wage negotiations. Improvement in the bituminous situation is largely in the future, the storm at the end of last week and the subsequent freezing weather having given the railroads another setback in their efforts to straighten out the traffic tangle.

Bond Business Over.

In different business quarters the belief is expressed that the "Liberty bond business is over." What is meant is that most of the buyers of bonds who used them for speculation and extravagant spending have about sold out one way or another their Government securities. For many people, it was pointed out, the bonds they bought through patriotism represented their first attempt at saving and, not being accustomed to having some money or its equivalent to their credit, they fell an easy prey to both stock promoters and dealers of various kinds who were more than willing to take the bonds in payment for something "just as good." The bonds were so easily negotiable that they led to extravagance by those not trained to save. But now, it is said, a large part of the securities has reached less extravagant owners, and the prediction is made that inflated buying has very nearly reached its end.

Urging Commercial Arbitration.

With the end of the boom era in sight, if not actually at hand, and with the consequent possibility of increased disputes between buyers and sellers of merchandise, stress is again being laid on commercial arbitration by the National Association of Credit Men. The March letter to the members of the association draws attention to the fact that that organization has emphasized for many years the importance of arbitration of this kind. "But," the letter goes on, "right now only in a few cities, notably New York and Chicago, is such an economy available. Within some commercial bodies there are systems of arbitration, but the kind of arbitration favored by the National Association rests upon legislative approval and removes the danger of one of the parties to the matter refusing to accede and compelling eventually a resort to a court of law."

Dry Goods Exports Fair.

While a fair amount of business has been booked for export in the local dry goods trade during the week, buying for foreign account is nowhere nearly as active as it was a few months ago. The European demand is irregular and, while it has picked up somewhat as a result of the improved situation in foreign exchange, there is considerable speculation on the part of exporters regarding the permanency of the improvement. In view of this, the tendency is not to push for business in the countries most affected. Latin American countries are good buyers along certain lines. Ecuador, Colombia and Cuba are taking colored cottons well, from all accounts, and Cuba is buying hosiery freely. Business with the West Coast countries of South America, notably Chile and Peru, is not active, chiefly because importers there are well stocked with goods for which they paid less than the present replacement costs here.

BUSINESS NOTES.

There will be a special divisional meeting of the American Cloak and Suit Manufacturers' Association in the Corinthian Room of the Masonic Temple, West Twenty-fourth Street, this afternoon at 3 o'clock, at which problems confronting the trade will be discussed.

The Werbro Ribbon Manufacturing Company, which recently purchased the Odenwelder hosiery plant at Bath Station, has announced the purchase of the Lerch Brothers Bath Knitting Mills.

BUSINESS RECORDS.

FAILURES OF A WEEK—Bradstreet's reports 108 failures in the United States for the week, against 129 for the previous week and 118, 225, 250 and 385 for the corresponding weeks 1919 to 1916. The New England States had 11, Middle 32, Western 26, Northwestern 7, Southern 21, Far Western 11. Canada had 6, against 14 for the previous week. In the United States about 82.4 per cent of the total number of concerns failing had $5,000 capital or less and 13 per cent. had from $5,000 to $20,000 capital.

COMMODITIES PRICES.

Declines in Those of Foodstuffs a Feature of the Week.

The pendulum swung the other way in the wholesale commodities price changes this week, as reflected by Dun's list, and there was again an excess of declines over advances. As compared with last week's changes, this excess was due less to an increase in the number of declines than it was to a shrinkage in the number of advances. A much larger percentage of the changes than usual was supplied by the foodstuffs, considerably more than a third of them being confined to that part of the general list. Only 67 revisions were shown this week, of which 34 were declines, compared with 34 declines in 80 changes last week.

The following list gives the minimum wholesale prices quoted on selected standard commodities. They are corrected to yesterday, and with them are given comparative prices for last week and the corresponding week a year ago:

Twenty-eight revisions were shown in the foodstuffs this week. Fifteen were declines. The only local change in provisions was a decline in bacon, and at Chicago the only drop was seen in short ribs. Live sheep did not change, but the prices quoted on live beef and live hogs, as well as on mess pork and Middle Western lard, were higher.

Advances ranging from 1 to 4 cents a pound for butter, the biggest advance having taken place in the price of the best creamery stock, were seen in the dairy products list. Cheese did not change, but there were further sharp declines in the prices got for eggs. Nearby fancy eggs dropped 6 cents a a dozen for the week, while the decline in the best Western eggs amounted to 10 cents a dozen. Both grades have dropped 15 cents a dozen in the last two weeks.

Fresh fruits were bare of changes, but in the dried ones the revisions were more numerous than for some time. Most of them were downward, the only advances being shown by choice apricots and California peaches. Listed changes in the vegetables consisted only of a decline in choice red kidney beans and a rise of 50 cents a barrel in rutabagas turnips. Irish salt mackerel was lower, and there was a decline in common syrup.

Prices for teas were steady, and the only change in the listed coffees was a rise in No. 7 Rio. The best raw sugar moved up somewhat, but fine granulated did not change. White pepper was higher in the spice list, but black pepper, mace and nutmegs all declined.

Declines in oats and prime timothy hay, and advances in corn, rye, malting barley, and long rye straw marked the week in the grains. No advances were seen in the hides, but declines were registered by No. 1 native packer, heavy native cow, and No. 1 kip stock. No leather declines were seen, either, and the only rise was in No. 1 light belting butts.

Lead and tin contributed the only advances to the metals list, with the declines seen in aluminium, antimony, lake and electrolytic copper and spelter. The changes in the combined list for drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs and oils were bare of important features, and included seven advances and six declines. Naval stores showed sharp advances in resin and turpentine, and the latter, at least, made a new record. Hemp was lower this week, as was Japanese raw silk. English vermilion paint went up.

The absence of demand in the burlap market and large prospective receipts had a bearish effect on prices of those goods. In the cotton goods trade, on the other hand, more active buying of gray goods, particularly printcloths, brought out higher prices than had been paid for many weeks. Some of these figures, however, were said to be of a premium nature, and not truly indicative of the general market.

TO RETAIN REINSURANCE CO.

Alien Property Custodian Will Aid Move for Hartford Concern.

HARTFORD, Conn., March 12.—Francis P. Garvan, of New York, Alien Property Custodian, has informed H. H. Stryker, President of the First Re-Insurance Company, of this city, that he would recommend the entry of an executive order for the sale of 4,506 shares of stock of the company held by the Government to a syndicate formed to take over the company.

This means the successful termination of an effort to maintain the First Re-Insurance Company's identity and preserve it as a going concern.

Because of German-owned stock the Government took charge of the company in 1917.

Wants Yap for United States.

The Executive Committee of the American Asiatic Association yesterday adopted resolutions at India House recording its belief that the possession of Yap by the United States is of "supreme importance," because the island is a connecting link in the cable from Guam to Shanghai and the Celebes. Yap was taken by the Japanese from Germany, but its future is in the hands of the Supreme Council at Paris.

Oppose Reopening Mail Case.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Counsel for the railroads today filed a brief with the Interstate Commerce Commission opposing partial reopening of the mail pay case, asked by Postmaster General Burleson, on the ground that the commission's decision had granted the railroads a rate of pay higher than the express companies received for performing similar service. The railroads contended that the whole case should be reopened if any part were taken up for reconsideration.

TRAVIS IS ACCUSED OF 'JUGGLING' JOBS

Civil Service Reform Association Alleges Bad Faith in Two Appointments.

CONTROLLER GIVES REASON

One Candidate Passed as Non-Voter—Thought Other Not Best Fitted for Post.

State Controller Eugene M. Travis was charged yesterday by the Civil Service Reform Association with "juggling" jobs in the income tax bureau. The association, in a letter to the Controller, cited two instances in which, it alleges, the Controller was guilty of violating the spirit of the merit system in appointments.

The two cases mentioned were those of H. R. Armour, whom, it is charged, the Controller would not appoint to a district directorship "because he has not voted for the last four or five years" and that of F. W. Osburn, first man on the eligible list for the city districts, who, after being asked whether he would accept appointment in any one of seven different positions, replied, he asserts, in the affirmative, but, according to the Controller's ruling, was declared to have declined.

Controller Travis had not received the association's letter last night, but when a copy of it was read to him by a NEW YORK TIMES reporter he said: "I refused to appoint Armour because he had not voted in several years. I will not appoint any man who has not enough civic pride to vote. Governor Smith approves my position in that respect. Osburn was one of three men from whom I might choose under the Civil Service law. I chose the one I believed to be best fitted for the position."

The Civil Service Association's letter to the Controller, headed "Travis Juggles Jobs in Income Tax Bureau," and containing the charges, says, after presenting a statement of Armour and Osburn's cases:

"The association does not allege that in this action you have committed a violation of the civil service law. It believes, however, that if the integrity of the merit system in the State service is to be maintained, appointing officers must confine themselves in good faith to the selection of one of three men for every vacancy and that any attempt upon the part of an appointing officer to secure a waiver of a candidate's right to appointment is evidence of bad faith in the administration of the civil service, as provided for in the Constitution and the laws of the State of New York."

With the letter were inclosed statements by Armour and Osburn. Armour asserted that on Feb. 13 he went to see Mr. Travis, in response to a telephone message. The Controller, Armour asserted, told him that he could not give Armour one of the five places to which Armour was eligible because the Controller had to take care of his provisional appointees. Armour asserts that Mr. Travis asked him to waive appointment. Three days later, Armour says, he saw Mr. Travis again, and the Controller asked him again to waive.

Osburn in his statement asserts that on Feb. 13 he received a telegram from the Controller enumerating seven different positions and asking whether he would accept any one of them. Osburn said that that evening he wrote a reply saying that he would accept five of them, but did specifically decline the other two. On Feb. 17, he said, he saw the Controller, and was told that, according to law, he had declined the appointment.

SAYS TAXES CURTAIL LAND BANK USEFULNESS

Federal Impost Thus Hinders Farm Development, Bank Superintendent Skinner Reports.

ALBANY, March 12.—The use of the Land Bank of the State of New York as a means to aid in the solution of the housing problem is suggested by George I. Skinner, State Superintendent of Banks, in his forthcoming annual report to the Legislature.

Present inability of the Land Bank to furnish money at reasonable rates for this purpose and for the development of agricultural resources results from the bank's bonds being subject to the Federal income tax, it is stated.

"If any way could be devised by which the bonds of the Land Bank of the State of New York could be exempted from Federal taxation," the report says, "there never has been a time at which its special powers could be exercised to such a great advantage for the benefit of the citizens."

Bonds of Federal farm land banks are exempt from the Federal income tax, Mr. Skinner points out, and these institutions accordingly have been able to lend large sums of money on real estate. As the mortgages which form the basis of the bonds are limited to 50 per cent. of the value of the land, the funds, however, have been available only to persons of considerable means.

"As a consequence, only the comparatively rich have been benefited by such funds, and the money has been used by them to a considerable extent in speculating in land values," the report says. "The comparatively poor man could not obtain these funds for the purchase of a small farm from which production would be increased by intensive cultivation under his personal supervision; in fact, he was placed at a disadvantage in endeavoring to buy one of the abandoned farms of the State because he would have to pay much more for the money that he was able to borrow than his wealthier neighbor. The tendency has therefore been to build up large farms rather than to increase the number of farm owners and the number of persons directly interested in increasing production.

"While it was intended that the Land Bank of the State of New York should be a central institution for all the savings and loan associations of the State, owing to the discouraging conditions under which it has operated since its organization only a comparatively small number of the associations of the State have become members, and the number of shares for which member associations have subscribed is in most cases merely nominal."

Referring to the operation of credit unions, another class of co-operative financial institutions recently authorized, Mr. Skinner says: "The growth of these institutions was somewhat impeded by the demands made upon all classes of our population for money to support the national Government during the period of the war. A comparatively large number of credit unions have, however, been incorporated, and applications are still frequently received."

The resources of the credit unions of the State increased during the last year from $568,034 to $1,041,000, or a gain of $472,966.

Prince Christopher Retains Rights.

A cable dispatch from Frederick Wirth, Jr., as legal adviser of Prince Christopher of Greece, dated at Geneva, Switzerland, was received by The Associated Press yesterday, stating that in view of published reports that the Official Gazette of Athens had announced Prince Christopher's renouncing all his rights to succession, both Greek and Danish, he was directed by Prince Christopher to state that the published reports were absolutely without foundation. The dispatch stated that Prince Christopher had not renounced any of his rights and that the relations of his family "could not be more cordial."

MORE SHIPS, LESS USE, ROSSETER DECLARES

Service Halved Owing to Delays, He Tells Senators—Motion to Dismiss Injunction Bill.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Although the world's ship tonnage is greater than before the war, service rendered is not more than one-half of what it formerly was, J. H. Rosseter, formerly director of operations of the Shipping Board, today told the Senate Commerce Committee. Delays of all kinds have reduced materially the efficiency of the vessels, he said, instancing strikes in many countries.

The statement resulted from an effort by Senator Fletcher of Florida to get an estimate as to what American tonnage should be. The witness replied that a figure "out of the sky" would be 12,000,000 dead weight tons; but it was hard to estimate on the old basis of traffic to be carried because of the low service now obtained.

Mr. Rosseter strongly favored a "bargain sale" of all wooden ships owned by the Government at a rate of $50 a ton and without restrictions as to flag or trade. While not fully agreeing with Senator Nelson of Minnesota that all Government vessels below 5,000 tons were "rubbish," he said that the wooden craft were "a mistake from every viewpoint."

The crying need of the American merchant marine program, Mr. Rosseter said, was for a cargo craft of the "liner class," ships of 10,000 tons with a speed of 13 or 14 knots. These were needed, he said, to establish guaranteed return routes.

"If we are ever to accomplish our dream of making New York instead of London the financial centre of the world," he said, "the only way is to establish these regular lines."

Mr. Rosseter agreed with Senator Nelson that funds derived from the sale of small wooden and steel craft could well be used in adding such new types to the existing program.

Hearing of the application of the Shipping Board for dissolution of the temporary injunction against the sale of twenty-nine former German passenger vessels was continued until next Friday by Justice Bailey today in the District of Columbia Supreme Court. This court, in hearing the dissolution application, will also receive arguments of counsel on a motion filed by the Shipping Board today to dismiss the bill on which the temporary injunction requested by William Randolph Hearst as a taxpayer was granted. The motion to dismiss the entire proceedings was presented in place of an answer to the bill.

Counsel for the board contend that the suit was in reality against the United States, since members of the board have no individual interest in the controversy and therefore the District Supreme Court lacks jurisdiction.

FAY BAINTER BOOMS SALES.

Actress Joins Women Working at Gimbels' for Bellevue Hospital.

Members of the Bellevue Hospital Social Service Committee who have been working as saleswomen at the store of Gimbel Brothers this week, report increased sales each day. They are looking forward to generous returns for the hospital in their 10 per cent. commission on sales. They have also been buyers. Ordinary shoppers do not have the chance to see the stock as the saleswomen do, they say, and Mrs. Joseph R. Truesdale, who is acting as Chairman of the committee, says there has probably not been a saleswoman who has not also made purchases.

A number of professional women assisted yesterday, and Miss Fay Bainter sold a hat almost the moment she arrived, but selling became difficult, for customers increased so swiftly that the floor space was congested. Mrs. George Baker, Jr., has been on duty for three days and Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson worked hard all Thursday afternoon. Mrs. F. N. Watriss and Mrs. Mary Hoyt Wiborg are among the more recent workers. Mrs. George Huntington and Mrs. William A. Bours have been the leading saleswomen, Mrs. Huntington having sold $1,000 worth of goods up to the middle of yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Bours sold $1,300 worth of goods in one day.

More than 20,000 cars daily pass the site of the new structure, which is located at the corner of Delaware Street, Laurelton, and the Merrick Road. The income producing possibilities of New York City residential properties continues to draw considerable capital into the realty market. This building, one of the finest on the upper west side, is on a plot 100 by 150 in size. It is twelve stories in height and was erected about twelve years ago by Peter Banner.

Negotiations are under way covering the lease of the entire property for a period of twenty-one years with renewals on a net rental basis to a well known hotel man who will at the expiration of the present leases, alter the building into small suites for apartment hotel purposes, from plans and under the supervision of Robert T. SAVAY MUST PROVE ALIENATION CHARGE

Self-Styled Descendant of Lafayette Ordered to Give Particulars in $75,000 Suit.

ENSIGN GREGORY ACCUSED

Complaint Alleges He Enticed Mrs. Savay from Husband and Married Her.

The signing by Supreme Court Justice Newburger yesterday of an order directing Norbert Lafayette Savay, a lawyer, who has described himself in the past as a great-grandson of the Marquis de Lafayette, to give particulars in a suit against George Newton Gregory of 500 West End Avenue, revealed the fact that the action is for $75,000 damages on the ground that Mr. Gregory won the affections of Savay's wife, Emma E. Rice Savay, who divorced the plaintiff and married Mr. Gregory several years age. Mr. Gregory was an Ensign in the Naval Aviation Corps during the war.

Unusual efforts were taken to keep the nature of the case secret, and even yesterday, after the allegations were revealed through the filing of Justice Newburger's order in the County Clerk's office, the attorneys for both parties suggested that as a settlement is about to be effected to avoid the publicity of the trial the facts should remain unpublished.

The plaintiff, who usually calls himself N. Lafayette Savay, sued under the name of Norbert L. Savay, and in the summons, which was filed early in 1918, the nature of the case is not disclosed. Shortly after the complaint, which has never been filed as required by law, had been served on the defendant at Buffalo, where he was on duty in the Naval Aviation Corps, he applied to Justice Giegerich to have the case stayed until after he had been discharged from his military duties. The application was granted.

In his petition to Justice Newburger for particulars, Mr. Gregory, who was graduated from Yale in 1910, and is a member of the Racquet and Tennis, New York Athletic and Yale Clubs, told the Court that he had been ill for a long period following his discharge from the navy, and had just learned that the plaintiff has had the case placed on the trial calendar of the Supreme Court. Justice Newburger directed that the particulars asked for be filed in ten days.

The defendant said that the complaint served on him alleges that the plaintiff and Emma H. Rice Savay "lived happily and harmoniously from the date of their marriage on Sept. 23, 1911, until December, 1914, and that they manifested great love and affection for each other." Savay alleged that from the latter date until Nov. 19, 1917, which is said to be the date of Mrs. Savay's marriage to Gregory, the defendant enticed the plaintiff's wife from his residence "by various acts, gifts, valuable presents, promises of valuable gifts and payments of money and by representing that the plaintiff was not fit to be the husband and life companion of Emma H. Rice Savay, and wholly alienated and destroyed the love and affection of the plaintiff's wife."

Attention was directed to N. Lafayette Savay in 1909, when the real great-grandson of the French General, Count de la Fayette, then in this country, noticed an extended autobiography of N. Lafayette Savay in "Who's Who in New York," in which the latter was described as a great-grandson of the Marquis, personal counsel to the late Marcus Daly in the days when he was making his fortune through copper mining in Montana, an aid to Maceo in the Cuban fight for independence, and one who had been educated at Yale, Vienna, Paris and Oxford, and spoke eleven languages.

The Count de la Fayette had never heard of the Savay branch of his family and was surprised, as General de la Fayette had only one son, two daughters and eleven grandchildren, and there was no trouble about tracing his descendants.
